ARREST IS DUE IN LONGWORTH THREATS CASE

Police Trailing Man Who Wrote Notes to Wife of Late Speaker.

SIR WILLMOTT LEWIS RESIDENCE GUARDED

Violence by Extortionist to Son of Newspaperman Is Feared.

The arrest of the man who is trying to extort $1,500 from Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, wife of the late Speaker of the House, and who is believed to be the same man who is trying to extort a similar sum from Sir Wilmott Lewis, is expected momentarily by police.

In the Longworth case no direct threat of violence was made by the extortionist, according to the police, while in the case of Sir Willmott a threat was made against his son, Willmott, jr., and a constant police guard is being maintained at the home of the Washington correspondent of the London Times. Lady Lewis is the former Ethel Noyes, the daughter of Frank B. Noyes, of The Washington Star.

Several Threats Received.

Since the kidnaping of the infant son of Col. Lindbergh, according to Inspector Frank S. W. Burke, about a dozen letters of a threatening nature have been received by persons prominent in the social and political life of the Capital. Most of these are so obviously the work of cranks that scant attention is being paid to them.

Ben Lyon, the movie star who appeared at a local theater a short time ago, has also received a note demanding money, it was learned. The missive, demanding $300, was signed by "A. A. Carpenter," threatened the safety of the infant child of Mr. Lyon and his wife, Bebe Daniels. The baby is now in California.

While it was learned that police had been guarding the home of Edward L. Hillyer, vice president of the Union Trust Co., after he had received a similar note about two weeks ago, he would neither confirm nor deny the report when questioned by a Post reporter last night. Mr. Hillyer, who lives at 2301 Connecticut avenue northwest, was the recipient of a letter also demanding $500 and signed with the same signature that appeared on the Lyon note, it was learned.

Called Lewis Home.

The greater concern in the series of threats is being felt by police in the Lewis case, since the writer of the notes on Tuesday night tried to get into telephonic communication with Sir Willmott, but was given evasive answers by the maid at the Lewis home, at 1605 New Hampshire avenue northwest.

While there are points of similarity between the notes received by Sir Willmott and those sent to the Longworth home, there were also evidences that they might not have been written by the same person. To clear up the doubt the letters in each case have been sent to the Bureau of Standards, where experts will decide whether they were written on the same typewriter. The examination had not been completed last night.

The first note to Mrs. Longworth was received three weeks ago, in which the demand for $1,500 was made. Inspector Burke said: "Mrs. Longworth was directed to have her confidential agent take a Diamond taxicab and proceed across town to the Pennsylvania Avenue Bridge. Then the cab was to proceed at the rate of 18 miles an hour to a given point."

"At a given point a signal was to be given at which the driver of the cab was to stop the car and the agent was to get out of the cab and place the money 1 foot from the curb. He was to reenter the cab and then pro-

Last of Old Canal Boats Burns at Cumberland

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., March 24.—With the burning of the canal boat Oh. Susannah, at the old Basin wharf here this afternoon, the last of the fleet that for half a century plied between Cumberland and Georgetown became a memory.

The boat, the living quarters of Charles Eaton, one of the last of the old boatmen, was fired by oil or the water that had become ignited, it is thought, by a spark from a burning dump. When the fire department arrived, the old boat was almost completely surrounded by flames. All other boats of the 100 or more once sent out have either been destroyed or allowed to sink.

U. S. Recovery Signs Are Cited by Mills

Avoids Predictions on Business, But Reveals Return to Banks of $157,000,000 Since Start of Drive on Hoarding.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.

Armed with latest reports of the Federal Reserve Board and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, Secretary of the Treasury Mills was able to report yesterday that many scattered signs on the horizon of finance point to vastly improved economic conditions throughout the United States. But with a questioning eye slanted down Pennsylvania avenue to the shocking political phantasmagoria on Capitol Hill he scrupulously avoided the role of prophet or business prognosticator.

"I want the figures to speak for themselves," he warned emphatically. "I am not predicting a boom in business, but our figures are encouraging."

But not once in his illuminating and convincing account of financial improvement since early February did he fall into the classic cliche, "Just around the corner."

Secretary Mills' figures showed there has been a decrease of about $157,000,000 in currency in circulation since President Hoover, on February 4, announced the Nation-wide campaign against hoarding. Moreover, the combined statement of the twelve Federal Reserve Banks for the week ended March 23 showed the largest decrease in money in circulation since the drive against hoarding began. Approximately $42,000,000 in hoarded legal tender returned to the banks last week, marking a decline in circulation for the sixth consecutive week.

Turning his attention to the notable decline in bank failures since the Reconstruction Finance Corporation began operations, and since the Glass-Steagall bill modernized the Federal Reserve System, Secretary Mills pointed out that the net bank closings for the first three weeks of March—total closings minus reopenings—was but 18, which compared with a net loss of 292 banks throughout the country during January.

For the week ended January 16, for example, there were 95 bank failures and but 7 reopenings, leaving a net disaster for the week of 88 banks. During the week of March 19 the net loss was but five banks.

Without elaborating upon the generally accepted understanding of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation's operations, Mr. Mills revealed that the directors were calling upon the Treasury for an additional $100,000,000 of operating capital.

This subscription will bring to $350,000,000 the total Treasury investment in the corporation. Congress has authorized a Treasury subscription of $500,000,000, after which the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has a latent bonding power of $1,500,000,000 more with which to continue the work of stabilizing credit.

TRACTION WAGE CUT REPORTED TO BLACK

Inquiry on Purported New Contract May Affect Merger Action.

Representative Loring M. Black, jr., chairman of the House District utilities subcommittee, announced last night he would "look into" reported signing of a new contract under which Capital Traction Co. employes would receive 2 cents less an hour.

Representative Black had conditioned the favorable traction merger report he planned to make next Thursday on assurances that no wage cuts or personnel reductions would follow the consolidation. Wednesday he said he had received such assurances.

Informed of the reported contract, under which working hours a day would be reduced from 9 to 8½ hours and pay reduced per hour, the New York representative said it was "confusing" when compared with his own information.

If the contract is acceptable to the employes, however, Mr. Black said there was nothing he would do. He said he would seek light on the matter at once, with the possibility that it might have some bearing on his merger report.

The contract, reportedly signed by J. H. Hanna, president of the Capital Traction Co., and John H. Cookman, financial secretary of the local union Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes, would permit reopening of wage parleys after a year, with provision for arbitration of strikes and other labor disagreements for a three-year period.

Senator Warren R. Austin (Republican), Vermont, yesterday favorably reported the Senate traction consolidation bill, with 58 amendments, to the Senate. A minority opposition report, objecting to extension of power contracts under the bill, was prepared by Chairman Arthur Capper, of the Senate District committee, in conjunction with Senator John J. Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin. The House District committee may bring the House merger bill to a vote Thursday night.

Specialist Is Reported Summoned for Stalin

Berlin, March 24 (U.P.).—A prominent German specialist was en route to Moscow tonight, reportedly for the purpose of treating Josef V. Stalin, the iron handed dictator of Soviet Russia.

The physician, Prof. Hermann Zondek, was understood to have left Berlin yesterday on the invitation of the Soviet government, which summoned him to the Russian capital. Prof. Zondek is a specialist in internal medicine. So far as could be learned, there has been no indication in Moscow recently that Stalin is ill.

Plane Lands in Alaska To Rescue Mrs. Biddle

Kantishna, Alaska, March 24 (U.P.).—An airplane from Nenana landed here late today to rescue Mrs. Edward M. Biddle, Philadelphia society matron, who has been showbound here since January 12. The outward flight will be made in two or three days.

BRITISH ASK PARLEY UPON DANUBIAN PACT

Paris, March 24 (A.P.).—The British government has proposed a conference of French, British, Italian and German representatives to consider a proposed Danubian economic agreement prior to direct negotiations among the five Danubian states, it was semiofficially announced tonight.

Great Britain seemed to consider a preliminary agreement of the great powers indispensable to the success of the negotiations among the five states, which are Austria, Hungary, Roumania, Jugoslavia and Czechoslovakia, the announcement said.

This would reverse the procedure proposed in the recent memorandum of Andre Tardieu, French premier, suggesting a Danubian customs union to solve economic problems facing the countries of southeastern Europe. It also differs from the plans of Germany and Italy, which have suggested immediate negotiations of all nine nations.

Government officials are said to be considering again the possibility of an interview between Premier Tardieu and Prime Minister Ramsay McDonald regarding reparations, economic aid for the Danubian states, and other outstanding European problems.

Observers were agreed today that a report soon to be made by the League of Nations finance committee, recommending loans for certain of the Danubian nations, was tantamount to official approbation of the French plan for aiding those countries.

Hoover Vote Seen By Kentucky G.O.P

State Party Leader Holds Pledge Due; Says Foes for Roosevelt.

(Associated Press.)

Matt Chilton, Republican national committeeman from Kentucky, yesterday forecast his State would send an instructed delegation for President Hoover while the Democrats do similarly for Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Chilton said no stand had been taken by Republican leaders in Kentucky concerning a modification or referendum plank in the party platform. The Republican convention in Kentucky will be held late next month.

Chilton yesterday paid his respects to President Hoover, but said there was no discussion of politics during his visit at the White House.

Reed Expected to Quit Hospital in Few Days

Rochester, Minn., March 24 (A.P.).—Continuing to show improvement, former United States Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, today spent a short time out of bed.

Reed, operated on March 11 for a gall-bladder condition, was "progressing very well" and was expected to leave the hospital in a few days, his surgeon said.

LINDBERGH BOY IS DECLARED ON SHIP IN VIRGINIA

COLONEL AUTHORIZES TRIO TO PAY RANSOM

Special to The Washington Post.

Norfolk, Va., March 24.—Two personal friends of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and a third well-known Norfolk citizen were tonight confidently expecting to resume contact with the kidnapers of the famous flier's 20-month-old son within 24 hours and restore the baby immediately thereafter. Four men and two women are reported to have the child in custody on a yacht in Virginia waters, near Norfolk.

Col. Lindbergh is understood, after a trip to his Sourland Mountain estate in New Jersey by the three Norfolk men, to have authorized them to deal with the kidnapers, or whoever the present custodians of the child may be, pay the ransom or reward demanded or arrange for transfer of the money and secure possession of the baby, taken from its nursery in the Lindebrgh home on the night of March 1.

The location of the kidnapers, or custodians, of the child and the baby itself has not been definitely revealed to the Norfolk intermediaries, it is stated on reliable authority, but a yacht said to be within 30 miles in a sheltered anchorage in a tributary to Chesapeake Bay was said to be carrying the party with baby Lindbergh.

Negotiators Are Prominent.

The Norfolk men, who motored to Sourland Mountains Tuesday night and returned to Norfolk early today, are Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage, United States Navy, retired; Dean H. Dodson-Peacock, rector of Christ Episcopal Church, Norfolk, formerly dean of an Episcopal Cathedral in Mexico City, and John Hugh Curtis, head of a shipyard that makes a specialty of building and repairing gasoline-driven boats.

Admiral Burrage was in command of American naval forces in European waters when Col. Lindbergh made his famous flight to Paris, and the colonel was his guest aboard the flagship Memphis on the return trip to the United States. The friendship with the father of the kidnaped child, made then, has continued. Dean Peacock was intimately acquainted with the family of the late Senator Dwight Morrow, when the latter was Ambassador to Mexico. Mrs. Lindbergh and her parents worshipped at the cathedral of which he had charge.

Finland Issues Order Against Fascist Activity

Helsingfors, Finland, March 24 (A.P.).—Baron E. von Born, minister of interior, issued an order today prohibiting all activities of the Lapua (Fascist) organization in Finland.

A Lapuan march on the capital was organized recently, but failed when the government ordered the army to suppress it and arrested the leaders. The Lapuans had expressed dissatisfaction with the government's policy toward Communists.

HOUSE ELIMINATES SALES TAX IN REVENUE BILL, 223 TO 153; WIDE POLITICAL EFFECT SEEN

Faith of Business Men in Democratic Party Is Seen Shaken.

GARNER'S PRESTIGE SUFFERS BIG BLOW

Robinson Predicts Congress Will Have to Continue After Conventions.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

Capitol Hill yesterday wondered how long the fight over the tax bill would last, and at the same time pondered the possible political effects of yesterday's vote in the House.

Senator Joe T. Robinson, of Arkansas, Democratic leader of the Senate, predicted that Congress would have to come back here after the national political conventions in order to complete work on the tax bill.

However, Senator James E. Watson, of Indiana, the Republican leader, did not agree with him. He expressed confidence that Congress could wind up its labors before the conventions.

Both conventions will take place in Chicago, the Republican, June 14, and the Democratic, June 27.

Declares Hoover Aided.

When the tumult of the sales tax fight had subsided at the Capitol yesterday, a Republican member gave voice to this observation:

"The Democrats have given Herbert Hoover another four-year lease on the White House."

The member, as has been said, was a Republican. Therefore his observation is subject to a heavy discount.

However, there was pretty general agreement here yesterday on three things:

First, that many conservative business people, having seen the vaunted unity of the Democrats degenerate into wild revolt, must have had their faith in the party shaken.

Garner Loses Prestige.

Second, that Speaker John N. Garner, touted as a presidential dark horse, has suffered a distinct loss in prestige.

Third, that the Democrats have turned against not only their own leaders in the House, but against such party leaders as John J. Raskob and Bernard M. Baruch, who have been assuring business interests that the Democrats were not necessarily a "soak the rich" party, and that business had nothing to fear if they should take over the Government.

Some of the Democrats who crusaded against the sales tax in the House are glad, no doubt, that this third point can be recorded. In their opinion, they have upheld the traditions of Jefferson and Jackson; they have protected the "little fellow." What if some bigwigs in Wall street are disap-

China Finance Minister Escapes Death Attempt

Shanghai (Friday), March 25 (A.P.).—Another unsuccessful attempt upon the life of T. V. Soong, finance minister of China, was made today when a bomb exploded in the garden of his former home here.

Mr. Soong moved out of the house on January 23 and therefore was unaware of the explosion, but the 9-year-old daughter of his gardener was seriously injured when she picked up the bomb, the blast blowing off her arms.

Tax Program Committee Plans to Consider Today

Following defeat of the sales tax in the House yesterday Representative Charles R. Crisp (Democrat), of Georgia, acting chairman of the ways and means committee, outlined a series of taxes which the committee would consider today as a substitute program.

In general the substitute program the committee will offer will be taxes included in the Treasury Department plan which the committee rejected because, Mr. Crisp said, they were believed more objectionable than the general sales tax.

Taxes which will be considered and the revenue each is estimated to produce, as outlined by Mr. Crisp, follow:

Increase from 2 to 3 cents in first-class postage rates	$135,000,000
A tax of 1 cent a gallon on gasoline	160,000,000
A tax of 2 cents on bank checks	97,000,000
Automobile taxes, 5 per cent on passenger cars, 3 per cent on trucks and 2½ per cent on parts (imposed on prices f. o. b.)	100,000,000
Five per cent tax on retail prices of phonographs and radios	10,000,000
Increase of one-sixth in tobacco taxes	58,000,000
Stamp tax on real estate transfers	$10,000,000 to 15,000,000
Tax of 7 per cent on domestic consumption of gas and electricity	57,000,000

If all of these taxes were approved, and produced the estimated amount of revenue, they would produce from $627,000,000 to $632,000,000. As reported by the ways and means committee the general sales tax was expected to raise $595,000,000.

Committee to Meet This Morning to Draw Up New Program.

CRISP APPLAUDED, THOUGH DEFEATED

Outlines Substitute Which Would Produce More Than $627,000,000.

By J. B. McDONNELL.

The "runaway" House threw the biggest tax apple out of the ways and means committee billion dollar tax wagon yesterday when it voted to eliminate the manufacturers' sales tax by 223 to 153.

Elimination of the entire sales tax section was not formally completed, but the job will be finished today, pretty much as a formality with the exception of the paragraph providing special taxes on oil imports. There will be a fight on that.

The vote to strike the sales tax from the measure, in effect, threw the bill back into the laps of the ways and means committee which will meet at 10 o'clock this morning to devise a substitute program of taxes to provide the $595,000,000 the sales tax has been counted on to bring into the depleted National Treasury.

Amendments Voted Down.

Confident of their power to strike the entire section out of the bill, the opponents joined with the leaders in first adopting amendments which would have exempted food, clothing, medicines, farm implements and insecticides, as well as that exempting merchant vessels built with aid of Government loans. Many amendments were offered, but most were voted down. Some were accepted because the House knew it was going to strike the whole section out.

The sales tax had been sponsored by Democratic and Republican leaders and the fight against it had grown in drama and intensity which on several occasions brought about situations out of which it seemed at times that contending members would resort to physical combat.

Crisp Is Not Critical.

After the vote had been taken Representative Charles R. Crisp (Democrat), of Georgia, acting chairman of the ways and means committee, and, as such, in charge of the bill, walked down to the well of the House and said that he had been soundly beaten on every major issue and he was willing to turn the bill over to the charge of some one else. He said he had no criticism of any member. He believed each had followed his convictions.

His offer to resign managership of the bill was turned into an ovation. Members on both sides of the aisle, many of whom had a few moments before voted against the pleading of the earnest Georgian for the sales tax, rose and applauded, and there were shouts of "No," "No." It is doubtful if ever before in the history of the House a leader had been given such a sound drubbing legislatively and achieved in his defeat such a personal victory.

There was no oratorical flourish about his speech. He said he wasn't piqued. He didn't feel he was a leader who had taken umbrage, but he had tried to do what he conscientiously thought was the best thing for his country. Though he tried to disregard the applause, it drowned him out as most of the House stood on its feet and applauded. He was given another ovation as he went back to his seat at the Democratic leader's table with the statement that unless the opposition would take

MANCHURIA IS AGAIN SCENE OF WARFARE

Pro-Japanese Rule Attacked; Aid Is Asked of Nanking; Soviets Reinforced.

Nanking (Friday), March 25 (U.P.).—The center of Far Eastern warfare shifted to Manchuria again today when the rebellion of Chinese forces against the pro-Japanese government was intensified and an appeal was made to the National government of China to send a military expedition to the three eastern provinces.

Casualties were reported high in severe fighting between Chinese and Japanese troops at Suichung, in southwestern Manchuria, and other warfare in Kirin and Heilungkiang provinces to the north continued sporadic but unabated, the Chinese government was informed.

Suichung is on the Peiping-Mukden Railroad north of the Great Wall. The troops engaged in the battle were not definitely identified.

Other official advices said Chao Sin-Peh, mayor of Mukden and leader of the Manchurian independence movement, which led to establishment of the new regime of Henry Pu-Yi, under Japanese influence, had been arrested by the Japanese.

Mukden, Manchuria, March 24 (U.P.).—The Japanese military headquarters announced that the campaign against "irregulars" and bandits was being pressed today and that troops had engaged in 47 battles during February, dispersing 12,500 Chinese and killing 650.

The Nippon Dempo correspondent at Harbin reported that several divisions of the Soviet army had arrived in the Far East, and heavy guns, airplanes and tanks are en route in large numbers.

Ancient Rite Held In Vatican City

Holy Thursday Observed in St. Peter's With Wine and Water.

Vatican City, March 24 (A.P.).—Wine and water were poured on the central altar stone of St. Peter's today in the closing ceremonies of Holy Thursday.

At sundown a throng of worshippers in the Basilica saw priests carry in the wine in eight chalices, seven of crystal and one of gilded metal. The clergy then imparted a blessing with holy relics connected with Christ's passion and death. These were reputed portions of the cross, the holy veil of Veronica and the lance with which the centurian pierced Christ's side. From the moment of the "Gloria in Excelsis Deo" this morning during the masses in Rome's hundreds of churches, not a church bell has been heard. The capital of the Roman Catholic world is in silent mourning.

Drill by Polish Warships Alarms Danzig Populace

Danzig, Free State of Danzig, March 24 (A.P.).—The German population of this seaport was perturbed today at the presence of two Polish torpedo boats moored in the harbor.

The warships sent their crews ashore for drill and gun maneuvers, it was reported.

BYRNS WILL OPPOSE 11 PER CENT PAY CUT

Says Graduated Scale Is Fairest; Debate May Resume Today.

Chairman Joseph W. Byrns, of the House economy committee, will fight to defeat proposed 11 per cent cuts in Federal salaries over $1,000, when the committee resumes debate on salary slashes, probably this afternoon.

"I am for a graduated scale, as the fairest method of effecting reduction," said the House appropriations chairman. "Some members of the committee think the 11 per cent plan would net most revenue. It is too early to say just how the vote will go."

The economy committee will meet at 2 o'clock this afternoon, but Chairman Byrns said there is no agreement to take up pay cuts. It is possible decision on a salary slash bill may be further delayed, he said.

Director Herbert D. Brown, of the Bureau of Efficiency, who has been compiling pay cut data on each of the sixteen plans before the committee, said last night he has received no notice of today's economy committee meeting. It has been customary for the committee to consult him at each of its pay cut and reorganization sessions. He said it was still possible he would be called this morning.

Meanwhile, Federal retrenchment took a different tangent in the House expenditures committee, which reported out the first reorganization bill to receive committee sanction this session. The measure provides for consolidation of all Government personnel activities under a civil service administration, at an estimated annual savings of $1,000,000.

Preparing for an intensive fight against attempts to reduce pay of Federal employes, 100 union legislative representatives assembled here yesterday, at the call of President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor.

Expenditures Chairman John J. Cochran (Democrat), Missouri, sole member of the economy group to flatly oppose reductions in pay, said he had done all he could in committee to stem the tide of salary-cut demand, but thought his efforts vain.

"I would like to block a pay-cut agreement of any description, but, frankly, I don't think I have a chance," he said.

Representative Bertrand H. Snell, House Republican whip, declined to state his position on the salary-cut

League's Manchurian Body to Quit Shanghai

(Associated Press.)

The State Department was advised yesterday that the League of Nations Manchurian Commission will leave Shanghai tomorrow morning for Nanking.

It will then go to Hankow and will arrive in Peiping early in April. After a week in Peiping, the commission will proceed to Mukden and begin a general investigation of the situation in Manchuria. This is the commission to which Gen. Frank R. McCoy is attached as American representative.

Owner of 101 Ranch Routs Auctioneers With Shotgun

Mariand, Okla., March 24 (A.P.).—Col. Zack Miller, rancher and showman, grabbed a shotgun and held the fort in true pioneer Western style when the auctioneer came to the old homestead today to sell off the personal property of the famed 101 Ranch.

But after firing a shot which routed two attorneys, and barricading himself in the palatial ranch house, the elderly plainsman cooled off and went back to his sick bed. The auction sale to satisfy the claims of creditors proceeded.

For several hours Col. Miller, who founded the ranch with his two brothers, refused to permit any one to enter the ranch headquarters, known as the "White House." Later he laid the shotgun aside and permitted Bruce Potter, Kay County attorney, and some of his friends admittance.

Col. Miller explained that the shot he fired while arguing with Neal Sullivan and R. O. Wilson, attorneys for Receiver Fred C. Clarke, in charge of the sale, was merely to scare Sullivan and "see if he had a gun."

The shotgun charge was fired into the floor and neither attorney was wounded. Col. Miller, who has been seriously ill and worried by business reverses resulting in foreclosure proceedings for the ranch and the closing of the 101 Ranch Wild West Show, had left his bed to confer with the attorneys.

County Attorney Potter said Col. Miller would accompany him to Ponca City "as soon as he is physically able." The veteran cowman was in technical custody tonight at his home. Potter said he would be arraigned later on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

The pioneer's physicians attributed his action to hysteria, due to an obsession that he would be dispossessed

GANG DRIVE TO FREE CAPONE IS CHARGED

(Associated Press.)

While the Federal Government was making secret plans for putting Al Capone behind penitentiary doors, a Senate committee was told yesterday that criminal organizations in Chicago were attempting to obtain his freedom through control of public officials.

This warning came from Frank J. Loesch, president of the Chicago Crime Commission and a member of the now defunct Wickersham commission. He has been a leader in the movement to free the Illinois city from gangster rule.

Meanwhile, Sanford Bates, director of the Federal Prison Bureau, said the choice of a penitentiary for Capone would be kept secret until the Chicago gang leader begins his 11-year sentence for tax evasion.

Loesch charged the attempt to free Capone in a letter to Chairman Borah of the Senate judiciary committee which is considering the promotion to the Circuit Court of Judge James H. Wilkerson, of Chicago, who sentenced Capone.

Reply to Borah Request.

The letter was in reply to a request from Borah for proof of the assertion by Loesch and Robert Isham Randolph, chairman of Chicago's "secret six," that gangland was attempting to prevent Wilkerson's confirmation.

"It is my opinion," Loesch said, "that the combinations here now formed for getting men into public office turn very largely on the effort of the criminal organizations headed by Al Capone to control sufficient of the elected public officials to get Capone freed from the penitentiary sentences now hanging over his head, or secure reduction of the sentences."

Loesch charged that "two personal adherents of Al Capone" are members of the Illinois State Senate and that five candidates for ward committeeman from the Twenty-fifth Ward in Chicago were recently intimidated by gunmen into withdrawing to assure the election of a sixth, who is a "known partisan of Capone," he added.

"If a criminal organization controls the majority of the 50 ward committeemen, it, by virtue of the powers of the latter, practically controls all elected public officials in Cook County, including the judges."

In Jail Five Months.

Loesch said Capone had been in jail for five months pending appeal of his sentence, "but up to very recently there seemed to be no diminution in his activities, nor in the number of people who called on him, night and day."

To back up his statement that criminal organizations "are making it appear that labor is opposed to Judge Wilkerson's confirmation," Loesch said informed persons believe two-thirds of all unions in Chicago "are controlled by or pay tribute directly or indirectly to Al Capone's terroristic organizations."

Nine-tenths of the union members, he added, are law abiding citizens, but are afraid to take much part in union affairs.

"It is but simple truth," Loesch said, "to say that the honest and law-abiding citizens of Chicago look to the Senate not to weaken us here in fighting for our lives and safety from the most far reaching and powerful criminal organization which has ever afflicted this Nation.

Prejudicial Effect.

"I am not suggesting that there may not be union men honestly opposing Judge Wilkerson's confirmation, but I give it as my conviction that no matter what ground may be taken to defeat confirmation, if he fails of confirmation such fact will be claimed by the criminal organizations as a victory for them and for Capone, and will have a prejudicial effect upon every law enforcing official seeking to curb the criminal career of Al Capone."

Bates said that to disclose the Government's choice of a penitentiary for Capone would be "to defeat it purpose."

Under ordinary circumstances, Capone would go to Leavenworth. Several months ago, however, his brother Ralph was transferred from Leavenworth to McNeill's Island in order, it was said, to prevent a concentration of Capone men in a single prison.

Leavenworth, Kans., March 24 (A.P.).—Frank (The Enforcer) Nitti, a henchman of Al Capone, was released today from the Federal penitentiary here. Nitti's eighteen-month sentence for violation of the income tax laws was shortened by the customary allowance of six days a month for good behavior.

With the release of Nitti and the recent transfer of Ralph Capone to the Federal Penitentiary at McNeil Island, Wash., Sam Gusik is the sole remaining major figure of the Leavenworth "Capone colony."

The agents destroyed two 1,000-gallon vats, a large number of barrels and kegs and other paraphernalia. A quantity of alleged whisky was confiscated and held as evidence.

Estranged Wife of Carol Greeted Royally in Capital

PRINCESS HELEN (inset), estranged wife of King Carol, of Roumania; the king, and their son, Prince Michael, who himself was a king before his father returned to seize the throne.

Princess Helen, Arriving to Visit Son, Treated as Family Member.

Bucharest, Roumania, March 24 (A.P.).—Princess Helen, of Roumania, estranged wife of King Carol, came home today to see her son, Michael, and was received in a manner distinctly friendly.

It was a different homecoming from that she experienced the last time she came to the capital. Twenty-four soldiers from the king's bodyguard met her at the border with the royal salute when her private train halted there.

As she left her car Prince Michael ran across the platform with a sheaf of roses for his mother. The lady-in-waiting to the Dowager Queen Marie was close behind him and the chief of the Bucharest police was at the head of a welcoming detail.

When she got to the palace her personal standard was unfurled, a sharp contrast to the silence which greeted her the last time and the tears which marked her departure.

Helen left Roumania in 1930 after Carol, from whom she was divorced two years previously, returned to the throne.

Her brother, the former King of Greece, preceded her to Bucharest by a few days and it was reported he had interceded with the king to grant Helen a more generous financial allowance.

HOUSE COMMITTEE HEARS LIE CHARGE

(Associated Press.)

Representative Disney yesterday accused former Representative O'Connor of having told a "deliberate, dastardly lie" before the elections committee hearing a contest over the seat in the House for the First Oklahoma District.

Disney, a Democrat, was making his concluding argument before the committee when O'Connor, a Republican, interrupted his opponent's recital of votes to ask:

"That's the district in which you were a lecturer for the Ku Klux Klan, isn't it?"

"That's a deliberate, dastardly lie, and you know it to be a lie," Disney shouted. "I've never been a member of the Klan in any way, shape or form. I have always opposed it."

When O'Connor began his rebuttal, he remarked that he was "sorry this question had been brought up here." He added "the lie has been passed here, but we Oklahomans have a way of settling that in the proper time and place."

The Republican insisted that all members of the Klan were forced to deny their membership because of their oaths, "so a denial doesn't mean much to me."

The wrangle over, the committee took under consideration O'Connor's request for a recount of the ballots and Disney's argument that a recount would not be indicative of the votes because the ballots could have been tampered with in the nine days immediately following the election in November, 1930.

Tear Gas Scatters Mob in Kidnaping

State's Attorney Rescued From Attack After Case Is Dismissed.

Special to The Washington Post.

Berlin, Md., March 24.—A mob attempted to seize State's Attorney Godfrey Child, at the Atlantic Hotel here early today, but was routed after a State policeman fired two tear gas cartridges. The crowd had been angered by Justice of the Peace William J. Bratten's dismissal of kidnaping and assault charges against Robert Allen, chief of police of Ocean City, and George K. Jarvis, well known farmer.

After the preliminary hearing last night, at which Child presented the evidence against the accused men, the crowd stormed the hotel, demanding from the State's attorney the reason for the dismissal. His automobile was wrecked and a brick was hurled through a window. After Sergt. Brubaker, of the Pittsville police substation, fired the gas cartridges, the crowd broke up and Child later was escorted to his home in Pocomoke by Sheriff Wilmer S. Purnell.

The kidnaping charges had been placed by Charles W. Brown, who said he was waylaid and held for five days last week by Allen, Jarvis and two other men, and later chained to a tree in a swamp.

Captains Will Be Alert For Strange Ship in Bay

Baltimore, March 24 (A.P.).—Capt. John Delano, of the Association of Maryland Pilots, said tonight that instruction had been issued to 50 members of the association and captains of steamships operating in Chesapeake Bay between Baltimore and Norfolk to keep a sharp watch for strange craft on which the Lindbergh baby might be held by his kidnapers. The orders were issued, he said, after hearing reports the missing baby was on a boat in the bay.

Officials of the Chesapeake Steamship Co. and the Old Bay Line took similar action and ordered the masters of their boats to watch during trips up and down the bay.

NEW BILL ON SHOALS IS READY FOR HOUSE

U. S. Operation Provision Is Sustained in Committee by 1-Vote Margin.

(Associated Press.)

New legislation for leasing Muscle Shoals privately was completed yesterday for consideration in the House but only after its military committee sustained a Government-operation alternative by the narrow margin of one vote.

With this controversial point settled, the military group voted, 18 to 8, to send to the House floor a bill drafted by a special subcommittee headed by Representative Hill (Democrat), Alabama.

The full Democratic committee membership, plus Representative Kvale (Farmer-Labor), Minnesota, and Representative James, of Michigan, the ranking Republican, joined in the majority ballot to report the measure.

Chief provisions of the measure are:

A Government board of three, appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate, is created to negotiate a 50-year lease for the nitrate plants.

The lessee is limited to 8 per cent profit and is required to produce 10,000 tons of fixed nitrogen within two years and to increase production gradually to the maximum capacity of the plants.

If no lease is contracted within eighteen months, the board is directed to operate the plants. After such operation begins, however, an acceptable bid still could secure a lease.

The board would sell power to the lessee and the surplus to States, counties, municipalities and chemical plants in the Tennessee Valley with public purchasers to have the preference.

When a lease is obtained or when the board certifies to the President there is a demand for additional power, the Government would construct the $34,000,000 Cove Creek Dam.

Immigration Curb By Hoover Upheld

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover's order to reduce the number of immigration visas was vigorously defended yesterday by Secretary Doak of the Labor Department as both legal and wise.

The Secretary, whose department administers the immigration laws, answered statements credited to Representative Dickstein (Democrat), of New York, chairman of the House immigration committee, who had been quoted as saying the President's action taken in 1930 was illegal.

The President, he said, acted under authority vested in him by the immigration laws.

"The White House" and homestead site are claimed by Col. Miller and his divorced wife, while the ranch lands, comprising 110,000 acres, have been leased for a year upon court order. But the vast estate has virtually passed out of Col. Miller's hands in a foreclosure suit, scheduled for further hearing in district court at Newkirk.

Col. Miller is a familiar figure to circus crowds all over the country. He always headed the 101 Wild West Show parade, wearing a huge white sombrero and riding a milk-white horse. The show was discontinued last year after it became stranded in Washington.

TARIFF IS LOOMING AS CAMPAIGN ISSUE

(Associated Press.)

Party spokesmen laid the groundwork for making the tariff an issue in the presidential campaign yesterday as the Democrats pressed their bill, already passed by the Senate, to repeal the flexible tariff.

The measure was used as a vehicle for a spirited debate over the operation of the Hawley-Smoot tariff law by those who led the legislative battles for and against it.

The law was blamed by Senator Harrison (Democrat), Mississippi, for much of the Nation's economic trouble, while Chairman Smoot of the finance committee, coauthor of the measure, said the American protective policy must be maintained, and, if neccessary, strengthened.

Senator Cordell Hull (Democrat), Tennessee, who was a leader in the House when the present tariff law was passed, blamed the world depression on "the half insane policy of economic isolation" led by America, and called for an international conference to revise the tariff walls downward.

Hits Prosperity Claims.

Pleading for enactment of the Democratic bill, under which the President would lose his power to revise tariff rates, Harrison said it would lay the basis for "intelligent" tariff revision in the future.

He charged the Hawley-Smoot bill with bringing a "pitiful situation in our export trade" and chided Republican leaders for predicting it would result in restored prosperity.

America's exports, he said, fell from $5,128,000,000 in 1929 to $3,842,000,000 in 1930 and to $2,424,000,000 last year.

Smoot contended that more goods were being imported into this country today than under the old law and said "never before in history was tariff protection more essential to the welfare of the American people than at present."

He said the Democratic bill would destroy the usefulness of the Tariff Commission and leave the consuming public and producing public without means of emergency relief from the inequitable rates.

Republicans and Democrats twitted each other continuously across the party aisle.

Senator Moses (Republican), New Hampshire, challenged Harrison to join him in proposing a reduction in the duty on long staple cotton, a Mississippi product.

Harrison said he would agree if Moses would help to reduce the extremely high rates on manufactured products which were costing the American people millions. The Mississippian also pointed out that the Tariff Commission had reduced the rates on maple sugar and sirup produced in New Hampshire.

Harrison recalled the speech by Senator Watson, Republican leader, in 1930 predicting the bill would start the return of prosperity within 30 days and Watson replied that he made that prediction "at the end of an oration."

Meanwhile representatives of organized labor and agriculture asked the finance committee to inquire into the effects on the tariff wall of depreciated foreign currencies with a view to increasing protection against cheap commodities from abroad.

McAdoo Declares Garner Best Pick

New York, March 24 (A.P.).—William Gibbs McAdoo explained today why he favors Speaker John Garner as the Democratic presidential nominee and a Democratic committeeman from Connecticut predicted his State's sixteen votes in the convention would be for Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York. The former Secretary of the Treasury and wartime railroad administrator said he believed the Democratic party would have "its first real chance" this year to elect a President since 1916, when his father-in-law, Woodrow Wilson, was reelected.

Mr. McAdoo said he advocated the nomination of Garner for the "reasons that I know him well and believe he would make the best President." Then he added, "You never can tell who will be nominated at a Democratic convention."

He indicated he might run for the Senate himself this year.

Archibald McNeil, jr., of Bridgeport, Conn., whose father was a close friend of Gov. Roosevelt, arrived here from Albany, where he and other Connecticut Democrats visited the governor. "Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith," he said, "has many friends in Connecticut, but I do not believe their friendship for him will keep them from supporting Gov. Roosevelt."

Shooting of West Point Man Denied by Chinese

Nanking, March 24 (A.P.).—Reports that Col. Wang Ken, Chinese graduate of the United States Military Academy, had been executed for treason were denied today by Chinese military officials.

The report was that he had been court-martialed and shot for giving military information to the enemy. His superiors said today that he was still in confinement at the Kunshan headquarters and probably would be released with a reprimand.

Caldwell Still Silent On Visit to Lindbergh

Chicago, March 24 (A.P.).—Mysterious projection of H. Wallace Caldwell into the Lindbergh kidnaping case took on added interest tonight when it was learned the former president of the Chicago board of education was acting as an agent for State's Attorney John A. Swanson.

At the same time, word came from both the State's attorney's office and Caldwell that high hopes were held for the "satisfactory outcome of the mission." The nature of the "mission" referred to was shrouded in secrecy and Caldwell parried all questions with the statement that any announcement as to developments in the case must come from Col. Norman Schwarzkopf at Trenton, N. J.

Man Is Killed as Gale Hits Washington State

Seattle, Wash., March 24 (A.P.).—One man was killed today by the gale which struck widely separated sections of Washington. High winds blew down a tree at Cle Elum, sending it through the roof of a building. Roy Williams, 30, a worker on the Cle Elum dam project, asleep in the building, was killed.

At Kennewick and Pasco, on the Columbia River, a gale estimated at between 50 and 70 miles an hour smashed windows, tore out power and telephone lines and raised a cloud of dust and debris. A 41-mile-an-hour wind blew through Seattle.

2 BANKERS ATTACK GLASS CREDIT BILL

(Associated Press.)

Objections to various features of the Glass bill designed to prevent use of Federal Reserve facilities for stock speculation were expressed before a Senate committee yesterday by two Detroit bankers.

Wilson W. Mills, chairman of the board of directors of the First Wayne National Bank, of Detroit, asserted the bill contained sections which would interfere with the Government's financing and would prove "disadvantageous to banks, communities, business and the country in general."

Provisions restricting group banking drew the principal criticism of the second witness—Robert O. Lord, president of the Guardian Detroit Union Group, Inc.

At the same time, the sponsor of the measure, Senator Glass, of Virginia, reiterated his contention that its enactment is necessary to prevent "frightful abuses" which resulted in Federal Reserve funds finding their way into the "riot of stock gambling" which preceded the 1929 crash.

Says Bond Sale Perilled.

Mills contended that if the bill is enacted in its present form "the cure is going to cause another disease—and a very serious disease—in Government financing."

He held that the Government would be "greatly hampered" in disposing of its bonds by a provision which imposes a higher interest rate for fifteen-day loans from the Federal Reserve Banks to member banks on Government securities than for advances on eligible commercial paper.

Mills also differed with Glass when the veteran Virginia Democrat indicated that money borrowed under the fifteen-day provision has gone into stock-market speculation in most cases. The witness expressed the opinion that such loans are "used for many other purposes."

"Not for many other purposes," Glass replied.

Another of Mills' criticisms was that raising the reserve requirements the bill would result in banks lowering the interest rate they pay on deposits and increasing the rates paid them on commercial loans to offset the added amount placed in reserve.

Cites Mortgage "Hardship."

He also told the committee he believed restrictions on the amount of mortgages banks might hold and provisions for their periodical revaluation by representatives of the comptroller would "work a hardship."

Both Mills and Lord said they believed the bill required member banks to pay too much and Federal Reserve banks too little into the liquidating corporation fund which would be established to assure aid to depositors of closed banks. Lord said:

"The bill includes restrictions against group banking which seem to be both unnecessary and unfair, in view of the record and standing of the group banking institutions. * * *

"The existing groups have probably contributed more to the stability and safety of the smaller communities throughout this country than have the unit banks. * * *

"It seems to me especially dangerous at this time to impair by legislation banking institutions representing so great a percentage of the entire banking resources of the United States."

Bivalve King Hides Light As Abernethy Chides Press

By JOHN J. DALY

IN the great agora called Congress, Representative Abernethy, of North Carolina, whose lush lands and brackish, bayish waters are pullulating with the luscious bivalve, asked permission to speak out of order for ten minutes. The time was allotted, and he did speak, calling in stentorian tones for the attention of the Press Gallery, where the Attic scholars abound.

Said the Hon. Mr. Abernethy: "I want the attention of the press gallery up there, and I want you boys to print this all over the country. There is one man sitting up in the press gallery whom I entertained down in the basement of this House, and he ate a whole barrel of my oysters, and yesterday, if he had not been afraid of it, he would have called me a fool for being against the sales tax, and maybe I am one. Now, print that, will you? And I am going to have some more oysters herein about fifteen days, and you all come and eat your bellies full, and then print that."

* * * * *

TOO bad the revered representative of the Oysterlands rolled onward and onward, speaking for ten minutes out of order, without mentioning the name of this gentleman of the press with the gargantuan appetite for oysters. Sales tax or no sales tax, there is a front-page story—and all the boys in the Press Gallery, so busy with their Attic philosophy, missed it, completely.

There is no record of any newspaper having printed the representative's speech, though it is there in the Congressional Record, and is here reproduced verbatim, for the edification of the masses. Nor did any fellow member of the House stop Mr. Abernethy to ask the name of the man who ate the barrel of oysters.

The representative went on to other subjects; the time had come to talk of many things—of ships, and shoes, and sales, and tax, and cabbages and kings. So the newspaperman who ate the barrel of oysters was left unknown to fame. Unlike the daring youth who fired the Ephesian dome, he did not advertise, but hid his genius under a barrel, as it were.

That man, as most Washington correspondents have, probably has a by-line. What he deserves is a headline.

* * * * *

IN a day when the circuses, and the vaudeville stage are featuring freaks—and all of them getting good money—the man who can eat a barrel of oysters need not confine his activities to the basement of the Capitol. There is a larger stage awaiting him. Nor need he depend on the casual invitation of representatives who come from the Tidewater country. The world is his oyster. He can go on tour, as any great artist tours, eating oysters as he goes, and demonstrating to a delighted Nation that all glory did not perish with the Greeks, nor all oyster-eaters with the ancient inhabitants of Attica.

The failure of Mr. Abernethy to name this ultimate consumer is one of the great lapses of history. The world will little heed what Mr. Abernethy said, but it will not cease to wonder at what his hero did; for actions speak louder than words.

The name, Mr. Abernethy; the name!

CHIHUAHUA TO CLOSE GAMBLING QUARTERS

Strict Vigilance Is Ordered Over Cabarets, Saloons and Other Resorts.

Mexico City, March 24 (A.P.).—Word was received here today that all gambling quarters in Chihuahua, among them the Casina Turista in Juarez, across the border from El Paso, Tex., will be closed as the result of a recent visit by the secretary of the interior, Juan Jose Rios.

Gen. Rios ordered the strictest vigilance over cabarets, saloons and similar resorts to prevent "law violations or scandal."

Under federal law gambling is outlawed in Mexico and all gambling houses in the federal district, where Mexico City is located, have been closed and kept closed. Gambling is legal, however, in some states, and much confusion has existed in recent years because of the shift from state to federal regulation and back again.

In some states gambling concessions have been granted and respected, as gaming has been permitted in Lower California, a territory under the federal government.

Today's reports indicated that the closing regulation would be applied first to unlicensed gambling houses along the American border of Chihuahua.

Virgin Isles Bank Quiz Under Way.

St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, March 24 (U.P.).—An investigation into every phase of banking activity on the Virgin Islands to determine if there is sufficient business to induce an American bank to establish a branch here is under way, following the arrival of M. N. Shronck and O. T. Jones, Chicago bank experts. The services of the two men were secured by the Treasury Department at Washington because the National Bank of the Danish West Indies will cease operations here when its present charter expires, in 1934, leaving the islands without banking facilities. Gov. Paul M. Pearson is now in Washington urging the establishment of an American banking institution to take the place of the withdrawing bank.

Cubans Want Sugar Quota Raised.

Havana, Cuba, March 24 (A.P.).—The Cuban Sugar Institute today voted, 4 to 3, to ask President Machado for restriction of Cuba's 1932 sugar production to 2,700,000 tons, plus any sugar the mills may have made since grinding started January 15, over the quotas to be assigned them. The decision was communicated to the International Sugar Council meeting in Paris, which asked Sunday that Cuba's output be limited to 2,500,000 in exchange for a guarantee that Java's 1932 exports would not exceed 1,500,000 tons.

Dyott Ready to Seek Fawcett.

New York, March 24 (A.P.).—Spurred by reports that the missing explorer, Col. P. H. Fawcett, is alive and the captive of Brazilian Indians, George M. Dyott, who led an expedition in search of Fawcett in 1928, is ready to organize another to penetrate the unknown heart of South America. Dyott was convinced at the end of his quest that Fawcett, his son, Jack, and Raleigh Rimell had been killed by Indians in the jungle in 1925. Now he is not sure, but he said he never had heard of a white man being held captive by Brazil tribes for any reason except to be killed.

New Brazilian Oil Field Found.

Maceio, Brazil, March 24 (A.P.).—An oil well with a reported capacity of 15,000 barrels daily has been brought in a few miles from this city, the capital of the State of Alagaos, stirring up much excitement. A Mexican technician, Dr. Feline Benito Romero, said huge oil deposits may exist in the area.

U. S. Woman to Board Zeppelin.

Rio de Janeiro, March 24 (A.P.).—Mrs. Erla Parker, an American who left the liner Carinthia here for a trip to Germany on the Graf Zeppelin, went to Pernambuco today to board the German dirigible, which will leave on its return flight to Friedrichshafen at midnight tomorrow.

Woman Kills Self By 5-Story Jump

New York, March 24 (A.P.).—Miss Laura Anderson, 23, former actress, died today after a suicide jump from the fifth floor apartment of Philip S. P. Randolph, jr., brother-in-law of Secretary of the Treasury Ogden L. Mills.

Mr. Randolph, broker and sportsman, who left his Ninetieth street home several hours before the death leap, was interviewed on his arrival at Pinehurst, N. C., but refused to comment. He cancelled his entry in the North and South Tournament there.

Miss Anderson, whose legal name was Irene Wilson, was quoted by Lieut. John Shield as saying when she recovered consciousness for a brief time: "Mr. Randolph's gone away and he's not coming back." The butler of Mr. Randolph's apartment told police he was not at the apartment when the girl arrived there last night and was unable to explain how she gained admittance.

Mother Mary Alice, of St. Francis' Hospital, said Miss Booker died as she had faced her injuries—smiling and conscious. Next Monday would have been Anne's twenty-third birthday.

RIOTS AND FIRES HIT MINE STRIKE REGION

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., March 24 (U.P.). Riots, incendiary fires, fist fights, stonings and general disorders marked the eleventh day of the insurgent strike of anthracite miners in Pennsylvania.

While the number of pickets in the walk-out materially lessened in number, the ardor of those on duty increased and force was used in an effort to keep men away from the pits.

A general riot, with 500 men participating, ensued at Taylor when miners willing to work refused to heed the command of pickets to return to their homes. Chief of Police James Morris was severely beaten and State police were called to restore order.

Two Taylor pickets, James Gurnak and Michael Keppick, were sent to jail for 30 days when they were found to be carrying meathooks and blackjacks.

Second Riot Starts.

At Ringtown a second riot was caused when strikers stoned men who reported for work at the Kehley Run Colliery. Windshields of automobiles were broken, fenders and bodies of cars dented and fist fights developed.

Again State troopers, swinging riot clubs, dispersed them. Five leaders of the disturbance were arrested and held on charges of inciting a riot. State officers planned to press the charges against the men.

Previous to the riot at Kehley Run, State police had arrested five pickets there on disorderly conduct charges.

Pickets Arrested.

Five pickets were arrested at Scranton for disorderly conduct and five others arrested near Scranton on similar charges.

A street car carrying 100 miners to the Locust Gap Mine near Ashland was derailed when strikers placed stones on the tracks. The car left the rails and plunged into soft mud.

Fist fights were numerous between pickets and miners at Ashley when workers entered the Maxwell Colliery. State police arrested four pickets for rough tactics.

A fire at Dickson City, blamed as incendiary because of friction there between strikers and union sympathizers, damaged a church and three residences.

Pinchot Is Silent.

Shamokin, Pa., March 24 (A.P.).—John Dusick, of this city, leader of strikers in District 9, announced today he had asked Gov. Gifford Pinchot to send a commission into the anthracite region of Pennsylvania to investigate causes of the insurgent mine strike. He said the governor gave him no answer. The strike is nearing the end of its second week.

Columbus, Ohio, March 24 (A.P.).—Miners, operators and State officials adopted an attitude of watchful waiting tonight as the eighth week of a wage protest strike in Southern Ohio coal fields drew to a close.

With the announcement that officials had decided against immediate use of troops in handling the situation arising from recent disorders in the Hocking Valley and Sunday Creek districts, peace settled over the strike zone.

$00 to Return to Tin Mill Work.

Charleroi, Pa., March 24 (A.P.).—The Monessen tin mill of the American Sheet & Tin Plate Co. will resume operation April 4, giving work to 800 men.

A series of threatening letters received by prominent persons in Washington recently has stirred the Capital. Willmott Lewis, jr., upper left, has been threatened in one of the series of letters. In the center is a picture of the letter received by his mother, Lady Lewis. At the upper right is Mrs. Alice Longworth, who was directed to turn over $1,500 to the author of another letter. At lower left is Lady Lewis and Sir Willmott Lewis, correspondent for the London Times, parents of the threatened child. At right are Ben Lyon and his wife, Bebe Daniels, motion picture stars, who received one of the letters while on a visit to Washington.

7 IN ALABAMA LOSE HIGH COURT APPEAL

Scottsboro Cases Likely to Go to U. S. Tribunal; One Gets New Trial.

Montgomery, Ala., March 24 (A.P.). Seven of the eight Negroes convicted at Scottsboro last April of attacking two white girls aboard a freight train advanced one step nearer the electric chair today as the Alabama Supreme Court affirmed their death sentences, but defense counsel announced the case would be appealed to the United States Supreme Court, if necessary.

The eighth Negro, Eugene Williams, was granted a new trial on the defense contention that he was only 16 years of age.

The sentences were confirmed in a 6-to-1 opinion of the court. The court set May 13, a Friday, as the execution date.

In upholding the seven death sentences, the supreme court overrode defense contentions that sentiment in Scottsboro was so inflamed a change of venue should have been granted; that the presence of a military guard at the trial tended to influence the jurors; that a demonstration in the courtroom over the first conviction influenced the other verdicts, and that the trials were too swift to permit preparation of a defense.

George W. Chamlee, of Chattanooga, chief of defense counsel, was informed there of the supreme court ruling. He dispatched a petition for a rehearing to the Alabama court, and said if it was denied he would carry the case to the United States Supreme Court.

The Negroes whose sentences were upheld are Ozie Powell, William Roberson, Andy Wright, Ollin Montgomery, Heywood Patterson, Charlie Weems and Clarence Norris.

Chief Justice John C. Anderson who dissented today from the findings of the rest of the court, denounced efforts to "intimidate" the justices. He said they had been deluged with messages containing demands that the Negroes be freed, some of them even threatening the jurists.

ARREST IS EXPECTED SOON IN LONGWORTH THREAT CASE

The plan was adhered to by the agent of Mrs. Longworth, although Inspector Burke would not say whether the agent was a policeman, but no signal was given by the extortionist and no attempt was made to place the money. Subsequently, Inspector Burke said, a second note was delivered at the Longworth home by a messenger. This missive also contained directions for the delivery of the money. These, too, were followed, but there was no sign of the letter writer nor of any agent he might have designated.

The first letter to the Lewis family was delivered on Monday morning. It was addressed to Mr. and Mrs. Willmott Lewis. It read: "If you are interested in the safety of your son, do what you're instructed in the next note. Say nothing of having received this note under penalty of ???"

Guard Is Assigned.

Sir Willmott immediately communicated with Gen. Glassford and Detective Sergts. Floyd Truscott and A. D. Mansfield were assigned to the case. Detectives N. G. Thayer, C. A. Schreyer and E. J. Maghan were assigned to a 24-hour guard at the Lewis home.

On Tuesday night a man called the Lewis home, and apparently believing that he was talking with Lady Lewis, asked if they had received his first note. The maid replied that she hadn't.

Yesterday morning, according to Inspector Burke, another letter was received at the Lewis home. This one was addressed to "Mrs. Willmott Lewis." It was postmarked in the District, and the stamp was canceled at 3:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. The envelope was of cheap paper.

Text of Letter.

The paper on which the letter was typed was also of cheap quality and bore no water-mark. It read:

"Mrs. Lewis. You will pay us $1,500 in small bills after you receive a next & last note telling how it must be sent are it must be placed.

"If you fail to do as we say you and your whole family will be in danger and your son is or will be our special target you were not home last night at 10 W E ???"

At a late hour last night nothing further had been heard from the letter writer. An attempt was made on Tuesday night to trace the telephone call; but it was unsuccessful, Inspector Burke said. Another source at police headquarters said the telephone call had been traced to a place in the First Precinct, which is in the business section of the city. This call, it was reported, had been placed from a private telephone.

The points of similarity between the Longworth and Lewis cases are the amounts involved, each demanded $1,500; and in the typing. The paper on which the demands were made are dissimilar. Both of the Lewis notes were signed, "? ? ?." The Longworth notes were unsigned.

In the case of Ben Lyon and the reported Mr. Hillyer case, the letter writer demanded that $500 be sent to "A. A. Carpenter," in care of general delivery at the Washington Postoffice. The general delivery window was placed under guard and dummy letters were mailed. All were uncalled for.

Inspector Burke said the police guard will remain at the Lewis home until such time "as we consider it advissble to remove." To date, Inspector Burke said, no attempt has been made to carry out any of the threats made in the letters.

"The letters to the banker and to Lyons," Inspector Burke said, "I believe are just the work of a nut, who would get a great kick out of reading the headlines and saying, 'look what I did.'" The letters to the Lewis home, Inspector Burke is regarding with more seriousness, although he is doubtful that any attempt will be made to carry out the threats.

Gen. Glassford said he had talked with Mrs. Longworth on Tuesday. He believes that all the letters are the work of cranks whose imaginations have been kindled by the publicity given to the Lindbergh case.

Glassford Warned.

"The professional kidnaper," Inspector Burke said, "usually acts first and asks afterward." That is his reason for believing that no attempts will be made to harm any recipients of the letters. Gen. Glassford concurs in this belief.

In the past few weeks, Inspector Burke said, about a dozen menacing letters have been received by prominent people, all of which were obviously the work of mentally unbalanced people.

Gen. Glassford received one on February 9, which read:

"My Pal Chef Glassford—You Will be in a box if you don't give up. War against Rat Police. Your Pal. Auto Gunman."

LINDBERGH BOY HELD ON YACHT; IS REPORT

Mr. Curtis was first approached early this week by a former customer, said to have been a rumrunner in days gone by, according to information available here, apparently from a reliable source, and asked if he could secure the cooperation of two or three Norfolk citizens who could approach Col. Lindbergh without publicity and who could be trusted not to "tip off" the police. The shipyard man recalled the acquaintanceship of Admiral Burrage and Dean Peacock with the flier, and broached the subject to them.

Arranged for Conference.

As a result of conversations said to have been participated in by two men, whose identity is not revealed but who gave every evidence of reliability, the naval officer, the rector and Mr. Curtis arranged for the conference with the Lindberghs. What transpired there is closely guarded, but the Norfolk men hurried back to Norfolk by motor, arriving here before daybreak today.

So far as could be ascertained, the Norfolk men discussed the subject of the return of the child only with the Lindberghs, and did not confer with Col. Schwartzkopf, head of the New Jersey police, at Hopewell.

It was said that the agreement between the Norfolk men and the gobetweens for the kidnaping band precluded any contact with police or Federal officials, and the restriction was rigidly adhered to by the citizen-intermediaries.

One theory of the reasons for the contact made through Norfolk by the kidnapers, if the clew should develop, the Norfolk Ledger Dispatch said today, is that the abductors did not dare to arrange the return through New York, being in fear of the gangsters of that city for two reasons:

First—The danger of being "knocked off," if they dealt with the underworld characters named by Col Lindbergh to act for him.

Second—That New York gangsters would demand too great a "split" of the ransom or reward for the return of the child.

Norfolk, Va., March 24 (A.P.).—The Rev. Dodson-Peacock, of Norfolk, said tonight that he and two other Norfolk residents are acting with the authorization of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh as intermediaries for the return of the kidnaped Lindbergh baby.

"The baby was reported safe and well at the time (March 9) when we were approached to serve as intermediaries," Dean Peacock said. "We do not know, however, where the baby is.

"We believe the person who saw us is acting in good faith," the minister continued. "We are a little bit afraid that this publicity will complicate matters, but still we are very optimistic and we think the negotiations will move rapidly."

Hopewell, N. J., March 24 (A.P.).—Efforts of three Norfolk, Va., citizens to return the kidnaped Lindbergh baby attracted public interest tonight when police modified an early statement labeling the activity in the South without foundation.

IRELAND PREPARING ANSWER TO BRITAIN

Threat of Violence in Easter March Causes Concern for De Valera Rule.

Dublin, March 24 (U.P.).—The Free State government tonight began drafting a reply to Great Britain's note upholding the oath to the king and the land annuity payments while the Irish republican army called for the nation to unite next Sunday in a gigantic demonstration commemorating the Easter rebellion.

Both the quarrel with Great Britain and the threat of violence in the Easter demonstrations caused concern for the new government of President Eamon de Valera.

The government was surprised by the British reply to De Valera's declarations that the oath to King George would be abolished and that the land annuities usually paid Britain would be withheld. Nevertheless, the republican leaders were unshaken in their determination to proceed along the course laid down in their election campaign and approved by the voters.

Threat Not Included.

It was understood that the British note was a comprehensive statement of England's position on the oath and the land annuities, but it did not carry any threat or hint of the measures to be taken if the Free State carries out its policy.

The British government declined to publish the note, but it was learned that it contended that Articles I, II, III and IV of the Anglo-Irish treaty of 1921 put the question of the oath as an integral part of the treaty, without any doubt in the matter despite De Valera's contention to the contrary.

The British government took the position that Articles I, II and III clearly show that the Free State is in the same constitutional position as Canada.

It was understood that the note also said Article I of the financial settlement of 1926 contains a solemn undertaking by the Free State to pay the land annuities in full. It also pointed out that later the Free State attorney general and the judicial committee to which the attorney general referred the question, declared the Free State bound both in law and equity to continue full payment.

To Be Sent Tomorrow.

The government's reply is scheduled for dispatch Saturday.

Meanwhile, it was learned that De Valera does not intend to summon the Dail (lower house) before its scheduled meeting April 20, when legislation to abolish the oath will be instituted. The executive council acted today to impose an emergency tariff of 33 1-3 per cent on certain classes of agricultural machinery, effective at midnight Friday. The imperial preference rate will be 25 per cent.

London, March 24 (A.P.).—Growing tension between England and Ireland has cast gloom, in political circles at any rate, over the first great public holiday of the year, which began tonight and, for many persons, will last until Tuesday morning.

Partly on account of the Irish situation, Prime Minister MacDonald will not go to Lossiemouth for Easter, but will remain close to London in case of sudden developments. No special cabinet meetings are planned, however.

Roosevelt's Name Filed For West Virginia Vote

Charleston, W. Va., March 24 (A.P.). The certificate of candidacy of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York for the Democratic presidential nomination in the West Virginia preferential primary May 10 was filed today with the secretary of state.

He will oppose Gov. William H. (Alfalfa Bill) Murray of Oklahoma, who already has filed. Delegates to national conventions are not bound by the results of a preferential primary in this State.

WRECKAGE IN STORM SECTOR IS SURVEYED

Governmental and Private Agencies Aid Rebuilding; Victims Are Buried.

Birmingham, Ala., March 24 (A.P.). With most of the 359 dead buried and hundreds of injured receiving treatment, Government agencies and private citizens joined hands with the Red Cross today in the task of rehabilitating the areas slashed by Monday night's tornadoes.

For the first time since the vicious winds cut their paths of destruction across Alabama, Georgia, Tennessee, Kentucky and South Carolina, there was time to begin an accounting of the physical damage wrought. The surveys showed a picture of desolation around the storm centers, with estimates of loss jumping into millions of dollars.

Alabama Center of Relief.

Alabama, where there were 298 known dead, was the center of relief activity, with another concentration in the ravaged district of North Georgia. That State counted 38 dead. Pulaski and nearby areas in Tennessee, where eighteen were killed, also were being surveyed. Three were killed in South Carolina and two in Kentucky.

Gov. B. M. Miller of Alabama, making his own investigation of the destruction and suffering in this State, pushed through the wind-torn districts while two national guard planes from Montgomery flew from one storm center to another, gathering data on the extent of relief equired.

Stone J. Crane, general field representative of the Red Cross, described deplorable conditions upon his return to Atlanta after a survey through Madison and Clark Counties, in Georgia. We found 56 houses demolished and 39 partially wrecked in a strip approximately 10 miles long and 400 yards wide.

Seek to Halt Disease.

Physicians, State health department forces and Red Cross workers have set up headquarters in the various storm centers, as well as refugee concentration camps to prevent the spread of disease. Alabama general headquarters was established here and eight substations were authorized. Comer and Colbert were selected for centers of Red Cross activity in Georgia. The survey in the Cartersville area of that State is not yet complete.

One of the major problems presented by the disaster is housing for the homeless, with conservative estimates of their number ranging from 7,000 upward in Alabama alone. A majority are farmers, anxious to return to their lands and prepare for their crops. Vacant buildings, lodge halls and churches were taken over as temporary quarters. Medical and sanitation agencies were under the general direction of Dr. William de Kleine, of the Red Cross.

Retail Price Rise In Gasoline Seen

Predictions Are Result of Further Increases in Wholesale Cost.

Tulsa, Okla., March 24 (A.P.).—Increased gasoline prices were predicted freely today as additional companies followed the example of the Continental Oil Co., which last night boosted crude oil quotations to the $1 mark.

The new price, effective in the midcontinent area, boosts present quotations for crude 15 cents a barrel. A top of $1 a barrel will be paid, effective April 1, for high-test oil. Sinclair-Prairie was the first of the larger independents to meet the Continental advance. Barnsdall offices later announced that company would join in the increase.

The Continental announcement and subsequent reports from other companies were received with enthusiasm here, where many oil companies have operating headquarters. It was agreed generally that an advance in gasoline prices is imminent.

$16,800,000 Is Listed For Rail Improvements

St. Louis, March 24 (A.P.).—A loan obtained from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and the reduction in labor expenditures growing out of the recent wage reduction agreement, will enable the Wabash Railroad to spend $16,800,000 for maintenance, additions and betterments to the property, it was announced by the road's receivers today.

Walter S. Franklin, a receiver, said the program calls for the laying of 70 miles of rail, the use of 600,000 ties, 410,000 yards of additional ballast and the maintenance of equipment. The locomotive shops at Decatur will reopen March 26, he said, and 1,100 men will be employed.

ROOSEVELT'S LEAD GROWS IN GEORGIA

Every County in State Was Carried by New Yorker in Primary Vote.

Atlanta, Ga., March 24 (A.P.).—The landslide for Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt in yesterday's presidential preference primary in Georgia became more impressive today as additional returns showed he carried each of the 159 counties in the State and increased his tremendous lead in popular votes.

The governor, on the basis of incomplete, but decisive returns from each county, polled 58,237 popular votes to 7,184 for Judge G. H. Howard, of Atlanta, who sought Georgia's 28 votes in the Democratic national convention for Speaker John N. Garner.

Under Georgia's unusual primary system, whereby the county is the unit, and not the popular vote of the State as a whole, every county in the State will instruct its delegaes to the State Democratic convention here April 6 to indorse Roosevelt for the Democratic presidential nomination. At this convention Georgia's 28 delegates to the Chicago convention will be chosen, and instructed to seek the nomination of the New York Governor.

In Fulton County, where Howard is a jurge of the Fulton Superior Court, and where he must run for reelection next fall if he wishes to remain in his office, the vote was, Roosevelt, 5,203; Howard, 1,688.

In Warm Springs, where the governor founded the Warm Springs Foundation for the treatment of persons suffering from after-effects of infantile paralysis, Roosevelt received 218 votes and Howard 1.

The governor maintains a vacation residence there. Meriwether County, in which Warm Springs is located, gave Roosevelt 2,175 votes and Howard 34.

Hoover Told of Progress In Record Vote Drive

(Associated Press.)

Harlan Miller, of Des Moines, chairman of the board of the United States Junior Chamber of Commerce, said yesterday he had reported progress to President Hoover in a campaign to bring out 50,000,000 votes in the coming presidential campaign, a new record.

Miller was accompanied by George Olmsted, of Des Moines, president of the Junior Chamber. Both said the President expressed interest in the campaign.

Senate Body to Report Veteran Bonus Loan Bill

(Associated Press.)

The Senate finance committee voted yesterday to report the Barkley bill making loans to veterans on their bonus insurance certificates immediately available.

The present law requires that the certificates shall have been held for two years by a veteran before he can obtain the loan. Senator Barkley (Democrat), of New York, sponsored the measure, which was favored by a vote of 6 to 5.

Senate Group Approves Tobacco for Veterans

(Associated Press.)

The Senate finance committee reported favorably yesterday on a bill by Republican leader Watson to provide tobacco for veterans in Federal homes and hospitals.

Those receiving monetary benefits along with care or treatment would not be eligible. The funds would be supplied by the Veterans' Administration.

Reorganization Bills Reintroduced in Senate

(Associated Press.)

Legislation giving to the President authority to reorganize the Government was introduced yesterday by Senator Vandenberg, of Michigan, an administration Republican.

At the same time Senator King (Democrat), Utah, offered a bill to abolish the Shipping Board and the Emergency Fleet Corporation and transfer their functions to the Commerce Department. The Senate has twice refused to extend this authority to the President.

Harris Taken Home From Hospital.

(Associated Press.)

Senator Harris, of Georgia, was taken to his Washington residence in an ambulance yesterday from Georgetown Hospital, where he was operated upon recently for a bladder ailment. He is in a weakened condition and will be confined to his bed for several days, but physicians said he is doing as well as can be expected and showed no ill effects from the transfer.

SENATOR MILLARD E. TYDINGS.

INTO his political career Senator Millard E. Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, has carried some of the courage and boldness that won for him medals in warfare.

Tydings plunged into the World War the day this country entered it. Then 28, he is now 42. In France one day, while he was leading his men along a road, the outfit was ambushed by a German machine gun. Lieut. Col. Tydings was on a horse. Dismounting, he stormed the machine gun nest, silenced the guns, and captured the gunners. For that he was given the Distinguished Service Cross.

After the war, Tydings served in the Maryland State Legislature. In 1923 he got into the national political picture, being elected to the House of Representatives. He had hardly learned the geography of the Capitol when he did one of those bold, audacious things that makes his career so refreshing. He decided to elevate himself to the Senate. The man whose seat he wanted was Senator O. E. Weller, a Republican, and a power in the State.

When the votes were counted it was seen that Tydings had beaten Weller by a majority of nearly 55,000. That was in 1926.

In the last five years or more Tydings has maintained his reputation for courage. When former Senator Tom Heflin, of Alabama, was battling the Pope—and thereby, in the opinion of many people, making the Senate look cheap—Tydings was one of the few senators who dared challenge his statements.

There is no wet "bloc" in the Senate such as there is in the House. However, if there were, Tydings undoubtedly would be the leader of the Democratic part of it.

Although he is a bachelor and, therefore, much sought after in social Washington, Tydings sticks close to his apartment most of the time, poring over the next day's work. For relaxation he paints. E. T. F.

Senate Dry and Wet Chiefs Agree on Prohibition Vote

(Associated Press.)

Senate dry and wet leaders reached an informal understanding yesterday for votes at this session on prohibition change proposals.

Senator Blaine (Republican), Wisconsin, announced he would call hearings by his judiciary subcommittee during the next month on a batch of resolutions for repeal and modification of the eighteenth amendment.

Chairman Norris, of the judiciary committee, an ardent prohibitionist, said he was willing to have the committee send a resolution to the Senate, even with an adverse report, in order to permit a roll call.

Senator Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, who submitted a petition to the Senate with 25 names asking the judiciary committee to act, indicated after conferences with Senator Blaine that he would not press for a motion to discharge the committee on March 30, as he had intended.

It is known that the antiprohibition forces were concerned over the Tydings petition, and preferred to have a direct vote on prohibition rather than on the indirect issue of discharging a committee.

Meanwhile, Senator Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, expressed confidence that the manufacturers committee had a majority in favor of his bill to authorize 4 per cent beer. He said a poll of the committee showed it to stand 6 to 6, with one member doubtful.

Mail Fraud Is Laid To Pipe Line Chiefs

Indictment Says Backing of Missouri-Kansas Was Misrepresented.

Chicago, March 24 (A.P.).—Mail fraud indictments against Frank P. Parish, young millionaire executive of the New-Born Era of Pipe Lines, and three fellow officers rose today out of the wreckage of the Missouri-Kansas Pipe Line Co. they had built.

A Federal grand jury returned indictments charging in 49 counts that they used the mails to further a scheme to defraud investors in the company's stock.

At the height of its boom just two years ago Missouri-Kansas stock sold as high as $36. Today, with the company in receivership under Delaware courts, the stock was quoted at 25 cents a share.

The grand jury held that the youthful president—he will be 36 next July—and his staff misrepresented the backing of their company, paid stock dividends although earnings warranted none whatever, falsely represented the market price as a true reflection of the value of their property, and spent $35,000,000 in supporting the market of the stock while it advanced steadily from $20 to $36 a share from January 1 to June 16, 1930.

George J. Altman, Inventor, Dies.

Swansea, Mass., March 24 (A.P.). George J. Altman, 70, widely known inventor of steam, marine and gasoline engines, died during the night. He was the builder of the first gasoline propelled motor carriage in New England and the builder of the second motor used for aeronautical purposes in the country. He also was credited with having invented the steam turbine.

WHEELER HAS LOAN BILL FOR FARMERS

Urges Relief Similar to Act of Finance Corporation; Says West Is in Revolt.

New York, March 24 (A.P.).—Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, declaring that "the people of the Middle West are on the verge of revolt," announced today he will introduce in Congress within the next few days a farmers' reconstruction bill parallel to the measure recently enacted for the benefit of financial institutions.

"I don't see," he said, "how there can be much of a fight against it, because it contains almost identically the same provisions the administration has made in its own bill for the relief of the financial institutions."

"Something has got to be done," said the Democratic senator from Montana, "to refinance the farmers. Otherwise they will lose their farms and move to the cities, thereby increasing the unemployment."

Discussing the proposed sales tax, he said:

"You can't take any more away from the worker and the farmer than has already been taken. The people of the Middle West are on the verge of revolt now. If you want to add fuel to the flames, pass the sales tax."

Senator Wheeler made his announcement at the headquarters of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt's preconvention campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination. He launched the Roosevelt boom himself, two years ago at a Jefferson Day dinner in New York.

"My bill," he said, "will provide for loans to farmers, so they can save their farms, at the same interest rate now charged by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to financial institutions.

"The general feeling in the Northwest and the Middle West is that the administration's relief measures adopted by Congress have not been of any benefit to the small business man or to the laboring man or the farmer."

President Grants Ohio Right to U. S. Tax File

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover yesterday signed an executive order opening Federal income tax books to Ohio tax officials. The request was made some time ago by Robert A. Taft, chairman of the tax committee set up by Gov. White to study tax problems.

In States that have income tax laws the Federal books are automatically open for study. Ohio does not tax income, and the special executive order was necessary for officials of that State to check returns made by citizens to the State against the Federal returns.

Compromise Deadline Is Today in Bay State

Boston, March 24 (A.P.).—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt, aspirant for the Democratic presidential nomination, and Frank J. Donahue, Massachusetts Democratic State chairman and supporter of Alfred E. Smith, both disclaimed responsibility today for failure of their forces to effect a compromise before the impending Massachusetts primary fight for national convention delegates.

The declarations came as—with Smith and Roosevelt slates entered for the primary—the time for filing withdrawals and the deadline for any compromise—tomorrow at 5 p. m.—drew near. There was no indication that such action by either side would be taken.

HIGH COURT UPHOLDS GLOTH ON ALIMONY

Arlington Official Assured Chance to Prove Claims on Payments.

Richmond, Va., March 24 (A.P.).—The Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals today assured William C. Gloth, Commonwealth's attorney of Arlington County, an opportunity to prove that he has made certain payments to his divorced wife which should be credited against past due alimony.

The latest court episode in the marital rift of the Gloths came on an appeal by the former Virginia football star from a ruling by the Arlington Circuit Court that he could not proceed toward a final divorce decree until he had paid all sums due as alimony. Gloth contended certain payments alleged to have been made should have been credited and the Supreme Court, in remanding the case for trial, agreed with his contention, if the facts are as he alleges.

The court previously had held Gloth in contempt for failure to pay alimony. The supreme court remanded the case to give the Commonwealth's attorney an opportunity to purge himself of contempt. He filed a petition in the Arlington court setting forth the payments alleged to have been made and praying to be purged of the contempt judgment. Mrs. Marjorie Gloth objected on the grounds that payment of all sums past due was a prerequisite to filing the petition, and the Arlington court sustained the objection.

The supreme court, in remanding the case the second time, said its original ruling was that the lower court should refuse to proceed toward a final divorce decree until Gloth had paid such sums as the court should require after a hearing. If the payments alleged by Gloth are proved, the supreme court held, he is entitled to credit for them in the determination of the amount he is in default.

The court handed down 39 opinions, and refused one writ of error. Today was the first opinion day of the current session, which has been in progress about two weeks.

BYRNS WILL OPPOSE 11 PER CENT PAY CUT

issue. Informed that Democratic Whip Henry T. Rainey thought he could muster a majority of Democrats for a pay-cut measure, Representative Snell said he would make no such prediction regarding his own party.

Representative William P. Holaday (Republican), Illinois, member of the District appropriations subcommittee, said he would oppose any bill for reduction in salaries under $2,000. He thinks, instead, the House should go Senator Kenneth McKellar one better, and order a 20 per cent cut in appropriation bills under budget estimates.

The McKellar resolution adopted by the Senate would cut Interior and State, Justice, Commerce and Labor bills 10 per cent under House figures. Representative Holaday estimated his proposal would save $510,000,000. The McKellar savings estimate for all departments was $250,000,000.

Chairman Mary T. Norton, of the House District committee, yesterday went on record as vigorously opposed to salary reductions of any kind. Like Representative Fiorello H. LaGuardia (Republican), New York, she predicted defeat for any bill brought out by the economy committee. She echoed warnings that a Government sanctioned salary slash would signalize widespread business wage cuts, and strike an all but fatal blow at buying power.

Says Balancing Not Necessary.

Following a sales tax speech in which he declared such a levy would never balance the budget, Representative Byrns said the same statement went for pay cuts. That does not mean he will not exert every effort to reduce expenditures of every sort, Mr. Byrns said, however. In his sales tax speech, the appropriations chairman said it is not necessary to balance the budget.

Action of the expenditures committee in voting to favorably report the Cochran personnel consolidation bill was a victory for the expenditures chairman, who has fought energetically to force consolidation legislation through his group since the opening of the session.

Three times he met a reversal when his proposal to merge War and Navy Departments into a Department of National Defense failed to pass the committee.

A subcommittee now has it in hand, and there appears no prospect of an early vote. Next he sought consolidation of all Federal construction activities under an Administration of Public Works. Department heads raised objections likewise to features of this bill. Now it, too, is in subcommittee undergoing redrafting.

The personnel consolidation bill approved yesterday would authorize the President "in his discretion" to coordinate and consolidate related activities of the Civil Service Commission, the Personnel Classification Board, the Bureau of Efficiency and that part of the Veterans' Administration which has to do with civil retirement.

The administration would be placed under a Civil Service administrator, drawing $10,000 a year. The principal saving would be in high-salaried personnel now heading the individual units. Civil Service Commissioner Thomas Campbell estimated the saving at $450,000, while Chairman Cochran's estimate was more than twice that figure.

Green Decries Pay Cut Plans.

Addressing the assembled union legislative representatives, President Green yesterday denounced the pay cut proposals as efforts to reduce the remuneration not only of Government employes but of all workers. He said the federation will throw the full force of its organization against the "attempt to reduce the American standard of living."

The "cry for maintaining the standard of living" which was raised when the Hawley-Smoot tariff bill was under consideration should be applied at the present hour, Representative LaGuardia told the labor delegates. He said the proposed reduction is not really an economy measure.

"The facts are that a reduction in the salaries of Government workers would greatly influence employers engaged in private industry to impose reductions in wages paid their employes," he said.

BROAD POLITICAL EFFECTS OF VOTE ON SALES TAX SEEN

Best Thing, They Say.

Feeling this way, they think the defeat of the sales tax was the best thing that could have happened from the standpoint of Democratic success in November.

Whatever may be the political consequences of the House vote yesterday, certainly President Hoover found no comfort in the result. His feelings were made known by Silas Strawn, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, after a call at the White House.

Strawn said Hoover was "quite disappointed" over the defeat of the sales tax. He said President Hoover had pointed out that many of the Republicans had "gone along" on the sales tax plan, notwithstanding the fact that it was a Democratic measure.

Urges Action at Once.

"Something must be done," Strawn said, "and done quickly to balance the budget, or this country will be faced with an alarming situation. It is the biggest job before us.

"Without a sales or similar tax I can not see where we will get the funds for a balanced budget. We can't get it from the rich when there aren't any rich. I don't mind 'soaking the rich' if there is anything to soak."

In the opinion of many Capitol Hill observers, the Democrats committed a blunder at the very outset of the tax fight.

The Treasury Department, then headed by Andrew Mellon, submitted a tax program calling for sales taxes on selected industries. Thus, it was proposed that there be a special tax on automobiles, trucks and accessories; a special tax on phonographs and radios, and special taxes on gasoline, bank checks, real estate transfers and so on.

Opposition Came Quickly.

Opposition to this program quickly developed; opposition always does develop, regardless of what the tax may be.

At any rate, the Democratic-controlled ways and means committee decided to ditch the Mellon-Mills program for taxes on selected industries, and substitute a general sales tax.

Nobody was more surprised than certain influential Republicans. Several months before Senator David A. Reed, of Pennsylvania, had suggested a sales tax, and was almost howled out of the Capitol.

Leaders Justified Measure.

The Democratic leaders in the House—Garner, Rainey and Crisp—admitted that the general sales tax was a drastic measure, but they justified it on the ground that the Treasury deficit had to be wiped out and the budget balanced.

Then came the uprising in the Democratic ranks. Beginning quietly at first, it soon assumed the proportions of a major revolt.

Crisp tried valiantly to stem the tide of opposition, and so, too, did Rainey. Speaker Garner issued two statements, and it is because of those statements that Capitol Hill now says that the glamour has fled from him. In the first, he pleaded for a balanced budget, saying it didn't make much difference how the revenue was raised. He did not even mention the sales tax, much less praise it. As a consequence, it was whispered around the Capitol that Garner had "laid down" on Crisp.

The next day Garner issued a clarifying statement, one in which he did mention the sales tax. This tax, he said, was the soundest and most effective that had been suggested.

However, even this was not enough to wipe out the disappointment of some of Garner's friends. Wherefore, it was suggested that Garner take the floor and deliver one of his typical, rough and tumble speeches in support of the sales tax.

Ignored Suggestion.

Garner ignored the suggestion. Had he followed it, he would have been doing an unusual thing, and it is to be doubted if he could have changed any votes. Nevertheless, a lot of people would have liked to see him try—just as Crisp had tried and Rainey had tried.

Crisp, by the way, was given a tremendous ovation, when he walked to his seat yesterday, hoarse and beaten. There was no applause when Garner took over the dais to adjourn the House.

Today the Democrats in the House are right back where they started. The only sound alternative to the general sales tax, it is agreed, is the so-called Mellon-Mills program for special taxes on selected industries—taxes on automobiles, radios, electricity, gas and the like.

Congress in Big Jam.

There is many a Democratic strategist, no doubt, who wishes the House had started off with that program in the beginning. Then if there had been squawks, the blame could have been placed on the Hoover administration.

Reverting to the possibility of the tax bill fight causing a recess for the national conventions, this much has been pointed out frequently in the last few days: That Congress today is in one of the worst legislative jams in its history.

Thus far only one appropriation bill has been enacted into law—the first deficiency bill. Ten more are to be disposed of. One of these—the Agriculture bill—is in conference. The Interior bill and the State, Commerce, Justice and Labor bill have been sent back to committee for further cutting.

Kidnap Suspect Given Sentence for Burglary

Pocatello, Idaho, March 24 (A.P.).—Ignace Blaustein, whose stories brought two Newark, N. J., officers here to investigate his possible connection with the Lindbergh kidnaping, pleaded guilty to a charge of burglary today and was sentenced to four to 15 years in the State penitentiary.

After his arrest Blaustein said he was the driver of the car used by the kidnapers of the Lindbergh baby. He later repudiated this statement. Officers who investigated his story pronounced it a hoax.

JAIL TERMS GIVEN IN ALCOHOL FRAUD

More Than $71,000 in Fines Imposed in Baltimore on Converting Charges.

Baltimore, March 24 (A.P.).—Judge W. Calvin Chestnut today imposed fines totaling more than $71,000 and jail sentences of six months on several individuals in Federal Court after reviewing for two days the testimony concerning industrial alcohol firms and some of their employes and officials charged with converting industrial alcohol into beverage channels.

The sentences were passed on pleas of nolle contendere entered by the defendants yesterday and at previous sessions of the court following indictments returned last July by a Federal grand jury on evidence collected during a two-year investigation by prohibition agents.

The United States Industrial Alcohol Co., the Amazon Industrial Chemical Co. of New York, the American Solvents & Chemical Co. of Delaware and the Glidden Co., of Cleveland, Ohio, were fined $10,000 each. The United States Industrial Alcohol Co. also was ordered to pay the costs of court.

Other firms fined were the American Oil & Supply Co. of New Jersey, $5,000; the Southern Lacquer Co. of Baltimore, $2,000; the Filben Chemical Co., of New York, $5,000; I. Sagovitz & Sons, of New York, $5,000; the North Hudson Chemical Co., of New York, $5,000; the United States Industrial Chemical Co., $1; the American Solvents & Chemical Co., a Maryland corporation, $1; the American Solvents & Chemical Sales Corporation, a Delaware corporation, $1.

Judge Chesnut pointed out Joseph J. Darvin, of New York, was the heart of the conspiracy and that most of the evidence centered around him. Leslie A. Salter, special Assistant Attorney General, stated that Darvin had aided the Government in its investigation and that his plea of nolle contendere was the result of a promise made by the Government that he would receive less than a year sentence in order that he would not have to be confined in a penitentiary.

Following the prosecutor's statement, a fine of $1,000 was imposed on Darvin and he was sentenced to six months in jail.

Dry Foes Scored As Crime Backers

Mrs. Jean Patterson Tells Radio Audience Danger of Lawlessness Looms.

(Associated Press.)

Jean Rushmore Patterson, of Washington and New York, said last night in a radio address over WJSV, "Those who defy the eighteenth amendment" are furnishing the money to a criminal class.

Asserting two armed camps yesterday are hurling statistics and epithets at each other, Mrs. Patterson, who spoke on behalf of the Radio Education Committee, said, "Out of all of this contention there looms one immediate danger, the danger from lawlessness." She added:

"Who today is furnishing the money to a criminal class? None other than those who defy the eighteenth amendment. The drys of this country are certainly not responsible for money flowing into the underworld.

"The criminal class is being fattened by those who themselves are defying the law and who are objecting to prohibition on the ground that it has produced racketeers and gangsters."

Sheriff Freed in Death Of Former Texas Ranger

Sonora, Tex., March 24 (A.P.).—W. C. Fowler, Upton County sheriff, tonight was acquitted of murder charges brought after the machine gun slaying of Graham Barnett, former Texas ranger and noted pistol shot.

Barnett was slain last December 6 at Rankin, Tex. Witnesses testified the sheriff approached in a motor car, lowered a window of the machine and fired a volley of shots at the former Ranger. On the stand today the officer said he shot Barnett to save his own life.

Peruvian Revolt Quelled.

Lima, Peru, March 24 (U.P.).—Police have quelled an isolated attempt by 25 men under the leadership of Fidel Galarreta and Felipe Flores to start a revolution at Samne, La Libertad department. The rebels announced that President Luis M. Sanchez Cerro had died and that the Aprista party had seized control of the government. They then cut telegraph wires to the capital to prevent the local authorities from verifying their announcement. Police reinforcements from Trujillo dispersed the revolutionists after a brief battle, capturing Galarreta.

LAMONT, JR. ARRIVES IN RUSSIA FOR VISIT

To Confer With Stalin About Running Soviet Cattle Industry.

Moscow, March 24 (A.P.).—Robert P. Lamont, jr., wearing the 10-gallon hat of the American plainsman, reached Moscow today to talk with Joseph Stalin about running Russia's cattle industry.

The Soviet government invited the son of the American Secretary of Commerce to look over the ground for himself, and he came all the way from his 15,000-acre ranch in Colorado.

He wouldn't talk about the undertaking today because, he said, he doesn't know much about it himself yet. He doesn't know just what sort of job Russia wants him to do nor has he talked salary so far. Tomorrow he will meet the officials of the agricultural commissariat's live stock division.

Then he will investigate the present status of the industry for about three weeks before going back home to think the matter over.

Mr. Lamont left Denver last month, announcing that the Russian government had asked him to take complete charge of cattle breeding. There had been considerable correspondence, he said, but he wanted to see for himself how things were in Russia.

Soviet officials want to raise the per capita consumption of meat to 100 pounds a year, placing it on a par with that of the United States, he said, but he thought that would take about twenty years.

Russia has 35,000,000 cattle and 17,000,000 sheep, as compared with 65,000,000 cattle and 60,000,000 sheep in the United States, Mr. Lamont said. He indicated that if he could inaugurate a scientific breeding system he might be willing to undertake the job on a one-year contract. Reports which he has not confirmed said the Russian government had offered him $50,000 a year.

U. S. Asked to Keep Borer Quarantine

Government Is Requested to Continue Work by 14 States.

(Associated Press.)

Representatives of fourteen States yesterday asked the Federal Government to continue its quarantine against the European corn borer. Lee A. Strong, chief of Agriculture Department quarantine division, called them together to determine if the States were ready to assume control of the insect and thereby reduce Federal expense.

The States which requested continuation of Federal supervision were California, West Virginia, Florida, Georgia, Oklahoma, North Carolina, Tennessee, Vermont, Louisiana, Missouri, Oregon, Indiana, Connecticut and Maine. They indicated they were unable to bear the financial burden.

The quarantine now is in effect in thirteen New England States, Middle Atlantic and Great Lakes States. Approximately $300,000 was spent last year in maintaining it. The department budget for all quarantine work has been reduced from $950,000 to $295,000. W. C. O'Kane, chairman of the National Plant Board, representatives of nursery men, also urged the States to continue the quarantine.

"Kidnaped" Girl Returns Home.

Oakland, Calif., March 24 (A.P.).—Mary Marley, 12, whose father, Roger A. Marley, air reserve pilot here, reported to police today that she apparently had been kidnaped, returned home this afternoon. She said she had spent the night in the playhouse of a neighbor's home.

JAPAN CABINET RIFT AVERTED BY INUKAI

Changes in Ministry Made by Premier Expected to Prevent Crisis.

He averted a serious split in the higher ranks of the party by accepting an arrangement to reorganize the cabinet shortly by placing Kisaburo Suzuki, now minister of justice, in the post of home minister.

The change will probably be made soon after the end of the special session of the Diet tomorrow. The legislators have raised no serious opposition to an appropriation bill for financing the Shanghai and Manchurian campaigns, and this measure probably will be passed without trouble.

Meanwhile the war office is going ahead with plans to replace some of the troops in Manchuria. No figures were available, but it was emphasized that the troops which began sailing today are replacements only and that the Manchurian force will not be increased.

Shanghai, March 24 (A.P.).—Another session of the Sino-Japanese peace parley ended today without definite accomplishment, and troops in the field went on strengthening their lines.

At today's meeting the Chinese spokesman was Gen. Tai Chi, commander of the Shanghai garrison. Lieut. Gen. Kenkichi Uyeda remained at the head of the Japanese group.

A. T. & T. Will Reduce Employes' Work Time

New York, March 24 (A.P.).—The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. announced today that beginning May 1 the working time of the 3,000 employes of the company's general department would be reduced by one-half day a week.

It was said this action was taken in order to continue employment for the miximum number of employes and that similar action had already been taken in the long-lines department.

Traders Warned Short Ban Is Near

Drive for Authority to Continue Practice Is Begun by Brokers.

New York, March 24 (A.P.).—New York Stock Exchange houses which are interested in getting permission of their customers to loan stocks for short selling purposes began today an eleventh-hour campaign to bring in authorizations.

Secretary Ashbel P. Green sent a warning to all stock exchange members today to emphasize the fact that new exchange restrictions on short selling become "operative on April 1 and that no stock may be loaned in any way on or after that date without the separate written authorizations of customers."

Virtually all stock exchange houses which do a general brokerage business have mailed requests to their customers. Most of them report that the overwhelming majority of their larger customers have readily granted authority to loan their stocks, but there are many smaller customers from whom no word has yet been received, or who have forbidden the loaning of their stocks.

Trade Committee Plans Its First Dinner Monday

DEMOCRATS BREAK DOWN.

Irresponsibility and mob rule have triumphed in the House. By a clear majority the House has refused to levy taxes sufficient to support the Government. Leadership in the Democratic party, which the people hold responsible for putting the finances of the Government in order, has broken down. Discipline has been shattered. The forces that have been fighting with all their strength against the depression have suffered a defeat at the hands of politicians.

When the Democratic party organized the House last December it took upon its shoulders the responsibility of balancing the budget. At present the Government is spending about twice as much as it is collecting in all forms of revenue. Any sane person knows that such a condition can not be allowed to run on without bankrupting the Government. A few months ago it was hoped that a sharp upturn in business would increase the flow of revenue from existing taxes and customs receipts. Now it is apparent that no such turn can be relied upon. The Government must have more money. It is up to the House to levy taxes that will end the deficit and put the Treasury in a secure position.

Even with all the exorbitant rates against large incomes and estates that the insurgents could write into the bill, it remains nearly $600,000,000 short of balancing the budget, with the sales tax eliminated. What do the insurgents plan to substitute for the levy on manufactured goods? They have no answer. They have merely overthrown the work of the ways and means committee, without offering anything in its place.

It may be assumed that the House leaders will now turn to the original Treasury program, providing for nuisance taxes on bank checks, automobiles, gasoline, phonographs, radios, tobacco, real estate transfers, electric power, &c. Will the wild men of the House oppose this program also? The House has not escaped its responsibility by defeating the sales tax. The imperative necessity of a balanced budget remains. Unless revenue is provided to meet expenditures, the constructive measures that have been taken to arrest the forces of depression will be wasted, and the country will remain under the pangs of depression.

The most ominous element in yesterday's performance was the breakdown of leadership in the House. The Democratic party has proved itself incapable of meeting the stern issue of retrenchment. At the crucial moment a majority of the Democratic members were found rallying around a fanatical insurgent leader who is classed as a Republican. A majority of the 153 members who stood solidly behind the Democratic leaders in their effort to straighten out the Government's finances were Republicans. The Democratic leaders were betrayed by their own party colleagues.

This breakdown is the most serious indictment that could be brought against the Democratic party. On the eve of a national election, its members in the House have failed the country. The same thing happened in the Senate two years ago when the tariff bill and other measures of vital importance to the country's welfare were under consideration. In virtually all cases such revolts are led by renegade Republicans. The Democratic party has manifested such disloyalty to its leaders and such an utter lack of teamwork when confronted with crises of this kind, that the public will have no confidence in it as an administrator of the Government.

Since the spirit of the House has been broken by repudiation of its leadership, disorder and confusion may be expected to dominate for the rest of the session. The wild men have tasted blood. Every radical will now bring forth his program for draining the Treasury and while resisting honest taxes. Lobbyists who carry an echo of the approaching election in their voice will dog the heels of every spineless congressman. The threat of a $2,000,000,000 bonus raid is held over them, and their action of yesterday indicates that they will yield to the threat.

There is still hope that common sense will prevail. But every ounce of energy that the responsible leaders of both parties can muster will be needed to keep the House from a general stampede. The shock of the catastrophe that has overtaken the Democratic party may cause responsible Democrats everywhere to register an effective protest in time to force Congress to balance the budget. As matters stand the Democratic party, controlling the House, has dealt a deadly blow at public confidence and the public welfare.

THREAT OF THE BONUS.

If a corporation with a debt of $18,000,000,000 and a deficit amounting to more than $2,000,000,000 should assess its stockholders more than $1,000,000,000 to pay current operating expenses and at the same time move to pay off an obligation of $2,000,000,000 that will not fall due for thirteen years, any one would pronounce the management insane. But when politicians attempt to do that identical thing with money belonging to taxpayers, the public can only tremble for fear they will succeed.

The House ways and means committee has promised to conduct hearings on measures calling for full and immediate payment of veterans' adjusted compensation as soon as the tax bill is out of the way. It is shocking to realize that the House, immediately after its struggle over raising $1,100,000,000 in taxes, will consider the spending of twice that sum. The tax money to be raised is for the benefit of the entire country. This proposed expenditure is for the benefit of a special group. Yet many of the men who have been most vociferous in fighting the tax bill will be lined up in favor of the bonus.

It is almost inconceivable that representatives of the taxpaying public would consider payment of the soldiers' bonus at this time. The money could not possibly be raised by taxation. The bond market is already glutted with issues designed to aid in economic reconstruction. When the Treasury has no money it is folly to consider the immediate liquidation of an obligation due in 1945. The only way to pay this bonus is to go into debt, thereby again unbalancing the budget and paving the way to crushing taxation.

The danger in these hearings is that the issue will reach the floor of the House, where another stampede could be expected. How many representatives would dare to vote against the bonus on the eve of election? The responsibility would be passed to the Senate. It is by no means certain that the Senate could withstand the pressure that would be applied, even when bankruptcy of the Government is at stake. Weak-kneed politicians would be tempted to pass the matter on to the President, thus claiming credit for affirmative votes and relying on President Hoover to save the Treasury by his veto. But the experience of last year indicates that even a veto might not be sufficient to halt the stampede.

Bills to pay adjusted compensation in full and in advance are entirely out of order so long as the Treasury is in its present plight. The ways and means committee ought not to tempt Congress into a fit of prodigality. The representatives of the people who are faced with the stern necessity of multiplying tax rates and manufacturing new levies ought to stand firm for national solvency.

NICARAGUA'S ELECTION.

In view of the progress that has been made toward stability in Nicaragua, the attempt of President Moncada to prolong his term of office is extremely disappointing. Revision of the Nicaraguan constitution for his special benefit would certainly revive old political feuds and might plunge the little republic into another civil war. Americans find it difficult to understand how a president could so risk the welfare of his country for personal ends.

It goes without saying that the State Department will not lend its influence to any such movement. Since 1927 American Marines have supervised the elections in Nicaragua at the request of the Nicaraguan government. The State Department had agreed to let the Marines supervise the balloting next November in which a new president, vice president and part of the Congress are to be chosen. But if the Marines should supervise an election for only a president and a constituent assembly this Government would in effect be lending its influence to the overthrow of the present constitution.

Most of Nicaragua's political difficulties can be traced to the unwillingness of officials and party leaders to abide by a fundamental law. If the constitution could be set aside to meet the whims of the present administrators political order and stability would be struck a severe blow. Insurgents and rebels can not be compelled to adhere to the fundamental law if the government itself violates it. An attempt to prevent the free election of a new president and Congress would be the first step toward political chaos in Nicaragua.

MINORS ON THE STAGE.

Representative Mary Norton's bill authorizing the appearance of minors in theatrical productions, under proper safeguards, has been favorably reported in the House, and a vote upon it is expected soon. A similar bill, offered by Senator Capper, is under consideration in the Senate.

The hearings on this subject, in both House and Senate committees, developed a strong sentiment in favor of the legislation. No convincing argument was advanced against it. The opposition practically based its case upon the fear that children's rights, health or morals might be abused by permitting them to appear on the professional stage, but nothing to substantiate such a fear was forthcoming. The bill provides that permits shall be issued by the Board of Education, which is charged with enforcement of the child labor law of the District.

One of the House members, combating objections from a witness who cited repressive legislation in various States, stated that he was concerned with conditions in the District of Columbia, and did not intend to be swayed by freak legislation in the States. As a former school superintendent, he reminded the witness that children are put through rigorous rehearsals for school plays, some of which are presented at night for pay. He could not see why talented children should not be permitted to appear on the professional stage, under proper conditions as verified by the Board of Education.

The House committee has acted wisely in moving to sweep aside the obstacles to employment of minors in legitimate drama. Young people are entitled to an opportunity to rise in the theatrical profession, and should not be deprived of it by setting up fanciful fears that the Board of Education would fail to do its duty in safeguarding the rights of minors on the stage.

The attempt of the wets to force a vote on repeal of prohibition is funny. Every one knows that the Senate is all wet, without any vote.

Some women are making a new drive for "equal rights." What they really want is equal rights plus unequal privileges.

PHILIPPINE DEPENDENCE

By VICENTE VILLAMIN.

The most vital economic fact related to the Philippine question is that the Philippines is a foreign trade country, exporting the bulk of production. In other words, overseas commerce is the principal sustenance of Philippine economic life. Any political rearrangement minimizing this fact can not but rest on a foundation of sand.

America exports normally 10 per cent of production. This relatively small portion is sufficient to bring prosperity or adversity to a large section of the population. When an American industry has a large exportable surplus its export position is zealously guarded. For instance, the fact that half of raw cotton is sold abroad was a reason for one of the compromises in the Constitution of the United States, inhibiting the imposition of export duties.

Philippine dependence on overseas markets is an overwhelming reality. Using the statistics for 1929, a typical year, the following are the proportions of export to production, expressed in volume: Sugar, 95 per cent; hemp, 93 per cent, and practically 100 per cent of the embroideries, desiccated coconut and copra cake, the latter being a by-product of coconut oil.

Of the coconut oil output of the modern mills about 98 per cent is exported. At least 85 per cent of the copra not used in those mills went abroad. Over 63 per cent of cigar production was shipped overseas. And around 55 per cent of the tobacco that did not go into other manufactures was exported, going mostly to Spain to supply a government monopoly held by a local company.

It is relevant to state that only one-third of 1 per cent of Philippine exportations moved in Filipino-owned ships. Less than 5 per cent of the marine insurance risks was written by domestic companies. Perhaps a third of the entire exports was handled by the Philippine National Bank, a government-controlled institution. Outside of this the Filipino participation in exportation is practically nil.

But the Filipinos are the producers of the raw materials which are eventually shipped abroad in different stages of manufacture. It is an elemental fact that their interests and those of the manufacturers and exporters are identical and interlocking. The fate of the two latter groups is the fate of the former.

Under the aegis of a reciprocal free trade over 70 per cent of the exports of the Philippines goes to the United States. The bulk of these exports receives heavy tariff protection. The loss of even a quarter of this protection will produce grave economic dislocations in the islands. This massive fact is being appreciated more and more by the Filipino people.

It should be stated here that the increasing production of rice, which is the first article of diet of the Filipinos, will very soon make the Philippines self-sufficient in this vital commodity. Substantial quantities of rice used to be imported from Siam and Indo-China. There are no prospects of the Philippines becoming a rice-exporting country.

The open field of economic development for Filipino enterprise is in rubber, camphor, plantain, cacao, coffee, pineapple, cassava and other tropical products that are in demand in countries of the temperate zone. Most, if not all, of these products do not enjoy tariff protection. Their production can and should be started on the basis of world competition.

Capital is the open-sesame to the mansions of opulence to which the Filipino people are beckoned. It is most desirable that the Filipinos themselves should undertake the development of their natural resources. Added to their hoarded capital and new enthusiasm they can import outside capital and technical assistance.

The assertion that the uncertain future political status of the Philippines militates gravely against future investments in the islands requires explanation. Whether that status is defined or not, there will be no fresh investments in the present tariff-protected industries, for politics has made them highly speculative. But investments in the unprotected industries are not fundamentally affected by Philippine independence. This differentiation deserves to be widely known.

Our New Speaker of the House.

POST HASTE.

Possibly the new school of finance in the House figure on replacing the sales tax with payment of the bonus.

Don't remain on tip-toe awaiting a final tax decision. The Senate will take its time and then there will be the conference committees next June.

Now that the question of pay cuts is before the House, swashbuckling Generalissimo LaGuardia will find himself obscured behind the ramparts of defense, instead of being the picturesque leader of the storm troops.

Gov. Pinchot complains that it costs his State 25 cents to write a letter. Doubtless he will petition the Federal Government to reverse charges on his begging telegrams.

Speaking of the rich, before the tax bill is passed some one should make it clear that a saturated solution can't be soaked any more.

Mr. Raskob will pay the disputed campaign fund item of $70,000. He is not a feller to let a little thing like that create friction.

Enlisting J. P. Morgan in New York's "block-aid" drive will not result in a blockade unless everybody quits to let him run it.

Tax Logic.

New York Times.

Some way must be found to make the Federal revenues equal Federal expenditures. Retrenchment can do something, but the main part must come from new and higher taxes. Nobody likes them. Yet nobody can evade them. What is true here is true everywhere. England has just made a heroic and apparently successful effort to balance her budget. It is expected that the chancellor of the exchequer will be able to report an actual surplus at the end of the fiscal year in April. The thing has been done partly by savings, but more by drastic taxation. There is no mystery about the method. It is the one way of doing the necessary job. We also shall have to come to it.

No Exceptional Skill Is Required to Take Candy Away From a Baby.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THE basis of all success is contrast.

The successful man seems remarkable only because he is surrounded by so many failures.

He does not succeed because of unique qualities denied less fortunate men, but only because other men make little use of the qualities they possess.

Examine the men who have important jobs and you will look in vain for some peculiarity of natural equipment that explains their advancement. In speech, in appearance, in character and in the measure of their intelligence, they seem as ordinary as overalls.

True, they have poise; they seem sure of themselves; they speak with authority; but these are results of success, not an explanation of it.

They succeeded because they had little competition.

As much "classical" literature survives only because it was produced at a time when few men could write, so many a successful man owes his good fortune to the fact that other men didn't try.

When we call a certain man champion of the world, it does not mean that he is inherently superior to all other men. It means only that he has defeated all other men who sought renown and wealth by the same method. He is not champion of those thousands of abler men who did not compete because they had more important things to do.

The members of one race lead the world in chemical research because they alone will exercise the required patience; the members of another lead the world in money-getting because they alone will sacrifice everything else to profit.

In regions where the natives are neither avaricious nor industrious, an outlander who is shrewd and quick to act finds golden opportunity because there is no competition.

In short, you can't keep a good man down if all other men are too lazy to try it.

That explains the fortunes built in time of depression.

The crowd is yet dazed by the bursting of a bubble. It is listless, indifferent, dull of mind, content merely to exist while waiting for something to happen.

PRO AND CON

Fifty Million Voters.

Providence Journal.

A movement is on foot to persuade fifty million American voters to go to the polls on election day next November. If that number should participate in the election, it would merely mean that 68 per cent of all those qualified to vote had done so, whereas in the German election the other day 37,000,000 ballots were cast, representing 92 per cent of the electorate.

The total number of voters in the presidential election of 1924 in the United States was 29,000,000. In 1928 this number was increased to nearly 37,000,000. We venture to guess that, even without an organized crusade to produce a big vote this year, the figures will be larger than ever before. But the current attempt to arouse interest in the voting process is commendable. There is such a thing as putting too much emotion into a national campaign, but better emotion than indifference.

Party Harmony.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

The Democratic woods are full of favorite sons. Democratic battle-axes are swinging on Democratic heads. Bryanism is stalking again through the Southwest, and in the East and North the current war between Mr. Smith and Mr. Roosevelt will leave its wounds. Some of these wounds will be as deep as a well and as wide as a church door and will take a long time to heal.

Gang Opposition.

Chicago Tribune.

In whatever direction the opposition to Judge Wilkerson leads, it uncovers either organized and politically protected crime or violence and lawlessness in the background. The prejudices of some of the labor executives may have closed their eyes to this, but the facts stand out plainly enough to every one else.

Have They Thought of This?

Kansas City Star.

Postmaster General Brown has informed Representative Byrns, chairman of the economy committee of the House of Representatives, that the Postoffice Department can do nothing more toward balancing the postal budget, in which there is a deficit of $145,000,000. Reduction of expenditure, he explained, would not alone accomplish that end, but would have to be accompanied by an increase of postal rates. If all else fails, Mr. Brown and Mr. Byrnes might look into the possibility of inducing Congress to indulge in less abuse of the franking privilege.

Sentiment Is Changing.

La Crosse (Wis.) Tribune.

You can abuse a man who is doing a fairly good job for a certain length of time, among people who are discontented for many reasons, and get away with it. They don't care whether he's right or wrong; they're just agin him. But if the man keeps on doing a good job, and abusers keep on abusing him, eventually the American sentiment of fair play takes possession of the situation. President Hoover is stronger today by several million of votes than he was three or four months ago.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Virginia Democrat Says Justice Is Not Dead—Cites Two Supreme Court Decisions.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The hearts of all American citizens who still revere the Constitution and believe in justice have cause to find comfort in the two recent decisions of the Supreme Court. In one of these the majority opinion held unconstitutional the provisions of the 1926 revenue act which undertook to tax as a part of the gross estate all gifts made by a decedent within two years of decedent's death, on the assumption that such gifts were made in contemplation of death. Several of the lower courts and the Board of Tax Appeals had previously similarly held, and every lawyer believed the provision to be unconstitutional from the date of the passage of the act.

The other case related to the attempt by an Oklahoma concern engaged in the manufacture and sale of ice to prevent a competitor from similarly engaging in a like business without first complying with an Oklahoma statute which attempted to classify such a business as a public utility, and which required it to get a certificate such as is required by public utilities. Of course the Oklahoma competitor knew, as every citizen should know, that the manufacturer of ice could by no stretch of the imagination be considered as coming within the scope and definition of a public utility. He therefore proceeded to engage in that business without complying with the unreasonable and unconstitutional requirement of the State statute. The highest court of the land has upheld the rights of this individual.

And the thing that gives most reason for rejoicing and assurance is that in both of these decisions there were only two dissenting votes. No, justice is not dead. It still prevails.

Alcohol Not a Stimulant, in Dr. Cabot's Opinion, Notwithstanding the Dictionary Definition.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I noted a recent statement of Dr. Richard C. Cabot, professor of social ethics, Harvard University, that "alcohol has no stimulant value. It is a narcotic; and wet doctors who say it has a stimulant value are defending narcotics." The writer called the speaker's attention to the definition of "stimulant," given in one of the leading dictionaries, as "a stimulant drug or food (especially of alcoholic drinks)."

Dr. Cabot replied in part: "The dictionary gives in this matter, as in most others, the average opinion. There are many differences of opinion even among good authorities as to alcohol; but so far as I know there is not today any good authority left in defense of the idea that alcohol is a stimulant. * * * One can not possibly believe any longer, in view of the scientific work that has been done on the subject, that alcohol has any value as a stimulant either in health or disease. I think your mistake was in supposing that a dictionary undertakes to give anything more than the average current use of a word. That is, as I see it, what it should do. But in some cases, of which alcohol is one, the current usage is very far behind the facts."

This was enlightening to the writer. It may be also to your readers. B.

Chicago Correspondent Does Not Fear De Valera and Party.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your editorial, "Trouble in Ireland," is unduly prophetic of serious consequences following the so-called De Valera victory. As I understand the situation, the De Valera party lacks a majority in the Dail. De Valera rules by virtue of the labor vote. Will the labor vote follow him in his wild vagaries? I doubt it.

But when all is said and done England holds the whip-hand over the Irish Free State in the shape and form of the "economic boycott." All England has to do, in order to reduce the De Valera party to sanity, is to apply a stiff tariff to agricultural products from the Irish Free State. This done, the Irish farmers will soon relegate De Valera and his party to the regions of political oblivion, where he properly belongs.

JOSEPH OF ARIMATHEA.

Growing by counseling wisely, wealthier, year by year.
He was known as a righteous rich man, gentle and kind and true,
But history seldom lingers to tell us what such men do.

Joseph of Arimathea in the gloom of a Friday night
Visited Pontius Pilate—the envoy of Roman might.
"There was a man named Jesus nailed to a cross today."
Said he, "and I ask permission to care for his lifeless clay.

"Little I know about him, but I've heard that his life was clean.
I am told that because of his teachings men hated this Nazarene.
Those who are called his apostles still fear what the mob may do,
So I ask your august permission to care for a fellow Jew."

And Pilate who trusted Joseph and honored him, promptly said:
"I will give you a guard of soldiers. Go now and bury the dead."
Thus strangely in history fashioned, from one kindly deed there came To the rich man of Arimathea eternal glory and fame.

DOAK TELLS SENATE OF ALIEN MURDERS

Secretary Bares New Racket in Which Smugglers Kill, or Extort Money.

(Associated Press.)

The inside story of a new "racket" which the Labor Department is working overtime to crush was unfolded before the Senate immigration committee yesterday by Secretary Doak.

Grave of face, he related how his department had uncovered a growing conspiracy in which alien smuggling, extortion and even murder play a part.

The senators listened attentively as he described efforts of his department to bring to justice ruthless smugglers who, he said, "wrap up their victims in burlap and throw them overboard if they think they are likely to get caught."

"We have been very actively engaged," he said, "in trying to ferret out these racketeers who have brought people into this country after robbing them, and then robbed them after they got them here.

"These racketeers charge a large price for bringing aliens in here, and then they make them pay so much every month on the threat that they will show them up."

Fees range, he said, from $100 to $1,300 for bringing an alien into this country. Then the conspirators get him a job, and even though the victim may be receiving but a small daily wage, they extort a large proportion of it, threatening to report his illegal entry if he refuses.

When immigration from Canada was mentioned, Secretary Doak said: "If we were dealing with Canadians alone, I'd say wipe that darn boundary out, but there are so many other nationalities that come through there."

Job Campaign Total Swelled to 326,909

New York, March 24 (A.P.).—With Oklahoma setting the pace, the united action for employment of 1,000,000 jobless added 14,012 persons today.

The Sooner State alone reported 4,085 of the jobs that sent the campaign total to 326,909. Portland, Oreg., contributed another 3,471 jobs of the "made work" variety, pledged through the Rochester plan.

Druggist Convicted in Ginger Sale.

Wichita, March 24 (A.P.).—Abraham Michaels, New York, president of the Interstate Drug Co., was convicted by a Federal court jury here today on two counts of sale of substandard extract of Jamaica ginger for beverage purposes, in violation of the national prohibition law. Judge Richard J. Hopkins deferred sentence until tomorrow afternoon.

SALES TAX IS DEFEATED

over conduct of the bill he would call his committee together and try to find other taxes to substitute for the sales tax.

After the session had adjourned Representative Crisp outlined to newspaper reporters a tax program from which he said he would ask his committee to select today a substitute.

The basis of the substitute program would be the recommendations of the Treasury Department, he said. Among the taxes which will be considered and the amounts of revenue each was estimated to produce were:

An increase from 2 to 3 cents in first-class postage rates, to produce $135,000,000; a tax of 1 cent a gallon on gasoline, to produce $160,000,000; a stamp tax of 2 cents on bank checks, to produce $97,000,000; a 5 per cent tax on retail sales prices of radios and phonographs, to produce $10,000,000; sales taxes on automobiles, based on f. o. b. prices, of 5 per cent on passenger cars, 3 per cent on trucks, and 2½ per cent on parts, the combined taxes to produce $100,000,000; an increase of 18½ per cent in tobacco taxes, to produce $58,000,000; stamp taxes on real estate transfers, to produce from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000, and a tax of 7 per cent on domestic consumption of gas and electricity, to produce $57,000,000. If all of these taxes were enacted and the estimates of probable revenue proved accurate, they would produce $627,000,000 to $632,000,000 in place of the $595,000,000 which it was estimated the manufactures' sales tax would have produced as it was originally proposed by the ways and means committee.

Few Balancing Protests.

It is likely that most of these taxes will be put into the bill. The alternative would be adoption of a policy which did not call for balancing the Federal budget for the next fiscal year. There have been protests against the effort to balance the budget, but these have been few. The sales tax was defeated not by members who believed the budget should be balanced but by members who believed that it could be balanced by other taxes.

There will be fights both in committee and on the floor against some of the proposed taxes. There is considerable opposition to the proposed gasoline tax. Many members feel that the Federal Government should keep out of that tax field and leave it to the States. They predict that it will be defeated if it is proposed by the committee.

Defeat of the proposed tax on domestic consumption of gas and electricity also was predicted by some of those who led the fight against the leadership on the sales tax. There are those who believe there will be wide opposition to the tobacco tax increase, although others said it would be accepted.

One of the opposition leaders said he thought the House would accept increased postage rates, and the suggested taxes on automobiles, phonographs and radios, and real estate transfers.

Representative Fiorella H. LaGuardia (Republican), of New York, who was a vital force in defeating the sales tax, said that elimination of that provision would bring to an end the hectic rebellion of the House membership against their leaders.

"We have got to find other taxes which will produce the requisite revenue from the least objectionable sources and I have pledged my support to the committee in its efforts," he said. "I believe objection is felt by many members to some of the taxes which have been suggested. I shall offer the committee a tax on stock exchange transactions calling for one-half of 1 per cent on short sale transactions, and one-quarter of 1 per cent tax on other transactions, with a minimum tax of 4 cents a share on each transaction. I believe that would be preferable and of greater potentiality as a revenue producer than the proposed tax on bank checks."

However, there were those who disagreed with Mr. LaGuardia's enthusiasm about this proposed stock exchange tax. Mr. Crisp and Representative Henry T. Rainey (Democrat), of Illinois, Democratic floor leader, who went down to defeat together on the sales tax, both expressed fear that taxes on transactions above the committee recommendations would drive business away from the New York Exchange and transfer the American exchange headquarters to Canada.

Hopes for Early Report.

Taxes on cosmetics and jewelry are to be considered and it is not thought that there will be any considerable opposition to these.

Chairman Crisp said he hoped his committee would have the sales tax substitute program ready for report to the House today. When the House meets it will take up where it left off yesterday on the sales tax. It had been agreed that if the amendment offered by Representative Robert L. Doughton (Democrat), of North Carolina, prevailed, it would be accepted as deciding the fate of the whole provision and, in consequence, the vote on the first paragraph was construed as wiping out the entire tax.

Actually that is not the case. The section must be considered paragraph by paragraph, under the House rules, and each paragraph is subject to amendment and separate vote. Representative Crisp, after the vote yesterday, offered to suggest striking out the entire section under unanimous consent, but his proposal was met with subdued cries of "no," which were emphasized by the silence with which the House listened to the committee chairman. The advocates of the oil tax, or tariff, and the wet advocates of the beer amendment proposed by Representative Thomas H. Cullen (Democrat), of New York, want a separate vote.

The oil tax was said to have been put into the section by House leaders as a means of attracting the votes of members from the oil producing States. Opponents of the sales tax countered with the offer that if oil members would vote against the sales tax they would help them keep the special oil tax in the bill. The beer tax amendment will be beaten. The oil provision is expected to be defeated, too, but it has a better chance than the beer proposal, proponents of which are willing to concede defeat but want another prohibition vote.

Snell Issues Statement.

Responsibility for defeat of the sales tax was put squarely up to the Democrats in a statement by Representative Bertrand H. Snell (Republican), of New York, minority leader. Representative Snell had kept a majority of the Republicans in line, pledged to vote for the sales tax, throughout the fight. In the closing minutes yesterday, when he saw the inability of Democratic leaders to whip into line enough votes to give a majority he released his followers and many climbed on the band wagon and marched down the aisle to be counted by the tellers as among those opposed to the sales tax.

Necessity for balancing the budget was emphasized by Mr. Snell in his statement.

"Under the Constitution it is the duty of Congress to levy taxes to pay the expenses of the Government," he said. "The Republican members of the ways and means committee joined with the Democratic members in preparing and presenting to the House a nonpartisan Government tax bill. We believed that to be the best method of procedure under existing economic conditions.

"While we fully appreciate that upon the majority party rests the major responsibility of preparing and passing any tax measure, yet we have heartily cooperated and the majority of our side have supported ever section of this bill.

Balancing of Budget.

"We want the country to know that the Republicans fully appreciate the need and absolute necessity of balancing the budget and therefore maintaining the Nation's credit at home and abroad.

"We want the people also to know that we will continue to cooperate with the majority in the passage of any just and equitable tax measure that will provide enough revenue to pay the running expenses of the Government.

"We also firmly believe that the quicker the country knows that Congress intends to deal with the Nation's finances in a businesslike manner, the quicker we will have restored confidence and the return of business prosperity."

Representative Rainey dismissed further discussion of the sales tax.

"The sales tax is beaten," he said. "It was beaten by such a large vote that nothing would be gained by an attempt to get a record vote in the House. I shall not try to do so.

Other Taxes to Be Made.

"We are going ahead and balance the budget with other taxes. This talk of not balancing the budget is sheer nonsense.

"Leaving aside any consideration of the effect going along on further bond issues might have on the credit of the Government, the people should realize that every time there is a bond issue to meet current expenses the ultimate expense to the taxpayer is increased by many millions which must be paid in interest on the bonds.

"Even if we try to balance the budget on the basis of estimated revenues and expenditures, I fear we will fall short, because the estimates contemplate receipt of many millions of dollars due us on debts owed by foreign governments. I believe that we shall not get these foreign debt payments next year. We have got to reduce Government expenditures and increase taxes unless we are going to have chaos. The sales tax has been beaten. I believe the necessary substitute taxes will prove more obnoxious, but they must be levied."

Speaker John N. Garner, of Texas, also declared the budget must be balanced. He said that other revenue sources could be found for the eliminated sales tax.

Speaker on Defense.

Figuratively standing in the ruins of his reputation as the great Democratic leader whose leadership had set at naught those prophets who predicted difficulties this Congress because of the bare control of the Democrats in the House, the Speaker smiled and answered questions of the newspaper reporters as crisply as ever, but there was a vague something gone. Harshly criticised because he was accused of deserting Representative Rainey and Representative Crisp in the battle for the sales tax, the Speaker seemed to be on the defensive. There was gone from the room that atmosphere of power which had permeated it such a short while before.

Responsibility for balancing the budget, Representative Crisp said, would be put squarely up to the House. The ways and means committee would offer a substitute for the sales tax. If that substitute program were not accepted, he said, he would throw the bill into the House and let each and every member offer whatever amendments he might wish to each and every paragraph and however the bill shaped up at the end he would favor passing it and giving it to the Senate.

Discussing substitute taxes for the sales tax with newspaper reporters, the ways and means committee chairman declared:

"Gentlemen, whatever substitute taxes are proposed will be sales taxes, although they won't be called that. They will be taxes on special industries. Hunting around for taxes on special industries to raise such a colossal amount you have got to pick out large industries. They won't be called sales taxes but a rose by another name will smell as sweet.

Holds No Ill Feeling.

"The general manufacturers' sales tax proposed by the committee, with the exemptions of the necessaries of life proposed by the committee, practically eliminated every necessary from the 2.25 per cent general manufacturers' tax. But the House has spoken. I have no ill feeling. When I offered to turn the conduct of the bill over to someone else I was not speaking out of any pique. I have not any criticism of any member. Every man should vote his conviction. I proposed the sales tax and asked Mr. Rainey to be chairman of a special subcommittee, and I sat with them. I believed in it. The House doesn't want it. We'll try to find a substitute program.

"One of the troubles we have here in the House is that there are more members who are willing to vote for expenditures than there are willing to vote for the taxes necessary to meet those expenditures."

Champagne Broken on Bow of $5,000,000 Grace Liner

Santa Rosa, Palatial New Steamship for U. S.-Latin America Service, Slides Down Ways at New Jersey Yard; Hoover Message Read.

Kearny, N. J., March 24 (A.P.).—A bottle of 1910 champagne from Sonoma County, Calif., was smashed across the black bow of the first of four $5,000,000 new Grace liners as she slid down the ways and into the muddy Hackensack River today, christened Santa Rosa.

The bottle was swung by Miss Wendy Iglehart, daughter of D. Stewart Iglehart, president of the Grace Lines, as President Hoover pushed a button in Washington commending the 18,000-ton vessel to her place in the South American trade.

Hailing the ship's launching is another evidence of the revival of shipbuilding in this country, President Hoover said in a message read at the ceremonies that "the efforts put forth in the rehabilitation of the American merchant marine have proved beneficial to the country at large."

The message, read by Postmaster General Brown, continued:

"At no time since the glorious American clipper ship era has the Nation displayed such a keen interest in its ship activities. The determination of the American people to possess a first-class merchant marine has resulted in the establishment of a network of regular and dependable ocean service to all the principal ports of the world where our flag is again a familiar sight—a symbol of friendship and good will in the development and expansion of international trade."

The ceremonies were witnessed by three State governors, representatives of Latin-American countries, and James A. Farrell, president of the United States Steel Corporation, whose interest in ships is second only to his interest in steel.

Other speakers saw the launching as an augury of the return of better times.

The three other ships, the Santa Paula, Santa Louisa and Santa Elana are being constructed under the Jones-White merchant marine act of 1928, which the presidential message said was responsible for the ordering of 45 new vessels of 500,000 gross tons and for the reconditioning of 19 vessels of 160,000 gross tons.

POLICE COURT WORK DESCRIBED BY KEOGH

In a talk to students of the National University Law School, Assistant United States Attorney Michael F. Keogh last night explained the highly intricate machinery of Police Court procedure and explained the methods by which hundreds of cases are handled each week with a minimum of confusion.

Taking up the three main divisions of the Police Court, as he sees it from his position as chief officer of the United States attorney's office there, Mr. Keogh explained the jurisdiction of the court, the manner of granting or denying jury trials and the question of extradition.

Taking specific cases, he showed how the prisoner would be arraigned and asked to plead to the charge against him, how his trial would be set for a hearing, how the jury to try him would be picked and, finally, how the typical argument to a jury would be made. Three hundred students of the school heard the talk.

Mr. Keogh said that most felony cases, while not triable in Police Court, originated there through procedure of having an arraignment at which the Government presents its evidence to a judge, who decides whether the case is sufficiently strong to take before the grand jury for a possible indictment. In the event the judge holds that there is a case embracing a felony, the prisoner is then remanded for such action as the grand jury might take.

Carl O. Gebhardt, Editor, Dies.

Madison, Wis., March 24 (A.P.).—Carl O. Gebhardt, 71, editor of the Staats-Zeitung and the Botschafter, two German newspapers formerly published here, died today after an illness of five years.

SIGNS OF U. S. RECOVERY ARE REVEALED BY MILLS

Week ending	Net Suspensions
January 9	69
January 16	88
January 23	75
January 30	60
February 6	32
February 13	17
February 20	28
February 27	..
March 5	5
March 12	7
March 19	5

That the results flowing from the release of sterilized excessive gold reserves of the Federal Reserve System have about matched official expectations is indicated by a steady increase in the United States' gold holdings during March. Last week, Secretary Mills said, domestic monetary gold stocks increased $7,000,000, to bring the increase for the last three weeks to $31,000,000. America's total gold holdings now stand at $4,381,000,000, or better than 85 cents for every dollar in circulation.

Foreign Balances Gain.

Equally significant, perhaps, is the fact that French and English balances in the United States are on the increase. Before the emergency financing program was enacted, foreign balances, particularly the French, were diminishing sharply. Under her fortified gold position, the United States now stands beyond the reach of even the most extreme sort of "gold politics."

Although the United States gold position indicates unmistakably the utter collapse of the French drive on the dollar, Secretary Mills carefully avoided any intimation, direct or otherwise, that foreign governments ever had attempted to exert gold pressure upon the policies of the United States regarding reparations or disarmament.

Buttressing the business trends indicated in Secretary Mills' figures, trade and commodity reports from yesterday's lethargic preholiday markets served also to brighten the feeble sheen of what many expert observers are hopefully regarding as an economic sunrise.

Oil Prices Advance.

Crude oil prices were advanced 15 cents a barrel yesterday by the principal midcontinent producers, including the Standard Oil, Sinclair and Barnsdall groups. The new price, which marks the first advance since last November, brings domestic oil to 92 cents a barrel, against a low of 33 cents last summer, when Texas and Oklahoma resorted to martial law to pinch in the black-gold flow.

The new midcontinent price brings oil within striking distance of the dollar-a-barrel basis for the first time in more than fifteen months.

Bank Clearings Better.

At the same time Bradstreet's statistical service reported that combined bank clearings outside of New York City showed a decrease of only 1.5 per cent for the week ended March 23, as against a normal seasonal decrease of 6.6 per cent.

Total clearings for the country were $5,110,772,000, against $5,573,413,000 for the preceding week, with New York City responsible for most of the decline—because of the marked shrinkage in security transactions.

As compared with a year ago however, the combined bank clearings show a decrease of 29.5 per cent.

Improvement of the wobbly railearnings outlook during February was indicated in recapitulation of the first twelve major carrier reports published during the week. The net operating income of these twelve systems for the month was $4,695,000, which compares with $3,216,000 for January and $5,688,000 for February, 1931.

Although the February statements are the first to reflect the 10 per cent wage reduction negotiated during the winter, there still are several of the pivotal rails which are not out of the red, and several of the best carriers have deferred dividends during the last ten days pending better traffic.

The traffic outlook throughout the Eastern Seaboard region was summarized yesterday in the quarterly report of the Atlantic States Shippers' Advisory Board, which estimated a total movement of 626,141 cars into the Atlantic States territory during April, May and June, against 694,362 for the corresponding quarter of 1931. The Great Lakes advisory board estimated second quarter loadings at 326,804 cars compared with 410,454 in the same period of 1931.

Despite all these promising signs of recovery, however, stock and bond prices have drifted persistently to lower levels throughout the present week. Under the shadow of uncertainty concerning the future of taxation, and with the once assured prospect of a quickly balanced Federal budget punctured like a captive balloon at a county fair, the security buyers ran back into their holes in stampede formation. Toward the end of the week the daily volume of sales on both the big board and the curb market at New York were near the year's low records.

U. S. Bonds Reached Highs.

Early last week, before the sales tax debacle in the House, there were repeated evidences of a developing investment demand in the security markets, and United States Government bonds thrice touched new high levels for 1932 for every issue.

With the rout of this first feeble nibbling of investment buying following the tax jamboree, however, both stock and bonds averages slipped back to within striking distance of the January and February lows, and toward the end of the week the New York financial community was talking of the possibility of stocks once more testing the distressing January 5 trough.

The following quotations from an Associated Press Wall Street review of last night summarizes the reaction to the tax situation:

"Defeat of the sales tax, bankers pointed out, keeps open the problem of a balanced budget at a time when quick action toward that end is generally desired. One reason for the recent hesitation of the bond market has been uncertainty as to how the national deficit is to be met."

(Associated Press.)

The New York Central Railroad yesterday was authorized by the Interstate Commerce Commission to borrow $4,399,000 from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The New York Central originally applied to the commission for permission to borrow $7,000,000. Later, however, the application was revised and the amount requested was lowered to $4,399,000.

The loan which is to run three years is to be used to complete the West Side improvement in the city of New York, a project started in 1929.

Rezoning Is Taken To Supreme Court

Reapportionment Row of 2 States Centers on Interpretation.

(Associated Press.)

New York and Missouri yesterday brought their reapportionment disputes to the Supreme Court, where Minnesota recently presented its controversy.

In New York and Missouri, the State courts held redistricting must be done by acts submitted by the Legislature to the governor for approval. In Minnesota the contrary was held, the State courts there declaring the Legislature could redistrict without submitting the matter to the governor.

Considerable argument developed yesterday over the interpretation to be placed on the word "manner" as used in the fourth section of Article I of the Constitution, members of the court suggesting that if it were construed to cover election machinery the section must be interpreted as contemplating the making of laws, which could only be done by an act of the Legislature, submitted to the governor for his approval or disapproval.

British Flier Nearing Sahara.

Oran, Algeria, March 24 (A.P.).—J. A. Mollison, flying from England to Cape Town along a new route over West Africa, reached here today. He planned to make a night flight to the Beni Abbes Oasis, the southerly railway terminus in Algeria, whence he will take off across the Sahara.

Darrow Reaches Honolulu.

Honolulu, March 24 (A.P.).—Clarence Darrow, Chicago attorney, stepped from the liner Malolo today to begin plans for the defense of four persons charged with killing a Hawaiian accused of attacking the wife of Naval Lieut. Thomas H. Massie.

Women Issue Challenge To Armament Debate

The Washington Disarmament Council of the Women's International League yesterday issued a challenge to the Navy League and the Daughters of the American Republic to participate in a debate on disarmament.

The league suggested that one member from each organization be appointed to meet their representative, who will uphold the affirmative of the subject: Resolved, That universal disarmament would promote greater security and economic stability than competitive armaments.

Grosner Attacks Price Advertising

Vice President of Retail Group Says Public Has Lost Confidence.

"Men's wear advertising which has appeared in the newspapers all over the country for the last year or two is open to severe criticism," Gerald Grosner, first vice president of the National Association of Retail Clothiers and Haberdashers, told members of the Advertising Club of Washington at their meeting at the Raleigh Hotel yesterday afternoon.

"I refer," Mr. Grosner said, "to the continual pounding of price advertising, some of it true; some of it partially exaggerated and some of it outright lies and fakes. I believe that the men's wear advertising could be tremendously improved by promotion of the interesting things that men's wear manufacturers produce, rather than the continual 'hoorah' about price.

"I also believe that the public has reached the stage where they have no confidence in most price advertising. As a result the only reasonable thing for any good merchant to do is to advertise something else besides price, as the public does not believe in price advertising anyway."

Kentucky to Treat Party as Visitors

Students Will Be Given Escort During Tour in Mine Section.

Pineville, Ky., March 24 (A.P.).—Students on their way here from New York to study conditions in the southeastern Kentucky coal mine area will be treated as visitors, County Attorney Walter B. Smith said tonight, but their movements will be "observed" lest they engage in radical activities.

Bell County officials are making no plans to formally welcome the students, but have arranged to have either deputy sheriffs or interested citizens near them at all times, Mr. Smith said, to prevent them from making communistic addresses to miners.

He reiterated his previous statements that offenders will be jailed if the warnings against speechmaking and communism are disregarded. The students comprise the third group from New York to visit the mine area. Members of the first group, led by Theodore Dreiser, novelist, were indicted on criminal syndicalism charges after they left the county. Members of the second group, led by Waldo Frank, writer, were ejected from the State by a delegation of Pineville citizens. Mr. Frank and Allan Taub, New York attorney, later claimed they were beaten as they were put across the State line.

Health Point of View Is Urged Upon Nurses

Dr. Viola R. Anderson, secretary of the Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis, delivered yesterday's lecture in the course scheduled for the Freedmen's Hospital Nursing School on "The Adventure of Case Finding."

"In the present era of scientific medicine," Dr. Anderson told her audience of student nurses, "no nurse is adequately prepared for her function as a nurse who does not introduce the health point of view in her care of patients. The nurse plays an indispensable role in the modern plan of tuberculosis control. An understanding of the principles of such control lifts the nurse's tasks out of the rut of dull routine and into the realm of professional service and high adventure."

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

SILVER BEAUTY.

SILVERY white hair gleaming like freshly fallen snow with a bit of blue in it, how beautiful it is! Silver threads among the gold no longer indicate that one is growing old. In fact, women have come to realize that there is such a thing as silvery beauty and that the sooner the hair turns completely, the better.

Elsie Pierce.

There is nothing more strikingly soft and lovely, more distinctively beautiful than the combination of silver hair, with a clear, youthfully firm, pink and glowing complexion. If, in addition, the brows and lashes are kept quite dark, the color combination becomes perfection itself.

The wise gray-haired woman continues to keep her hair white and her complexion young and pink. She never allows streaks of yellow to mar the blue-whiteness of her crown. She is very careful to avoid too frequent curling with hot irons, as these may tend to discolor her hair. She also avoids strong soaps, artificial drying, using anything but the purest shampoos on her hair, and she is very careful to rinse every bit of soap from her hair after the shampoo. The true blue-white head should never use coloring agents or color shampoos unless she wishes to restore the original shade of her hair. Pure castile soap is the best thing to use and this should be shaved and jellied or used in liquid form. After the shampoo, a special type of bluing should be added as the rinse to preserve the blue-white, silvery cast.

Now for her skin. The gray-haired woman should guard her complexion against the onslaught of age. The contrast between gray hair and a youthful skin is what makes her beauty so distinctive. Don't allow double chin or wrinkles to set in, keep your skin fair and lovely. Use creams and bleaches, astringents and the proper cosmetics. Devote the necessary time to preserving the skin's youth and beauty, because it is the skin that will make you look old if it is wrinkled or sagging, not the gray hair.

Keep your hair glistening. Brush it faithfully. And have it finger-waved or waterwaved into soft, flattering swirls. Straight hair is too hard and difficult.

Do not be afraid to wear make-up. Avoid a washed-out, pallid look. A soft coral rouge, just a hint of it, naturelle powder, lipstick to match your rouge and a touch of eyebrow pencil to make brows darker and lashes too, a hint of eyeshadow, particularly for evening, and you will belong to the realm of beauty.

Avoid bright colors in costumes and extreme styles, but do not feel that you must limit yourself to just a few colors and styles. Brown may be hard to wear, and deep red, but soft beiges are lovely, and blue-grays, blue, too, and some greens, pinkish tans and subdued reds, coral shades. Don't feel that because your hair has grayed, life has passed you by. Why, you can make yourself more definitely beautiful than you were in your teens and twenties.

I have several buletins that should interest the gray-haired or mature woman. (1) "Signs of Age" will help you guard your skin and contour. (2) My hair buletins will tell you how to brush and massage and rinse your hair. (3) My color chart will tell you what colors in costumes you can wear. But do send one self-addressed, stamped envelope for either (1), (2) or (3).

Advice on Gardening

By JANE LESLIE KIFT

MORE ABOUT PERGOLAS.

WE pick bittersweet berries to bring a bit of color to our rooms in the winter. The bittersweet vine is always a wise choice for an arbor of trellis in a city backyard. Climbing roses in any garden, irrespective of size, make an effective background for a border of hardy herbaceous plants.

When planting vines for any purpose it is best, when possible, to plant for permanent effect. In other words, use perennials. The bigonia, or old-fashioned trumpet vine, is a splendid creeper for heavy duty and massive effects. Because of its size and might it is suitable only for a sturdy arbor.

The bigonia is dependable and in bloom its deep-throated, burnt orange trumpets are very colorful against the deep green of its foliage.

Grapevines of all sorts are excellent for landscape planting. The native American species are perhaps the best of all. Grapes are especially adapted to planting about pergolas.

The climbing rose must always be considered in planting schemes where climbers are desired. The one drawback to climbing roses is the fact that they are so liable to mildew and rust. Many of these troubles may be eliminated by frequent applications of massey dust. The formula for this preparation was worked out by Dr. L. M. Massey, of Cornell University, at the instance of the American Rose Society, and first published in its annual of 1918.

Massey dust is composed of nine parts dusting sulphur and one part lead arsenate. The ingredients should be thoroughly mixed and applied with a blower gun.

In applying Massey dust care must be exercised to see that it reaches both sides of the leaves.

In most city gardens we see a generous planting of old-fashioned honeysuckle. This has much to recommend it when it is planted to ramble over a steep bank, but on a small arbor it may become an unsightly, matted mass.

How to Keep Well

CONVALESCENCE AFTER JAKE PARALYSIS.

WE may not have seen the last outbreak of jake paralysis, Dr. Emil Bogen, of California, says they had one hundred and fifty cases of it in 1931, "and no one knows where the condition will present itself the next time."

Dr. B. T. Burley, in reporting about one hundred cases occurring in Massachusetts, says the poisonous product was manufactured in his State, but the producers were careful to market it a long way off—at least, at first. When Dr. Seale Harris reported cases from a small hamlet in southern Alabama, 25 miles from a railroad, persons in Massachusetts little thought the product was being produced in their State and presently would be sold near home.

It has been proved that the poisonous ingredient in the Jamaica ginger was tricresolphosphate. At first the product contained 2 per cent of this poison. Later the proportion was greatly reduced, but not even this made it safe, since people vary greatly in their susceptibility and some are capable of being poisoned by very small doses.

The disease is a peculiar degeneration of certain nerves. Since it seems to prefer these nerves and to spare others, it causes a combination of paralysis, followed by shrinkage of muscles, that results in symptoms that follow a pattern fairly well.

There are other poisons which produce poisoning of the nerves, with symptoms somewhat like jake paralysis. Among these are common or grain alcohol and drinks made from it; lead, arsenic, carbon monoxide, carbon bisulphide, phosphorus, mercury, and also some toxins present in diphtheria, influenza and beriberi. But none of these give symptoms that closely resemble those of jake paralysis.

Dr. Burley reports that nothing of service can be done for jake paralysis in the acute stage. Treatment resolves itself into after care. The affected muscles are first given complete rest. Then follow weeks, months and years of persistent muscle training and redevelopment. For this purpose, when the paralysis is in the lower legs and feet, Dr. Burley recommends pedaling a fixed bicycle. Another device which he has found useful is a frame somewhat like the apparatus used to train babies to walk. It has four firm uprights, about 3 feet high, sitting on rollers. These are joined to make a firm frame, about 3x3, in which the man stands. He supports himself in part by his hands placed on the horizontal bars as he walks around. Swimming is good in that the water supports the body as the legs are exercised.

In mild cases, Dr. Burley says, there should be recovery in fifteen months. In moderately severe cases recovery can be expected in two years. In the severest cases the improvement should continue for more than two years if the patient is persistent and intelligent in using his limbs, but he can not be completely cured.

MORNING COLD BATH.

R. E. L. writes:

1. What physical or other benefit is derived from early morning cold baths?

2. Is 15 minutes setting-up exercise morning and night enough to be of benefit to one who works indoors?

3. Where can I get a list of various setting-up exercises giving physical benefit derived from each exercise?

5. Is cabbage fattening?

6. Where can I get a leaflet on building up the weight?

REPLY.

1. They stimulate the body to make heat, train the vasomotor system, build up the resistance to cold and to infections, and all to the good if you are a vigorous person and get a good reaction.

2. Yes. Make it snappy.

3. There are many good books, such as McKenzie's. Probably the United States Public Health Service has one.

4. Probably not.

5. No.

6. If you will write us, sending a stamped and addressed envelope for reply, we will send one. But diet is only one part of the specifications for putting on weight.

COCKTAILS AND CIGARETTES.

1. I have heard that a cocktail consisting of egg yolk and orange juice is of service to a person. If it is, when is the proper time to drink it and how is it prepared?

2. There is an argument between A and B in which A claims that a pipe is better to smoke because pipe tobacco contains less nicotine. B says a cigarette is best, and has the same amount of nicotine. Who is correct?

3. My fingernails often change color—that is, from red to purplish. My hands are cold and purple. Is this poor blood circulation?

REPLY.

1. Egg yolk and orange juice are both good foods. The first is rich in vitamin B complex, the second in vitamin B. Shake the mixture, or not, as you like. Take it how and when you please.

2. There is no difference in the nicotine content of the tobacco, pound for pound.

3. That's the common name for it.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

She Takes Him Back

MY Dear Frances McDonald: Please, may I come to you for advice? I've a husband who is just no good. He drinks-lies-and is lazy. I've supported him for years. He now spends his time visiting relatives from here to Indianapolis. I got dreadfully deceived.

He comes here when his friends and relatives get tired of keeping him and will stay long enough to make me a nervous wreck. Last year I applied for a seperate support, but that makes no difference. he comes here just the same, says he loves me, can't give me up, yet he will spend his time with other men and married women. I should take him to court but I just can't bear the notoriety that would bring. I am of a quiet resigned disposition, and feel so ashamed of it all.

He is in Indianapolis now, but his aunt writes me he intends coming back to me in the spring. I want to leave here but can not find a home elsewhere, where I could afford rent. I have a pretty little home here, am neat, a good cook, and have a sweet old lady who boards with me. My income is small, and I have to figure so closely to keep going. So you can appreciate I just could not pay a large rent, unless I could find a small home in some remote little town where high rents are not known. Please Miss McDonald can you advise me. What would you do were you in my position? I try to think I do not love him. He has been so cruel and mean to me. Still I pity him. Have you some solution for me?

A. L. M.

Well, a first step, be honest with yourself. You know that it is not pity for the man that makes you admit him to your home—despite court order. You know that it is utter weakness, despite his evident lack of interest in you, even aversion to your company except when he needs your financial support. Do you realize the degradation you are accepting? Do you realize the extent of this man's contempt for you as a woman?

The situation really is that you are willing to have him live with you—even willing to support him, but he does not care to live with you, prefers to beg his way in the homes of others. Do you really need to be told the only decent course open to you in such circumstances? You have not even the excuse that some offer—no home, no means of support. He does not even support you. You support him. You do not need advice. What you need and all you need is just enough self-respect to shut the door in this vagrant's face when he decides to "return in the spring." But instead you will stage the usual welcome and return to the degrading status that you are accepting as your due. And no advice can change you.

However the world may marvel and speculate there will always be the woman who begs leniency of the court for the man who has beaten her black-and-blue, and there will always be the woman who can not say no. What price advice?

THE BEST LAID PLANS.

A CAREFULLY planned and beautifully played hand at contract evokes the admiration of partner and opponent alike. While the play is not so important as the bidding, because it is of little importance to score over-tricks and sacrifice games through inadequate estimates of the trick-taking power of the hand, the beauty of the most accurate bidding and the drawing of the most precise inferences as to a partner's holding is entirely marred if the play of the hand results in a defeat where accurate methods would have brought a victory.

Shakespeare may not have had contract in mind when he said the play is the thing, but his admonition deserves the careful consideration of all who follow the game. Accurate play is especially essential when the honor-tricks and playing-tricks in the hand must be stretched to the utmost to make possible the contract undertaken, as is shown in the hand below, played recently in Philadelphia:

South—Dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

The friend who sent this hand did not explain to me exactly how the contract of three notrump by South was reached. Surely it could not have been by approach methods, but probably by the deft use of a strategic bid by South or an even more strategic raise by North on his meager ½ honor-trick holding and distinctly barren hand otherwise.

Against the contract of three notrump West opened the five of clubs. This trick was won with the 8 in the Dummy and a spade led and the Queen finessed. Holding only six spades, the general rule would be to finesse the ten, but South felt that he had at most one remaining entry in the Dummy and thus considered the making of three tricks with his spade holding highly improbable.

When the finesse held, South led the Queen of diamonds and West permitted him to win the trick, as did the second round of diamonds, which was won with the King in Dummy. A heart was led from the Dummy, upon which East played the Queen and South refused to cover. He was already planning the end-play of the hand.

East led a diamond and West cashed the Ace and 9 of diamonds, Dummy discarding a club, East a heart and South the 6 of spades on the last diamond round. West then led the Queen of clubs, which South won with the King. East was forced to discard and played a heart. South now followed with the Ace of clubs, upon which East discarded the 9 of spades.

On the tenth round South led the Ace of spades and on the eleventh trick East was thrown in with the King of spades and South took the two last tricks with the Ace and Knave of hearts.

TODAY'S POINTER.

Ability to read the location of key cards held by the opponents is essential to the carrying out of intricate plans involving the placing of the lead. Every contract player should make a practice of noting the distribution of the suits, while this knowledge is not essential in the play of every hand.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

A stunning evening gown created by Jean Magnin for the Bal de la Couture at the Paris Opera. The gown is yellow fleursoie, and the sleeves and decolletage beaded with tube beads in silver.

NEW YORK, March 24.—A closer collaboration between the couturieres of Paris (and the dressmakers of other countries,) and the accessory industries, is thankfully noted. Chiefly noticeable in regard to gloves. Although it but follows that gloves are harmonized with shoes, with bags, with hats and with scarfs.

As I mentioned last week, novelty gloves are not at all as they were even a year ago. Today's novelty glove is novel chiefly because of its extraordinary detail work, the clever dressmaking details that have been incorporated into gloves, as shirring, tucking, and incrustations, formerly seen only in fabrics.

The general trend or style in gloves is a sober one, in keeping with the discreet elegance of the mode. And right this moment, the particular mode is for long Saxony gloves with four, six or eight buttons. The wide wrists of this type of glove can be worn over the coat cuff, or when the glove must go under the cuff of the coat, the glove cuff is made Saxony shape and adjusted to the turn up, or else made quite short, with a press button fastening.

Among the most popular types of Saxony glove is the one with a point of one side, cut out or incrusted to follow the lines of this point.

Suede continues the most popular for dress gloves, but glace kid is the preference for out of door gloves, thank goodness! And as to evening gloves, quite as many short ones as long ones are worn this season, which is amusing and very youthful in effect. Of course, short evening gloves would have elaborately shaped and often rather decorative cuffs. Imagine a dainty hand reaching for a champagne glass gloved in pink glace kid gloves with a tight wrist cuff of real lace! And the sophisticate wears her short evening gloves with diamond bracelets to finish and fasten them!

M. Jean Magnin, a true artist as well as one of the Paris haute couturiers, sends me this rough "croquis" of a gown he designed for the famous Bal de la Couture, which is annually held at the Paris Opera. The gown is simplicity, elegance and artistic charm. Yellow "fleursoie" is its material, and the sleeves are embroidered with crossed silver tubes. That is the long, thin, tube-like beads, crystal with silver centers, you know.

* * * *

Materials are cheap, and in one evening you could make yourself three bias costume slips—with our leaflet! Each one could be made of one yard of material, my dear, so there is no excuse any longer for you not to have simply all the costume slips you need or want. Just send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare department of The Washington Post for this week's illustrated leaflet, make the first model in unbleached muslin, and there you are!

Mentioned Jean Magnin today—that is pronounced "John-Man-Yan." Remember to say the "Jh" as you say the "z" in the English word "azure."

Au revoir.

Fifth Avenue Fashions

LOVELY DAY WEAR.

A delightfully smart model is this Patou blue crepe silk dress. It has so many new modish points. The rever collar that terminates in a bow at the opposite shoulder is of plain white crepe. It's feminine, too.

The bias bodice treatment with similar idea carried out in the skirt is decidedly slimming. It creates a smart tailored air and provides lovely decorative scheme in button trim. Note the interesting sleeve cut with the upper part slightly puffed above the deep cuffs. It can also be made with short sleeves finished with turnback cuffs.

And what a surprise you'll experience when you make it. It is so entirely simple to put it together.

Style No. 2749 may be had in sizes 16, 18 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. The medium size takes but 3⅛ yards of 39-inch material with ½ yard of 35-inch contrasting. Its small cost is really amazing.

Charming, too, is a small patterned silk crepe in either soft green, blue or vivid red background. You can make the rever collar of plain toning crepe or of plain white crepe.

If you are planning ahead for your summer wardrobe, choose a white crinkly crepe silk with vivid green crepe collar and cuffs for the short sleeves and buttons. The red, white and blue alliance can be worked out marvelously in this model. You'll like it immensely in a white cotton fabric that has a woolen aspect. Make the rever collar of light navy blue, and match bone buttons to the blue shade that have vivid red rims. Select a leather belt to tone with the red rim of the buttons.

What Today Means to You

"ARIES."

IF March 25 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10:15 a. m. to noon, from 3:45 p. m. to 5 p. m., and from 9 p. m. to 10 p. m. The danger periods are from 7:45 a. m. to 9 a. m., and from 6 p. m. to 8 p. m.

Astrological influences on March 25 will affect individuals only as members of a community or nation and not as separate units. You and your neighbor will be hit alike by the adverse hand of fate. Future difficulties in your life, in an almost incomprehensible manner, may be traced indirectly to movements of "today."

The children born on this March 25 will have orderly minds, and will be tidy, systematic, practical and industrious little beings. They will be too serious and too unimaginative to join the real fun makers of the world. They will be intelligent, but not intellectual.

Born on March 25, your general disposition is not bright and hopeful. You become easily discouraged and disheartened, and often throw up the sponge in easy sight of victory. It would be well for you to memorize the following pat saying, "the best angle from which to look at a problem is the try angle." You are very thrifty and it can not be denied that you are a hard worker, but you lack self-confidence and nerve. You are too honest and self-conscious to ever bluff your way through to anything.

You will form fixed habits and attain set ideas early in life, and will neither change nor progress much with the time. You will probably place all your eggs in one basket and this statement will apply to your affections as well as your other interests and efforts. This policy may leave you spiritually or materially stranded some day if your basket becomes upset. You do not like noise and confusion, and have a fear of crowds.

You are rather inclined to listen too freely to cheap advice. Advice should never mean the abdicating of your own judgment. Your own instinctive good sense is the safest guide you can follow.

The Homemaker

Plans for a Delicious Easter Sunday Dinner.

TO allow freedom for our homemaker friends on Saturday afternoon, we make it a rule to plan a Saturday evening meal which is "quick and easy"—but somehow or other a planked hamburg steak has caught the column fancy for tomorrow's meal, which means a "regular dinner," although neither an elaborate nor difficult one. And our red devil cake takes its place again as you see, so that on Easter Sunday, should friends drop in unexpectedly, we'll have at hand "a bit o' cake and a sip o' tea" to offer them.

So now to our menus.

EASTER SUNDAY DINNER.

Baked Virginia Ham
Baked Celery and Sweet Potatoes with Maple Syrup
Cabbage, Apple and Nut Salad

SATURDAY'S SUPPER.

Red Devil Cake with Seven-Minute Frosting

Planked Hamburg Steak.

2 pounds hamburg steak
1 egg
1 teaspoon finely chopped onion
½ chopped green pepper
4 tablespoons milk
1 cupful breadcrumbs
2 tablespoonfuls chopped parsley
2 teaspoons salt
½ teaspoonful pepper

Mix all the ingredients together and form into a flat loaf. Fry in hot bacon drippings until well browned. Place on a hot, well-greased plank, place strips of bacon over the top and surround with a border of mashed potatoes. Place in a moderate oven to brown the potatoes and to finish cooking the meat, about fifteen or twenty minutes.

Red Devil Cake.

2 cupfuls sugar
2 egg yolks
2 egg whites
2½ cupfuls flour
½ teaspoonful salt
2 teaspoonfuls baking powder
1 cupful boiling water
1½ teaspoonfuls soda
1 cupful sour milk or buttermilk
2 squares bitter chocolate
1 teaspoonful vanilla

Cream shortening and sugar until light, add well-beaten egg yolks, then sour milk or buttermilk alternately with flour, salt and baking powder, which have been sifted together. Add boiling water to melted chocolate. Add soda and stir until thick. Let cool slightly and mix well with cake batter. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites and vanilla. Bake from 45 to 60 minutes in 350-degree oven in loaf-cake pan. Ice with seven-minute frosting.

Seven-Minute Frosting.

2 egg whites
1½ cupfuls sugar
5 tablespoons cold water
½ teaspoonful cream of tartar
1 teaspoonful vanilla

Put sugar and water in upper part of double boiler. Add cream of tartar, then egg whites, beaten stiff. Beat with rotary beater until thoroughly mixed, cook seven minutes, beating constantly, or until frosting will stand in peaks. Remove from fire, add flavoring and beat until thick enough to spread.

BED WARMER

Bed warmers have long since gone the way of nightcaps and feather beds. We don't need them nowadays — for we live in warm houses, work in steam-heated offices, ride in closed cars. Winter just isn't what it used to be.

And we don't need all the heavy old-fashioned foods people used to think necessary. That's why a bowl of crisp Kellogg's Corn Flakes is so refreshing these mornings — and so good for everybody.

No cooking, no trouble. Delicious with hot or cold milk. Splendid for the children's evening meal. Kellogg's are rich in energy — easy to digest. Why not order a red-and-green package today? Quality guaranteed.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

IT IS highly probable that Mr. J. G. McFadden, one of the theater's more ardent adherents, only sets down the thoughts of many another old-timer about the showshops when he writes:

"Dear Nelson: I'll be busy next week sure! Fox certainly offers a bargain. Eva Tanguay—it must be ten years since she played this town—and Corinne. Do you remember when she was a handsome young star in the 90's and everyone sang with her, "Oh, What a Difference in the Morning," and later when she was the lead with Roger Brothers? And the George Washington University mixed chorus—always fine. What a treat!

"The Earle has Rosetta Duncan and Yorke & King, about as clever acts as can be offered.

"RKO-Keith's has personable Jack Whiting, who has earned his popularity; Palace, O'Hanlon and Zambuni, the wonderful dancers.

"Janet (long absent) Beecher, of many triumphs, returns to the Belasco; Vivienne Segal, Charles Purcell and Allan Rogers in 'Chocolate Soldier.'

"Wish you would refer to these long-time favorites and gallant troupers, if you can, and oblige, yours (Signed), MAC."

With pleasure, Mac, but how far back do you and Charlie McClintock and I go in a straight line, anyhow?

And at RKO-Keith's will be Wheeler and Woolsey, supported by Dorothy Lee and numerous others in a screen version of George Gershwin's "Girl Crazy." That, of course, has been mentioned before, but what you may not have heard is that these three, who have been together in so many pictures, are seriously considering organizing a traveling musical.

They plan to leave Los Angeles on or about June 1, making one-night stands in the South and Middle West on the way East. Well, it's a thought, anyway.

And that other rumor is afloat again, also. I mean the one to the effect that Greta Garbo, who has often said that she preferred Swedish farm life to living in the film capital, may return to Sweden. She has until June 1 to sign a new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer contract, but so far has given no intimation that she plans doing so—or that she does not, for that matter. At any rate, it is an A-1 rumor.

The Columbia Players, who, with their recent victory in this year's city-wide one-act play tournament brought their record to three first places out of six contests, are now busily at work rehearsing Philip Barry's three-act play, "Holiday," to be presented in late April.

Come to think of it, they didn't enter one contest, so it is three out of five they have won.

The Players won the one-act tournament with "The Monkey's Paw" in 1929; repeated in 1930 with "When the Ship Goes Down," and this year scored with Paul Green's "Quare Medicine." Not content with winning the play prize, the group also walked off with the first individual prize for acting, won by Frank Jamison, and the first prize for diction and voice, won by Orris Holland, who is directing "Holiday" and fast whipping it into shape.

The cast of "Holiday" includes Willard Miller, member of the "Quare Medicine" cast; Dorothea Lewis and Robert Miller, who, affiliated with another group, were members of the 1928 one-act contest winner, "The Valiant;" George Odell, Orabella Claflin and S. Allen Foster.

The Columbia Players, incidentally, received an anonymous crank letter just before the finals of the recent contest, warning them against singing a hymn on the stage and laughing at sending clothes to the heathen.

Of all things!

Al Mitchell, serving his second trick as conductor and master of ceremonies at the Fox, is bidding the Capital farewell this week with his gala Easter program.

Phil Lampkin, who succeeds Mr. Mitchell, already has been seen on the Fox stage briefly and will be recalled by patrons of the theater as the only left-handed leader ever to wield a baton in front of a Washington orchestra.

Mr. Lampkin, at the age of 25, furthermore, is the youngest conductor and m. c. in any American theater of the first rank. His favorite instrument is the cornet, or trumpet, upon which, it will be remembered, he tooted an excessively hot solo upon the occasion of his last local appearance.

Mr. Lampkin will assume his new duties a week from today.

Word comes from that high-strung Southern gentleman, Mr. Sam Galanty, head man of the local offices of Columbia Pictures, that Eugene P. Thackray, prominent political writer and newspaperman, has been signed by his company to do the screen treatment for the recently acquired "Washington Merry-Go-Round."

Mr. Thackray, who was a Washington correspondent during the presidential term of Calvin Coolidge, covered both the Coolidge and Hoover campaigns and is thoroughly conversant with the "inside" of official Washington. He severed his connection as a political writer with the New York Herald Tribune to join Columbia's writing staff.

Reverting to Wheeler and Woolsey in "Girl Crazy" for a moment, so confident is Manager Hardie Meakin of RKO-Keith's that the combination of these two buffoons and Gershwin music will pack his house, that five de luxe performances are announced for tomorrow.

And a week from tomorrow, April 2, RKO-Keith's will inaugurate an augmented vaudeville policy, with six acts of the grade A rating on the program, headed by the original Roxy's Gang from the Roxy Theater, New York.

When RKO announced the resumption of a vaudeville policy on Fifteenth street, the promise was made that it would be done in a big way. The announcement for April 2 would seem to bear out the preliminary boasts, but there is still a well defined doubt in the back of this column's obtuse skull as to just where all of the headline acts are coming from. The supply is not inexhaustible—or at least never has been.

As if I didn't already have headaches enough!

SCHOLASTICS ENTER SEMIFINALS OF A. A. U. TOURNEY; NATS DEFEAT SPRING HILL COLLEGE IN NINTH, 12 TO 11

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

Biloxi, Miss., March 24.

IT IS NOT the habit of Connie Mack to overlook any bets for his Athletic's success in the pennant race, but it seems that one of his well laid plans went very much awry when Commissioner Landis ordered cancellation of the deal that sent Shortstop Joe Boley to Cleveland.

Mack's attempt to send Boley to the Indians and thus fill the gaping hole at shortstop for the Cleveland Club was not primally a philanthropic gesture toward the Indians on the part of the lean leader of the American League champions, but was a well intended effort to throw a higher obstacle in the path of the Yankees and Nats, the accepted contenders for Philadelphia's position of ranking.

By sending Boley to Cleveland, Mack apparently attempted to strengthen the Indians to the point where they would give him such assistance in the battle against New York and Washington. Cleveland was the only team to win a season's series from the Yankees last season and with the shortstop weakness corrected figured to offer even more resistance to New York and Washington.

It is history that the Boley deal was cancelled by the commissioner's office when it was revealed that it was a conditional sale between the clubs, with final payment of $10,000 involved withheld by Cleveland until Manager Peckinpaugh had passed opinion on Boley's condition at the Indian's training camp.

This optional sale between big league clubs, especially of the same league, long had been forbidden in the league constitution, and the wonder is that experienced baseball men like Connie Mack and Billy Evans, of Cleveland Club, attempted to negotiate such a trade.

The optional trade of a ball player between big league clubs of the same league strikes at the very foundations of organized baseball and if sanctioned by Commissioner Landis would pave the way for various subterfuges whereby one club holding a grudge against another club of the same league might loan a third club a star player to the detriment of the second club's chances. Optional trades are little more than loan of players, and Boley was thus ordered returned to the Athletics.

With Dibrell Williams performing sensationally at shortstop, Mack had little need of Boley, but the latter would have been a great help to the Indians in their bid for a first division berth, inasmuch as the club has lacked an acceptable shortstop for several seasons.

Connie Mack won the pennant by 14 games last season, but his attempt to strengthen the Indians by the Boley trade indicates that he would welcome some more assistance from Cleveland this season.

Both the Yankees and the Nats loom as stronger contenders this year and Mack is prepared to meet this sterner contention. His 14-game margin of victory last season was achieved even though three and sometimes four of his regulars were out of the game for weeks at a time, and ordinarily it would seem that with the Athletics' regulars always in condition, the margin of victory would have been greater.

But that line of argumentation is hardly sound inasmuch as the Athletics did not slump with their reserves in the game for weeks at a time, winning as steadily as the regular line-up. A game counts no more for the fact that it was won by regulars than reserves and it is difficult to see how the regulars could have won the pennant by a greater margin.

Griffith, owner of the Nats, is on a hunt for another infielder in his grand bid for the pennant this year, but he is in no great haste to obtain that individual. There is little prospect that another infielder will be acquired before the start of the pennant race and inasmuch as the man sought by Griffith must be a big leaguer, the Nats' owner probably will wait until the season starts or when the 23-player limit goes into effect on June 15 when the other clubs must prune their rosters.

◆

The possibility that Tony Lazzeri will become a member of the Washington cast is by no means remote inasmuch as Manager Joe McCarthy of the Yanks has relegated Lazzeri to the bench in favor of his youngsters, Lyn Lary, Frank Crosseti and Joe Saltzgaver, with Joe Sewell regarded as the first ranking utility man.

The Yankees asked for waivers on Lazzeri on two occasions last year, but withdrew their request when Washington claimed him each time. McCarthy is not eager to let Lazzeri go to the Washington Club, which he recognized as a pennant threat, but with the player limit reduced to 23, two less than last year, and the Yankees not inclined to release a raft of promising rookies, Lazzeri's passing from the New York Club this season is by no means improbable. Griffith wants him.

Lewis Throws McMillan In Philadelphia Bout

Philadelphia, March 24 (A.P.).—Strangler Ed Lewis, of California, and Sammy Stein, of Newark, were victors in a "double wind-up" wrestling card tonight.

The veteran strangler survived five of Jim McMillan's flying tackles and then clamped a body press on the Chicagoan for a fall in 37 minutes 22 seconds. It was Lewis' second conquest off McMillan.

Altrock's Hit Chief Blow Of Rally

Nick, Shacht, Harris, Rice and Berg in Infield Roles.

Thomas and Boyle Ineffective; Brown to Receive Test.

By SHIRLEY L. POVICH.
(Sports Editor, The Post.)

BILOXI, Miss., March 24.—Picture a Washington Ball Team with several of its component parts comprised of Nick Altrock at first base, Al Schacht at second base, Sam Rice at third base, and Moe Berg in center field and you will need no further explanation of why the Nats were forced to score 12 runs to beat the Spring Hill College team this afternoon. The score was 12 to 11.

Manager Johnson called it his hundred dollar infield. The Spring Hill lads called it the "hitters' delight." The official scorers were too fatigued to call it anything.

The Nats had compiled a 9-3 lead over the college boys in three innings before Altrock and Schacht et al got in their dastardly work. Envision a Washington team with Altrock batting in the important third position and Schacht hitting in the vital "clean up" role and you have an accurate idea of how the Nats scored the two winning runs in the last of the ninth—on errors by the college boys.

Manager Johnson gave two of his rookie pitchers a test this afternoon, offering for their protection an infield composed of Joe Kuhel on first, Dave Harris on second, Johnny Kerr at shortstop and Moe Berg at third, before he replaced this quartet with the Altrock-Schacht-Kerr-Rice combination after half the game.

Bud Thomas and Johnny Boyle, the rawest of the pitching rookies, helped their cause none this afternoon by their performances against Spring Hill. Thomas held them to eight hits and six runs in six innings and Boyle set the collegians down with five hits and five runs in three innings.

Spring Hill went into the ninth inning trailing, 10-9, and came out of it leading 11-10, when Sam Rice bamboozled a soft grounder with two out.

But the Nats scored the two winning runs in their half of the inning when Boyle walked with one out, and came all the way home when the shortstop threw Rice's easy grounder into the Washington dugout. Rice continued to second and Nick Altrock stepped up with the hit that won the game, a bouncer to the infield that drew the shortstop out of position for a throw to first. He threw to third, however, in attempt to catch Rice who continued on to home when the ball skidded past the third baseman.

Lefty Lloyd Brown will receive his first spring test on Saturday when the Nats oppose the Baltimore Orioles here. Bob Burke and Carl Fischer will share the mound duties.

While the Nats are playing the Orioles at Gulfport Sunday, the Washington Irregulars will meet the Biloxi Gulf Coast League team here.

Dave Harris, who hit two home runs against the Biloxi lads last Sunday, will get nothing but bases on balls next Sunday, the Biloxi manager declares. They aimed to pass him last Sunday, he adds, but the Biloxi pitcher mistook Harris for Carl Reynolds.

Umpire Mabry ejected Harris from the game today in the third inning after some remarks by the second baseman which he adjudged were uncomplimentary and a reflection on his umpiring ability. He was right.

BLAZING THE BASEBALL TRAIL

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 24 (A. P.).—With Babe Ruth hitting his first home run of the spring exhibition season, the New York Yankees nosed out a 4 to 3 victory over the world champion St. Louis Cardinals today. The triumph was the Yanks' second over the Cards and their eighth in eleven games.

The biggest crowd of the season here, 2,100 fans, saw Ruth send the Yanks away to a 2-run lead in the first inning, hitting his circuit drive off Bill Hallahan with Myril Hoag on base. Lazzeri's triple and Dickey's double off Derringer in the sixth tied the game after the Cards had made three runs off Ruffing.

Derringer also yielded what proved to be the winning run. Gehrig walked, took second on a balk and scored on Chapman's single in the seventh.

San Francisco, March 24 (A.P.).—San Francisco's Missions hammered "Dutch" Henry, Chicago Cubs' left hander, unmercifully today and took an 11-4 win from the National Leaguers.

The Coast League outfit pounded Henry for 9 hits and 8 runs before he gave way to Ed Baecht in the fourth inning. The Missions also completed five double plays.

The McGrawmen scored in the second on a walk, a hit, an error and a passed ball. They added three more in the fourth on three hits, including a home run by Ott.

The Bucs counted in the sixth on L. Waner's single and a long fly by Comorosky. The Giants added one more in the eighth on Ott's double and sacrifice hits by Marshall and Verges.

Marty McManus, veteran infielder, today banged out a homer to give the Boston Red Sox a 3-2 victory over the Hartford Club of the Eastern League in the opening game of the American Leaguers' spring training schedule. MRS. HILL'S 159 GAINS CROWN Western Star Takes Mid-South Title; Shoots 78.

SOUTHERN PINES, N. C., March 24 (A.P.).—Mrs. O. S. Hill, the Western champion, today added the women's Midsouth championship to her golfing laurels by shooting a 78, one over women's par, on the final eighteen holes.

Today's play was over the No. 2 course of the Southern Pines Country Club, which is not so long as the No. 1 course, scene of the first eighteen-hole battle. There was also less wind, and as a result most of the field turned in better scores.

Mrs. Hill was hitting her long shots well, but had difficulty on the greens, otherwise she might have been several strokes under her 78. She went out in 38, one under par, but took a 40 on the home stretch. Miss Wall had a 42 on each nine.

Mrs. Joseph Bydolek, Buffalo; Mrs. Richard Clemson, Middletown, N. Y., and Mrs. H. F. Drennan, Tulsa, Okla., the champion, finished in a triple tie for fourth place, with 178 each.

Mrs. Tom Wallace, Tulsa, was next with 179. Helen Waring, New York, one of the pretournament favorites, shot a sensational 37 on the out nine today, but her game collapsed after she ran into trouble on the tenth hole. She struggled home with 51 for an 88 and a total of 180.

Mrs. E. B. Morrow, Baltimore, followed her with 181.

Paddy Mullins, Fight Manager, Succumbs

Among the boxers Mullins managed were Harry Wills, the Negro heavyweight; Mike O'Dowd, Pete Latzo, former welterweight champion, and Mike McTigue, former light-heavyweight champion.

He had not been very active of recent years since the elimination of Wills as a heavyweight menace.

SPORTS AUTHORITY DIES.

SZABO LOSES MATCH TO MANICH

1,900 See Battle at Strand; Grobmeier, Kley in Victory.

HEAPING insult upon injury and then throwing on a little more injury, George Manich dynamited Sandor Szabo off his proud rassling pedestal last night, tossing the bronzed Hungarian, with a series of vicious crotch holds and body slams before 1,900 cheering fans in the Strand Theater.

The end came after 38 and one-half tumultous minutes during which these boys, who brawled to a 30-minute draw at the Auditorium last week, used every weapon in rassling, a few in wrestling, and plenty that a couple of boxers might employ in the fiercest of grudge fights.

Bad Man Manich had the crowd with him throughout, seemingly, because the Hungarian indulged in too much hitting with the closed fist. But George retaliated with some murderous kicks in the stomach, which however, were looked upon kindly. Any other result would probably have started a riot.

Szabo Shows He Can Take It.

Szabo, for the greater part of the match, kept his few supporters at ease, for most of Manich's punishment rolled off his rippling muscles like water at the Falls of Niagara, but toward the end he began to play the ropes for safety, indicating that he was weakening. This condition he made worse by tossing his tough opponent five times with back-body drops, only to see George r'arin' for more battle and finding his own energy almost spent.

Then Sandor and his skeptical friends "got the works." Manich snatched him up like a naughty youngster, threw him to the floor and repeated this twice to render him helpless. George's final gesture was to leap upon the prostrate man with the thought, "I wish I weighed a ton."

Fred Grobmeier's usual victory was tainted with the aid of Lady Luck, his patented figure-four scissors failing to dispose of Frank Speers until the latter struck his head on the edge of the ring. They carried Frank to the dressing room.

George McCloud also was helped in triumph over Oke Shakima, Japanese star, when Oke came up feeling anything but Oke after bouncing his cranium against the same unyielding boards. However, McCloud was obviously getting the better of the scuffle by virtue of a number of flying headlocks. Shakima finally stumbled forward and McCloud pinned him fast.

Fritz Kley sent Jack Hurley to the showers in 4½ minutes with a body slam, and Ralph Wilson, the eminent Philadelphia physician, drew with Nick Nestor, one of the few times in a few thousand matches that Nestor hasn't finished on the bottom.

Turner Matches Manich And Londos Next Week

By virtue of his upset victory last night over Sandor Szabo at the Strand Theater in 38½ minutes, George Manich was rewarded with a bout against Jim Londos next Thursday night at the Washington Auditorium.

Londos has just returned to his Eastern stamping grounds from a Pacific Coast invasion. He was in communication with Matchmaker Joe Turner last night. It will be the Greek titleholder's third appearance here this year, having beaten Kirilenko and Szabo in previous tussles.

Wood Leads North-South Tourney

By DILLON GRAHAM.

PINEHURST, N. C., March 24 (A. P.).—Craig Wood, of Deal, N. J., coupled two par-plundering rounds of 69 today to gain the halfway leadership in the 72-hole North and South tournament here as the competing professionals showed their scorn of the course's perfect figures by a barrage of sub-par scores.

Wood's 138 total gave him a two-stroke advantage over Paul Runyan, from White Plains, N. Y., whose fine 67 topped the first round cards.

Wood's morning card showed five birdies and an eagle, while he shot the same number of birdies in the afternoon. Two blows behind Runyan, a former titleholder, after the morning round he matched his earlier performance while Runyan slumped to 73, largely as the result of being trapped on the eighteenth.

Walter Hagen, Detroit, and Joe Kirkwood, New York, tied for third place with 142 each, both having 70—72's while four players were bracketed at 143: Harry Cooper, Chicago, Johnny Farrell, New York; Johnny Golden, Noroton, Conn., and John Kinder, Irvington, N. J.

Sarazen Soars in Afternoon.

Gene Sarazen, New York, whose 69 gave him a second place tie for the morning round, soared to 75 this afternoon for a total of 144, while Tommy Armour, Detroit, carded 145, the result of a great 69 in the afternoon after a high 76 in the opening round.

Wiffy Cox, last year's winner, was another morning leader who faltered. Cox had 71, 76—147, and Ed Dudley, Wilmington, Del., put 77 with a morning 72 for a 149, where he was tied with the national open champion, Billie Burke, Providence, R. I. Burke started with a 77, but tightened in the afternoon to turn in a 72. Tommy Kerrigan had 146.

Six stars marked up 69s, Cooper, Armour, Golden, Kinder, Sarazen and Wood (twice).

Kinder had one of the best rounds of the day, his card showing five birdies and an eagle. He needed par on the last three holes, but three-putted each.

Runyan Gets Six Birdies.

Runyan's low came after he started with a 6, but he went out in par and came in in 31, showing six birdies. Had not the putting touch been missing, MacFarlane might have had the low, for he had a 72 in the morning, including three putts on the first seven greens.

Wood's trouble this afternoon came on the short holes, where he took four on the three-par layouts.

Wood's card:

Kress, Browns' Holdout, Ready to Sign Contract

Oakland, Calif., March 24 (A.P.).—Ralph (Red) Kress, St. Louis Browns infielder, told newspapermen today he would telegraph immediately to President Phil Ball his acceptance of a contract for a salary of $8,000 for the 1932 season. He said he probably would leave for St. Louis tomorrow.

Kress said he would accept an $8,000 offer after Owner Ball had announced the offer would be cut to $7,500 tomorrow. The infielder had demanded a $10,000 contract. The St. Louis club owner's last telegram to Kress said: "You have temporized with us too long already, which has caused your head to swell. The club does not need you as much as you think."

Miller, Beaver Dam Pro, Resigns Post

Leaves Washington to Take Job With Baltimore Country Club.

Henry D. Miller, golf professional at Beaver Dam Club, has resigned to take effect on the first of the month, when he will leave Washington to become assistant to William Scott, professional at the Baltimore Country Club. With two courses in operation, including Five Farms where the national amateur championship will be played next fall, an assistant professional has become necessary.

Miller came to this city during the World War from the Pittsburgh Country Club, where he was club professional, in connection with a proposition to build a golf course on the steel company's property on Glesboro Point, and when this idea was abandoned served temporarily at the Washington Golf and Country Club. Later he became professional at East Potomac and Rock Creek Parks, and went to Beaver Dam in 1925, where he has since remained. No action has yet been taken concerning his successor at Beaver Dam.

Petrolle Wins Technical Knockout

Battalino Saved by Referee in Last Round.

18,000 See "Fargo Express" Defeat His Rival.

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.
Special to The Washington Post.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, New York, March 24.—The greatest cleaver-and-black prize fight ever fought in the New Madison Square Garden came to a queer, untimely conclusion in the twelfth and final round this evening when Gunboat Smith, the referee, stopped Billy Petrolle, an Italian from Fargo, N. Dak., and ordered him to desist from punching Bat Battalino, of Hartford, Conn., the overgrown featherweight who lately resigned the championship of the 126-pound division.

Neither fighter had gone to the floor for an instant in eleven and more rounds of chin-punching reminiscent of the 40-round days of Gans, Nelson and Wolgast. In the twelfth round, however, Battalino suddenly and strangely began to fade under the force of punches which up to that time had rattled off his chin like birdshot off the skin of a dreadnaught.

Battalino naturally was under suspicion, winning or losing, on account of his previous record which may be looked up in any recent newspaper file or boxing record. Gunboat Smith watched Petrolle firing uppercuts unimpeded and unretarded at Battalino's jaw for a minute and 30 seconds of the final round and deeming Battalino to be helpless stepped in and awarded the fight to Petrolle by a technical knockout.

Battalino Gets Great Attention.

Battalino assumed an appearance of drunken stupor as he went to his corner and his seconds gave him great attention as he slid into his clownish red-and-white bathrobe to leave the ring. He seemed to be very well used up as he slumped off the platform and sagged away in the arms of his handlers, but Battalino had established a theatrical reputation in other fights before this one and there was naturally some reason to wonder whether he felt as ill as he seemed to.

The fact remained that Bat Battalino, who has been one of the greatest featherweight and lightweight fighters of his time these last couple of years, was technically knocked out without being knocked down and further interesting fact was that his seconds, contrary to the custom of the prize fight business did not hop into the ring, screaming and bleating against the injustice of it all.

But it is a matter of guesswork and no importance except to the bookmakers, who are among the most prominent patrons of the prize fight in New York, whether Battalino could have finished the fight on his feet to lose merely by a decision. He fought like a dog on his dilapidated nose.

The fight was one of those mad battles which become slightly historious on the sport pages, and the

Dempsey-Carnera Bout Taking Shape

Sacks Confers With Reno Promoter; Ex-Champ Ready to Train.

Chicago, March 24 (U.P.).—The proposed heavyweight bout between Jack Dempsey and Primo Carnera, at Reno, Nev., July 2 or 4, appeared near consummation today on the arrival here of the former heavyweight champion and his manager, Leonard Sacks, and Jim McKay, Reno sportsman.

Sacks indicated that the match virtually was made, but said that he had not signed any contracts. It was learned that McKay conferred with Bill Duffy, American representative of Carnera, while in New York and that the giant Italian will return to this country next month. McKay refused to discuss his offer to Carnera.

Dempsey will make the final appearance of his exhibition tour at Detroit, March 31, after which he will return to Reno for a rest before beginning actual training for his intended comeback.

King Levinsky, Chicago heavyweight, also is a contemplated opponent for Dempsey in a 10-round bout in Soldier Field or one of the ball parks this summer. Levinsky won a newspaper decision from Dempsey in a 4-round exhibition bout with big gloves in February.

Capitol Towers Five Gains 115-Pound Court Title.

By BOB CONSIDINE.

THE diadem of undisputed champion was placed upon the composite heads of two more basket ball teams last night in the District A. A. A.—Washington Post tournament at Tech High Gymnasium as the Highlander Girls and the Capital Tower Pharmacy 115-pound club decisively defeated their final opponents, the Bennings Girls and the Western Flashes, respectively, by scores of 38-12 and 32-19.

Tech High's Maroon Scholastics capped the night of play by ramming a 61-23 decision down the throats of the Clifton Barbers thus emerging into the semifinal round where they will meet Delaware and Hudson next Monday for the right to meet the winner of Saturday's epic battle between the Saks Clothiers and the Central "C" Club.

The Shade Shop Five gained the final bracket of the 145-pound section by doing away with the War Department A. G. O. team, 44-29, a victory which retired to the sidelines a club that has caused two of the great upsets of the tournament.

The victory of the Maroons was doubly more thrilling than the decisive score indicates. Tech trailed, 14 to 18, with four minutes of the second half gone, only to turn on a furious double-barreled attack that swept Clifton off the court like some giant's hand might.

Clifton Defense Cracks.

Spraying through the Clifton defense like a flock of wild rabbits running through clover, Tech's master marksmen swarmed around the Clifton basket to drop such a succession of shots through the hoop that in five minutes that which had been a close and enthralling game had developed into an equally interesting rout.

Such sheer power has not been seen in the tournament to date. Tech, before it had completed its devastating shooting, and man for man defense hoisted its score 47 electrifying points, while the Barbers were squeezing 5 points from the field of battle.

Tech's ruthless march took its toll five minutes from the end when Jim Reed, in a shin barking melee under the Tech basket, threw his right shoulder out of joint. Dr. Harry Piddesop, administrator to such accidents, put the ailing member in its sprocket and Reed suffered no ill effects.

Tech was off to a fairly safe early lead, but stood by almost shocked when the Barbers, rated a heavy underdog, drew the score up from 4-14 to 14-14 at the half on splendid play by Frank Cumberland and Max Jewler. Cumberland's guarding of Everett Russell, Tech's favorite son, was almost airtight.

Keesey and Letvin gave the hair-clippers their 18-14 lead at the start of the second half with fine baskets, but Waverly Wheeler started the Tech march casually with a foul shot, and when Bernie Reichardt looped in a pot, and Carrol Daly, Everett Russell and Fred Thomas followed this with a long shot apiece, the team was on fire. Wheeler gave a tremendous demonstration of basket shooting, garnering 21 points during the fireworks. Tech came from 14-18 to 37-18 before the Barbers scored.

One fan summarized the situation after the game by demanding of the working press, "Who was that team Tech played in the second half?"

Shade Shop Eliminates War Department, 40-29

The Shade Shop quintet brought about the downfall of the "upset team" of this year's tournament, War Department A. G. O., to reach the final round in the 145-pound class. But the winners were obliged to stave off a typical A. G. O. rally in the waning moments of the frey to hold their victory. The final score was 40 to 29.

The Shade Shop swept everything before it in compiling a 28-10 lead in the first half. They added to this in the first ten minutes of the second half, running the score to 40-14, and incidentally, setting the stage for the War team's final spurt. Althens and Bugg were responsible for the rebellion. The former scored 7 points and his teammate 8, bringing the score to 40-29 before Herman Franke shook himself loose to sink a snowbird. He was followed by Lassise, and a few seconds later the final whistle ended the struggle.

Cotter, Lassise and Bruder were spearheads in the Shade Shop attack which ripped through their opponents' defense in the first half like a hose splattering water through a paling fence.

SAKS PLAYS 'C' CLUB IN TOURNEY

Central in Semifinal Fray Tomorrow; No Games Tonight.

THE District A. A. U. basket ball tournament, sponsored by The Washington Post, and now nearing a thrilling denouement, marks time tonight, Good Friday, but will burst into another flame of court competition tomorrow night at Tech High when Central's "C" Club five runs up against the Saks Clothiers in one of the basket ball features of the year.

This game will go on at 9:30 o'clock, to be preceded by a clash between the St. John's Victors and the Northern Preps. Both games are semifinal affairs, and the winners will march into the final and title deciding rounds of the unlimited and 130-pound sections.

Able to get past the J. C. C. only by the skins of their teeth, Saks will not be too confident tomorrow night when Central's determined club is met. Central pulled the greatest feat of the tournament early in the week by defeating the seeded No. 1 team, the Griffith Consumers, in a bruising quarter-final round upheaval of form. And the Clothiers recall that the Griffs beat them out for the Section A title in the Community Center League.

The St. John's-Northern Preps game looks like a natural. The game has hopped around the schedule for the last two days. It was originally scheduled for tomorrow night, but was moved up to last night and then moved back again. The Saints will be hampered by an ankle injury suffered by Fred Scheele while practicing yesterday. The Preps have a tremendously powerful team, having beaten the "Y" Flashes, 43 to 7, after leading them, 26 to 0, in the third period of the game.

But St. John's numbers giants among its victims this year. Not only did The Post's prep school tournament fall to them, but they beat Tech and Eastern in outside games.

The Central-Saks game brings together many of the greatest players ever assembled on one court in Washington. Saks bristles with such names in the local court firmament as Sherman, Lucas, Noonan, Jones, Hook and Fisher, while Central's line-up is composed of names that are household words in Washington—Billy Burke, Buddy Nau, Bits Keyser, Gene Swift and Rex Smith.

Pinehurst, N. C., March 24 (A.P.). Bobby Jones, of Atlanta, who won all of golfdom's major titles and then left competitive play, was elected an honorary member of the Tin Whistles, international golfing society, at its annual meeting here today.

Edward H. Batson, of Washington, was elected president today and Percy W. Thomson, of New York and Bermuda, was named vice president.

Sande Answers Racing Call; May Accept Derby Mount

By THOMAS H. NOONE.

NEW YORK, March 24 (U.P.).—Earl Sande must ride horses to be happy. He may again ride in the Kentucky Derby this year, attempting to surpass the record of three Derby-winning mounts held jointly by himself and Isaac Murphy, colored star of a by-gone day.

The United Press learned from reliable authority today that W. F. Knebelkamp, owner of Delivered, is angling for the services of Sande on Derby Day. An agreement is expected within 24 hours.

One of America's foremost riders for over a decade, Earl Sande is well known by racegoers of this country. Back in 1923, when the Rancocas Stable of Harry F. Sinclair was at its zenith, he scored his first Derby triumph with Zev. Since then he won stake after stake.

After suffering an almost fatal accident, this crack rider came back in 1929 to win the Derby with Gifford A Cochran's Flying Ebony. It was a last-minute assignment, but he rode a perfect race.

Finally weight got the better of

MODESTO SETS TRACK RECORD IN FEATURE AT ST. JOHN'S

Star Juvenile Wins From Meany

First Mission, at 30-1, Beats Good Field in Fifth Race.

ST. JOHNS PARK, Fla., March 24 (A.P.).—One of the best juvenile fields to perform at the meeting competed in the Bayard Purse, a 4-furlong dash, here this afternoon. Modesto, a smart performer in Southern Florida, justified her heavy backing by breezing past the pagoda pole three lengths clear of Meany. Strait Jacket annexed third money an additional length away.

Modesto hung up a new track record of 0:48 4-5 over a drying out track, but the filly had a strong wind behind her most of the trip. She paid $3.60 for $2.00.

A good start found Flying Dragon first to show, but that colt was quickly swallowed up by Modesto, Meany and Spero. Meany tried to cut down the daylight which separated him from the leader, but Modesto drew away steadily through the stretch and was under control. Spero tired in the final furlong and Strait Jacket, well back early, closed very rapidly and nabbed the show position right at the end.

Blue Day Thrills

Long-Shot Players.

Blue Day, a son of Whiskaway which campaigned successfully at Havana and experienced a rough trip in one local outing, provided long-shot players with a thrill by leading some good sprinters home in the claiming handicap, fourth on the program. Under 100 pounds, Blue Day won easily by a length and a half and returned $43.80. Out Bound was a like distance before Single Star for the place. Little America, the favorite, took the track but could not shake off Aliens, with the result that the two leaders stopped coming to the stretch. Blue Day, next in pursuit, then forged to the fore and held Out Bound safe with little trouble in the final stages.

First Mission proved the longest priced winner of the meeting in the fifth event, the gelding paying $61.80 for a $2 wager. Little Donald Meade completed a double by guiding the son of Chatterton to a length score over Justina. Brookside, away very slowly, came like a wild horse in the stretch to take the show another length back. First Mission broke fast but Justina was rushed up to take command approaching the far turn. The two leaders raced closely aligned with Justina weakening in the drive to the wire. Ellice was outrun and tired.

SANDE MAY SIGN FOR DERBY MOUNT

Sande and he hung up his tack. He assembled a stable of racers and started out with a flourish as owner-trainer, even riding his own horses on occasion. But the venture was short-lived, and ill fortune stripped the young owner of his stable and his bankroll.

During the winter of 1928-29 the "washed-up" Sande planned a comeback. He galloped the horses of William Woodward's Belair Stud, and secured a contract to ride Gallant Fox for the president of the Jockey Club in that colt's 3-year-old engagements.

Gallant Fox swept through the year 1929 with only one defeat, losing only the Travers Stake at Saratoga. Sande, riding for 10 per cent of the earnings of the son of Sir Gallahad III, recouped his fortunes and made a host of new friends.

After parting company with Gallant Fox, Earl went in for theatrical work, again forsaking his first love. This venture proved more profitable than that of racing horses. But the urge to ride would not be stilled.

He visited Florida a short time ago and once he saw the horses in action, the desire to ride reasserted itself. The old master announced that he will attempt another comeback.

This year's crop of 3-year-olds is a promising one, and should afford Sande plenty of material with which to match his wits and skill against the younger jockeys now in the limelight. There are many who, having unlimited faith in this seasoned veteran, predict that their idol will again attain the heights in 1932.

Bluecoats Form Alexandria Nine

Alexandria, Va., March 24.—Jesse A. Thomas was elected business manager of the Alexandria Police Department Baseball Team at an organization meeting today. Twenty-one members of the local department signed to perform with the "Blues" and it was decided to play all games at Baggett's Stadium on week-days.

George Everly, former star hurler with Alexandria independent teams, who also saw action in the Shenandoah Valley loop, was elected field manager and Detective Sergt. Edgar Sims, former Celtics star, was named as field captain. Fred N. Baker is secretary of the police team and Earl Sullivan is treasurer. The latter also will catch or play the outfield.

Among the outstanding players are Buck Stover, pitcher-first baseman with the Cardinals and Odd Fellows, and Earl Watkins, catcher, who saw action with the Breenmen. Watkins was voted the most valuable player in the old R. F. & P. League.

Others are Allie C. Jones, pitcher-infielder; George Elmore, pitcher; James Clarke, infielder; John Townsend, outfielder; Charlie Curtis, third base and outfield; Henry Grimm, outfield; Joseph Butler, shortstop; Claude McDonald, second base and outfield; William R. Hicks, catcher; James Bayliss, George Embrey, Clarence McClary, Clifford Dodd and Russel Hawes, outfield.

St. John's Park to Close Tomorrow, Due to Losses

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 24 (A.P.).—Winter racing on the Florida turf, originally scheduled to end at St. Johns Park March 31, will terminate Saturday.

Permission to shorten the meeting was given Bill Dwyer and William Gallagher, principal owners of the track, today by the Florida State Racing Commission. Lack of support was given as the main reason for cutting short the ten-day session.

Late today a number of horsemen stabling at St. Johns decided to get up a petition requesting the track to reconsider its decision to close. The management will consider the petition, and there is at least an outside chance that a way will be found to continue the meeting as originally scheduled.

Since opening Monday, the attendance at the course has been unusually small—partly due to the inclement weather. The play in the mutuels has been correspondingly small, barely reaching the $30,000 mark on the opening day.

As the result of the closing of St. Johns, the United States will be without thoroughbred racing on a major track from March 28 to March 31—the longest period in recent years. The Northern season opens at Bowie, Md., April 1.

WANDERING GOLD, hurried into a forward position, responded to stout pressure in the closing three-sixteenths, slipped through on the inside entering the home stretch and took a driving command in the final furlong, held on stoutly to outstay SUNNY SUSAN. Latter, prominent and going in her best form, made a determined effort nearing the finish, but was not good enough. STUPENDOUS worked her way up on the outside and closed fastest of all in the final furlong. EDDIE LEHMANN showed a good effort.

AFRIDI, sent into a forward position going to the first turn, improved his position when near the far turn, finished stoutly on the outside and was up in the final strides. WINNIE C. sprinted into a commanding lead when straightened out in the back stretch, began tiring during the final quarter mile, but fought it out desperately until the end. PAL TO PAL, steadied along in the early racing, closed stoutly on the inside during the final drive. GAYOLA, slow to get going and forced to race wide for racing room, closed a good gap. JIMMIE C was unable to threaten the leaders. BAAL, kept close up and racing on the inside in the early stages, faltered when the real test came. Bo Ballot broke flatfooted and was practically left.

THIRD RACE—Four furlongs. Purse, $800; allowances. Bayard Purse. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:30½. Off at 3:35. Winner, Mrs. S. F. Murphy's br. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—MODESTO, $3.50, $2.20, $2.20; MEANY, $2.30, $2.30; STRAIT JACKET, $2.60.

MODESTO went into command with a rush after the opening sixteenth, displayed good speed to shake off MEANY and, under mild urging, drew out cleverly in the final furlong. MEANY, stoutly ridden the entire trip, weakened fast during the closing quarter mile. STRAIT JACKET, badly outrun in the opening furlong, finished with a tremendous rush. SPERO closed full of run on the outside. SERGEANT HILL was racing stoutly at the end. SWEET SIXTEEN held on well after racing close up early. FLYING DRAGON dropped back immediately after the break. NORMAN quit.

BLUE DAY, following close up, moved to the leaders with a rush when entering the home stretch and, kept under slight urging, came away steadily approaching the finish. OUTBOUND, outrun for the first half mile, swung to the outside when straightened into the home stretch and finished stoutly. SINGLE STAR responded to punishment in the final furlong and came courageously on at the finish. LITTLE AMERICA, hard ridden for the first half mile, weakened badly after racing. FIRST MISSION, coming in improved fashion and a keen factor from the beginning, raced JUSTINA and ELLICE into submission in the first five furlongs, took command midway of the home stretch and drew away steadily. JUSTINA, stoutly urged to take early command, showed good speed while setting the pace, was placed to punishment in the closing furlongs, but was not good enough for the winner. BROOKSIE, slow to get going and a distant trailer for the first half mile, closed with a bold spurt through the home stretch. COADY was never able to reach the leaders. ELLICE began to weaken after the opening three furlongs.

SIXTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $800; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won handily; place, driving. Went to post at 5:08½. Off at 5:09½. Winner, P. H. Carpenter's ch. g. TACK, restrained in the first early racing, moved to the pacemakers steadily after the first five furlongs, assumed the lead when straightened into the home stretch and, kept under strong pressure, was going away at the end. TANTALIZING sprinted into a long lead while under slight early restraint, was all out to the wire and continued gamely when placed to a drive. SAND FIDDLER, crowded back going to the first turn, went to the outside for racing room when straightened on the back stretch and closed resolutely. EVELYN F. improved her position on the inside and was gaining at the end. OUR PAL could not threaten the leaders. RAVE began tiring after five furlongs. IDEAL quit badly.

MUFF, showing a return to her best form, followed within striking distance of the leaders, circled around the outside when moving to the leaders and, assuming command nearing the final furlong pole, had enough in reserve to withstand GOLD MINT, who, blocked midway of the back stretch, went to the outside thereafter and closed with good courage. GENIAL HOST, slow to begin, responded stoutly to punishment and finished strong. PLUTARCH was used up racing with CRUSHED STONE and tired. CRUSHED STONE weakened during the final drive. CORBEAU was away slowly and could not reach a forward position. POLLY'S FOLLY tired badly.

LEWIS FACES BOWEN AT PORTNER'S

Strickler Avoided by Philly Boy; Change in Program.

DUE to the fact that no opponent could be secured for Billy Strickler, rugged Washington light-heavyweight, who was to have appeared in the eight-round semi-final, the Day Nursery matchmaker yesterday changed next Tuesday's card headed by the Jack Portney-Stumpy Jacobs duel.

Instead of two eights, the program has but one, the Portney-Jacobs bout, and in addition there will be one six and five four-rounders. However, the original number of rounds offered—34—will be presented.

In chief support of the Portney-Jacobs battle which is expected to produce thrilling action, will be a six-rounder between Patsy Lewis, promising Baltimore lightweight, and Ray Bowen, one of the famous family of fighting Bowens, of this city. Lewis, a southpaw, has won six bouts and secured one draw in seven appearances at Alexandria since December, while Bowen has had but one fight under his belt since November, when he dropped a four-round decision to K. O. Riley, of the Mohawk Club.

Young Van Back To Action.

Three of the five 4-round brawls have been arranged. Young Van, local middleweight who has three straight kayo victories to his credit, comes back after an attack of flu to oppose Jake Friedman, former amateur champion of Baltimore. Clarence Sloat, Baltimore welterweight, is down for an engagement with Sammy Braunstein, the slugging Marine, and Sam Finazzo, who defeated Braunstein last Tuesday, will trade wallops with Henry Irving, knockout artist of Northeast.

The matchmaker stated that he had sought several light heavies as possible opponents for Strickler, but that all turned down the local boy because he is a left-hander. Such was the reason, he declared, for the refusal of an offer to George Giachino, Philadelphia star, who recently fought a close bout with Bob Godwin, Southern champion.

Efforts will be made to match Strickler and Billy Schwartz, pride of Alexandria, for the show scheduled April 5. Strickler has been hounding Schwartz with challenges for some time, desiring to settle the question of light heavyweight supremacy of the District and Northern Virginia. Two years ago Schwartz was the winner by close decision at Rockville and Strickler ever since has been aching for a chance to prove the judges were wrong.

Gallaudet Eleven Lists Seven Foes

Seven games, four in Washington and three on foreign fields, will be played by the Gallaudet College football team next fall, it was announced yesterday. The Blues' schedule is about the same as in the past few seasons in point of the caliber of opposition secured.

American University will be one of the featured home foes for Coach Teddy Hughes' eleven, the game with the Eagles being scheduled for November 5, on the latter's field.

Washington College is listed as the opening opponent on October 8 at Kendall Green, while others to appear on the Blues' home gridiron are Baltimore University and Shepherd College, scheduled October 29 and November 19, respectively.

October 8—Washington College at home; 14, (night), La Salle College at Philadelphia; 22, Long Island University at Brooklyn; 29, Baltimore University at home.

November 5—American University at American University Field; 12, Juniata College at Huntington, Pa.; 19, Shepherd College at home.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

SUSTAINED flight of an airplane is maintained by the forward motion produced by the propeller acting as an "air screw." This in turn, causes the air to act upon the wings or airfoil, resulting in a partial vacuum on the top surface. Although the lift varies slightly with the design of the airfoil, the pressure on the under part is comparatively negligible.

Fires are not always extinguished with water. Wine, milk and even kerosene have been used. But here's the latest.

Walter Griffith, of Wenatchee, Wash., was taking a load of watermelons to market when suddenly the truck skidded and burst into flames. One after another, the melons were thrown on the blaze. Finally, the twenty-third completed the job.

It is quite common in many schools that the girls basket ball team is coached by a male. But just think of all the boys turning out for their team if it were headed by a pretty 23-year-old girl. This is just the case at Lomax, Tex., where Miss Arah Phillips is not only principal, but is also training her boys in hopes of keeping the county championship they won last season.

SHORE GAINS TENNIS FINALS

Capital Youth Winner in Two Sets

Defending Champion Plays Schwartzman Today.

Special to The Washington Post.

BALTIMORE, Md., March 24—Frank Shore, jr., of Washington, the defending title holder, and Maurice Schwartzman, Mondawmin Club, will battle it out for the junior crown in the Evening Sun-Fifth Regiment Annual Indoor Tennis Tournament tomorrow afternoon.

Two holdover matches were played in the quarter finals today. Larry Palitz, Johns Hopkins, won by default from James Krautblatter, Calvert Hall. They played two sets yesterday, Palitz winning the first, 9—7, and losing the second, 4—6. Krautblatter failed, however, to show up today.

Palitz's victory sent him against Shore in the semifinals, and he lost by 6—2, 6—3.

In the other quarter-final Morton Lipsitz, John Hopkins, won from Carl Hartman, Park School, 5—7, 7—5, 8—6. Lipsitz then encountered Schwartzman, the latter triumphing in straight sets, both by 6—3.

Albert Shapiro, Forest Park High School, and Max Askin, Public School No. 79, will compete for the boys' crown tomorrow. Shapiro was runner-up to Gilbert Hunt, of Washington, the 1931 champion, who did not compete this year.

Hitting the Head Pin

By LEWIS F. ATCHISON

HERBIE M'PROUTY and Brad Mandley took an awful disliking to Mr. Cox's duckpins at the Recreation Alleys last night, and spent two solid hours in doing their darndest to annihilate the pesky things. They looked pretty good in the role of exterminators.

Herbie bounced the bottles off the cushion for a set of 386, but Brad went him a few better, using a full half stick of Mr. Cox's best crayon to mark down, on one of Mr. Cox's best score sheets, a 430. The aforementioned Mr. Cox forthright showed them to the front door of his establishment and bade them never again darken his doorstep. But they'll be back again.

Mr. McProuty's son compiled his total through the orderly process of consistent scores, but Mr. Mandley's youngster had an amazing total of 186 tucked in among his three games. His other two scores were 108 and 138. Among other things he rolled a triple-header strike and fourteen spares. Whatta man! Incidentally, their team, Cook's Bakery, took a trio from the Stantons, rolling a high game of 639 and a set of 1,776.

Trio Christian bowlers cleaned up in the North of Washington Church League at Silver Spring last night. The team led the other quintets with a 545 game and 1,567 set. Jewett rolled a 340 set and Koenig topped it off with a 140 game.

In the Automotive League at Lucky Strike it was the Emerson & Orme boys who provided the merriment. Derries' 139 and Cone's 375 bagged the individual honors, while the anvil chorus chimed in to chalk up a 574 game and 1,551 set.

It was rather warm at the Rendezvous Alleys during the Intercollegiate Alumni League proceedings. Michigan took a fall out of the leading team, while Princeton was recovering its runner-up position by virtue of a 2 to 1 win over V. P. I. Cornell tied Lehigh for third place by winning all three from the latter. They are only a single game behind Princeton. Cornell's 1,378 and 539 were high. Sam McVey, of Navy, rolled 346 for his three games, and Jimmy Burns, of Maryland, clamped down on the game prize with 135.

The Veterans' Bureau pinspillers roped in the team honors in the Ladies Federal League at Arcadia, rolling a 541 game and 1,502 total for three. Maxine Fleming's 337 set and Miss Low's 132 game were the centers of attraction in the individual duckpin hunting.

Howard Campbell showed 'em how he used to do it when he laid away 386 pins for the Lucky Strike team in a District League match with Columbia on the former's alleys. Dey Boston, however, was 8 pins higher than Howard in the set, while his 155 game was cock of the walk. Lucky Strike took the deuce in the match.

All honors distributed in the War Department League at Arcadia went to the Hydrographic pin wreckers. Gauzza and Homan had a heated wrangle over the game prize, each rolling 146, but Homan won the dispute when he continued his fine work to hand up a 374 set. The team rolled an even 600 for team game honors, and 1,686 for the set.

Miss Harger's 309 and Miss Pashel's 285 copped the individual laurels in the Veterans Bureau Ladies League. Team honors were accorded the Nitwits, who turned in scores of 486 and 1,347.

Grace Purdy's 122 game and 318 set featured the bowling in the A. G. O. Ladies League at Columbia. Pursuit Group bagged the team honors with its 452 and 1,303.

George Hill marched off with high individual game in the Interior Department League at Arcadia, 139, and Gus Oberheim did the same to high set, 344. Land's 580 and 1,564 outdistanced the remainder of the field. Arcadia was the scene of the revelry.

CARDS AGAIN PICKED TO REPEAT

Club Likely to Get Stronger Fight This Season.

(This is another of a series of Associated Press stories on major league baseball prospects.)

By BRIAN BELL
(Associated Press Staff Writer).

Los Angeles, March 24 (A.P.).—It's a good rule in any sport to support the champion until he, she, or it, is defeated, so the St. Louis Cardinals will start the 1932 National League season a favorite to repeat. However, it may be a two-horse race before the last putout is made.

Old Sergt. Street's Red Birds seem just as good now as they were a year ago and they were good enough then to win a pennant and move right on to capture the world series.

Burleigh Grimes, the gnarled oak of the pitching mound, has moved on in his tour of the league, but the Cardinals have some youngsters, notably Tex Carleton and Dizzy Dean, to take his place in the rifle pits. In every department the Cards seem well, fortified and if the baseball fences need fixing later on there are hundreds of players on St. Louis farms ready to rally round.

If the Cardinals are to be challenged, the New York Giants seem to be the ones to do it. With a team in as good physical condition as any he has had in the spring, Manager John J. McGraw thinks, with a little luck, he will have something to say about the ultimate disposition of the championship.

The Giants will start with a recruit outfielder, Leonard Koenecke, as the only new face in the line-up. The Giants were good enough last year as long as they remained intact and if Hughie Critz continues fit, the baseball news should be interesting. If New York had the reserve strength of St. Louis, a nip and tuck race would be assured.

Chicago and Brooklyn should be in the neighborhood, ready for a drive if the Cardinals or Giants falter. The Cubs will be experimenting with two young, green infielders, Billy Herman and Stanley Hack, and the outfield has looked none too impressive on the spring tour, but the pitching will be good when hot weather comes around.

Brooklyn, in the past prone to jump from the sublime to the ridiculous, will be rated a dark horse, which seems about right, for in recent years it has been difficult to judge what the Dodgers will do from one day to the next. Manager Max Carey procured two infielders from Cincinnati when he needed infielders, but he had to give away Babe Herman, not consistent but nevertheless a driving hitter.

The Pittsburgh Pirates, Boston Braves, Philadelphia and Cincinnati should put on a good show. None of the quartet can be rated a pennant possibility on the face of the early returns, but they should smite all opposition part of the time as they go along.

Pittsburgh, under George Gibson, an old manager coaxed from retirement, has been only fair in training, none knowing better than "Gibbie" that the pay-off comes much later in the year. If the Buccaneers finish at the top of the second division their new manager should not hear any reproaches. They may be a couple of notches lower.

The Phillies have in Chuck Klein insurance that many a run will be batted in, the number depending on the ability of his mates to get on. Herman will strengthen the Reds' attack and Howley may get some first-class pitching. The popular Dan has shown that he is trying by making a near-record number of changes between seasons.

TRIO IS SENTENCED ON LIQUOR CHARGES

Fairfax Circuit Court Deals Out Fines; Auto Driver to Be Examined.

Henry Sillex was fined $100 and costs and sentenced to six months in jail yesterday by Judge Walter T. McCarthy, of the circuit court of Fairfax County. Sillex was charged with two offenses against the State prohibition law, one of them the possession of a still.

Charles S. Newman was fined $50 and costs and sentenced to one month in jail by Judge McCarthy yesterday on a charge of possession and transportation of ardent spirits. His companion, Carl W. Facker, pleaded guilty to a like charge and received a similar sentence. The jail sentence in both instances was suspended during good behavior of the defendants.

Paul E. Brown, a commissioner of chancery of the court, was appointed to settle the accounts of receivers and other persons appointed by the court to handle funds under court orders.

Dr. Fort Swetman and Dr. F. N. Brooks, of Fairfax, have been appointed to examine the mental condition of Joseph Henson Davidson, jr., 21, of Washington. Davidson was indicted Monday by the grand jury as the driver of the car which hit two cars on the Washington-Richmond highway, injuring the occupants, and fleeing the scenes of the accidents. His parents asked that his mental condition be examined before he is tried on the two indictments.

Rev. Herbert A. Donovan, rector of the Zion Episcopal Church, at Fairfax, will conduct Good Friday services this evening with Penitential office and at 8 o'clock he will give an illustrated address on the "Passion of Christ." Easter services will be held Sunday morning at 11 o'clock and will be centered around the Easter Holy Communion. Special music has been prepared by the choir, assisted by Miss Adelaide Lewis, soloist. At the other churches of the Fairfax charge and the Church of the Holy Comforter, at Vienna, the Easter services will be choral and Holy Communion.

The Rev. John G. Stadtler, rector of the St. John's Episcopal Church, at McLean, and St. Mary's Episcopal Church, at Rixey Station, has announced that he will conduct services this morning in St. John's Church at 11 o'clock and this evening at 8 o'clock in St. Mary's. Easter services will be held Sunday in both churches. The choirs of both churches have prepared special Easter music for all services. Similar services have been arranged by the other Episcopal Churches of the county and in many of them the music will be sung by augmented choirs.

Good Friday services in the St. James' Catholic Church at West Falls Church will be held this evening when the Stations of the Cross will be said. Easter Sunday services will be held at the usual hours.

Mrs. Warren N. Watson, chairman of the tuberculosis committee of Fairfax County, announced yesterday that the total receipts from the sale of Christmas seals had amounted to $1,242.19 this year. She states that in a year when sales have fallen off in many counties of the State this is the largest amount ever received in Fairfax County. According to figures issued by the State association the county advanced from tenth to seventh place in the list of per capita sales of the 100 counties of the State.

The county committee stated that it had sent out 1,700 letters last fall and had received replies to all but 300. The committee has already this year financed the dental work for children who are tubercular contacts and plans to work with the County Health Department in a tuberculosis survey later this summer.

Alexandria Masons Hold Maundy Thursday Rites

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

The annual Maundy Thursday service of the Randolph Chapter, Knights Rose Croix, Scottish Rite Masons, was held last night in the Methodist Episcopal Church South, on Washington street, and was open to the public. Roger C. Sullivan presided, and the invocation was offered by the Rev. P. C. Duborg. An address of welcome was made by Mr. Sullivan. Other speakers included John H. Trimyer, whose topic was "The Significance of Maundy Thursday in Scottish Rite Masonry;" the Rev. E. W. Aaron, pastor of the M. E. Church South; Harry F. Kennedy, who spoke on "The Dead," and the benediction by the Rev. Dr. William B. McIlwaine, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church. Miss Elizabeth Chamblin sang.

The ceremony of relighting the lights will take place at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the Masonic Temple, when the address will be delivered by the Rev. Dr. E. V. Regester, pastor of the Del Ray Methodist Church. This service will be for members only.

Toasts were given last night by the following: C. C. Wenrich, to "The Government of the United States of America;" B. K. Smith, to "The Supreme Council;" Harry F. Kennedy, to "The Grand Commander, John H. Cowles;" Percy E. Cliff, to "The Inspector General, Robert S. Crump;" Charles H. Callahan, to "The Grand Lodge of Virginia;" B. J. Richards, to "Our Brethren of the Rose Croix;" the Rev. P. C. Duborg, to "All Masons and Masonic Bodies of All Rites and Degrees Over the Surface of the Earth."

Councilman Michael T. Dwyer, of Alexandria, has issued a public statement to the effect that the voters of Alexandria have received a letter indorsing the "at large" plan of electing members of the council, which letter contained a list of citizens purporting to have signed it, among them being the name of Mr. Dwyer. He states this is an error which he desires to correct, since he is not in favor of the "at large" plan of city government, but is in favor of the plan which provides for a representative from each of the six wards of the city, with three councilmen to be elected at large, or the "council by ward plan."

Mr. Dwyer states that he attended a meeting at the George Mason Hotel on March 23, by invitation, to hear what was to be said in favor of the "at large" plan, and it is possible his presence was misconstrued; that he has consistently refrained from taking an active part in the coming election because of his membership in the present City Council.

Mr. Dwyer's statement concludes: "As between the two forms of government as now presented to the public, I feel that a council of nine, or the council by ward plan, is the most representative form of government, and I make this public statement for the purpose of having my attitude correctly understood, as I most earnestly do not want it to appear that I occupy a dual position."

Mr. Dwyer and Benedict Weil were elected by the council to fill the unexpired terms of Councilman Thomas J. Fannon and Carroll Pierce, both of whom resigned. Their terms will expire September 1, and both have announced themselves as candidates for reelection. A referendum vote as to the two plans of government will be taken on March 29, and it is understood after the results of that vote are ascertained the lists will be thrown open for additional candidates for the office of councilman. In the event the council at large plan is adopted there will be four councilmen at large to be elected; should the ward plan win, six councilmen, one from each of the wards of the city, will be chosen.

"The Significance of Easter," was the topic of a talk given before the Alexandria Kiwanis Club yesterday at its luncheon in the George Mason Hotel by the Rev. Dr. William B. McIlwaine, jr., pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church. Another feature of the program was a duet by Clarence Wells and Stephen Field, with Mrs. D. C. Book as accompanist. An "egg-picking" contest was won by Jerome Kaufman. D. C. Book, who presided, announced that the stag party to be given at Auth's plant in Washington, and sponsored by the Arlington Kiwanis Club, which was to have been given on March 30, has been postponed until April 5.

The crusade in Alexandria against unlicensed dogs has been renewed, and yesterday State Game Warden Harry Johnson had eleven persons cited into police court for failure to procure the required license. Fines of $5 and costs were imposed in eight cases, and sentence suspended, one fine of $10 and costs imposed, one dog ordered destroyed, and one case was dismissed.

At Christ Episcopal Church, Good Friday services will be at 10:30 a. m.

At St. Paul's Episcopal Church, the Good Friday service will be at 10:30 a. m., with the junior choir assisting.

E. E. Carver, in charge of the U. S. employment office in Alexandria, reported yesterday that in the last 24 hours employment has been obtained for 14 additional men, bringing his grand total since the establishment of his office up to 48.

Mrs. Emma Bowling, 79 years old, widow of James M. Bowling, died yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Earl Saum, at Burgundy Farm, near Alexandria. She is survived by three daughters, Mrs. Saum, Mrs. Clinton Talbot, and Mrs. Hattie Phillips, and one son, Arthur Bowling. The funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Funeral services for Mrs. Rosine Davis, who died Wednesday, will be conducted at 9 o'clock this morning at her late home, 224 East Howell Avenue, Alexandria, by the Rev. George Vest, rector of Emmanuel Episcopal Church. Burial will be at Mechanicsville, Md.

BOARD IN ARLINGTON TO STUDY BYRD BILL

BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Merits of the so-called Byrd road bill passed at the recent session of the General Assembly of Virginia will be considered at a special meeting of the County Board of Arlington County, to be held at the county courthouse tomorrow night at 8 o'clock, according to the chairman, Harry A. Fellows.

With the board holding a special meeting Thursday evening, March 31, at the courthouse to consider the budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1, Mr. Fellows says it is necessary to consider the merits of the bill prior to taking any definite action on the adoption of the county budget.

The bill provides that the State will take over all county roads for maintenance, which, if approved by the county, makes it possible for a considerable saving in taxes to the local taxpayer. The present road tax in Arlington County is 60 cents on the $100 assessed valuation.

Virginia income and personal tax blanks were being distributed yesterday from the office of Harry K. Green, commissioner of revenue for Arlington County. He announced that he and his assistants are now ready to assist the taxpayers in making out their returns.

As a courtesy to taxpayers, Mr. Green and his assistants announce that they are prepared to aid in filling in the blanks daily between 8:30 a. m. and 4:30 p. m., at their offices at the courthouse. On Saturdays the office will close at 1 o'clock.

The Virginia State Corporation Commission has granted charters to the following corporations, according to the records in the office of County Clerk William H. Duncan, for Arlington County:

Walker's Trilby's, Inc., with offices located at East Falls Church. The capital stock as provided by the charter is: Maximum, $1,000; minimum, $500. The officers are: Philip P. Harvey, president; Ruth E. Ashton, vice president, and Ethel Y. Harvey, secretary-treasurer. The board of directors consists of these officers.

The Motorlog Publishing Incorporation with principal offices at Rosslyn, Va. The charter provides for a maximum capital stock of $40,000 with a minimum placed at $2,000. The officers are: C. A. Keefer, president; Dorothy B. Keefer, vice president, and William P. Ames, secretary-treasurer. These officers compose the board of directors.

Hymer Sher, 17 years old, of Arlington County, held on Tuesday night for investigation as the result of his automobile having struck Odley Nuckels, colored, on Johnsons Hill, Arlington County, was exonerated by Judge B. M. Hedick in the County Court yesterday. Investigation showed it was an accident.

Bethesda Man Seized On Statutory Charge

Frank Schell, 25 years old, of Bethesda, Md., yesterday was arrested by Montgomery County Policeman Windsor C. Poole on a warrant alleging a statutory offense involving a 14-year-old girl. Schell was committed to the Rockville Jail by Justice of the Peace A. L. Moore, of Bethesda.

The warrant was sworn out by the father of the girl before Judge Moore yesterday. Schell denies his guilt. It is probable that the case will be presented to the Montgomery County grand jury now in session at Rockville. Conviction on the charge involves capital punishment in Maryland.

Voters in Laurel, Md., Must Register Again

A general reregistration will be held in Laurel, Md., next Monday and Tuesday for persons who desire to vote in the town election for mayor. All persons who want to vote, whether they have been registered before or not, must put their names on the registration books on one of these days.

The registrations will be held in the Academy garage between 8 a. m. and 7 p. m. L. C. Donaldson and Chester S. Phair are judges of the registration. So far the present mayor, J. H. Fetty, is the only candidate for the office.

27 Indictments Found in County

Prisoners to Be Arraigned in Rockville Tomorrow; Court in Session.

The Montgomery County grand jury, in session at Rockville, Md., yesterday presented 27 indictments to Judge Robert B. Peter in circuit court. The indictments will not be made public until arraignment of the prisoners tomorrow.

The circuit court will remain in session today and tomorrow despite the legal holidays, Good Friday and Maryland Day, which have been proclaimed by Gov. Albert C. Ritchie. The office of the clerk of the circuit court also will remain open.

It is expected that the grand jury will complete its deliberations early next week and make its final report.

Other officers elected were: Louis Yost, sr., vice president; Mrs. Robert Ginsburg, corresponding secretary; Vernon Brewster, recording secretary; Mrs. David Harger, treasurer, and Mrs. C. V. Feishell, publicity chairman.

Meetings are to be held the third Wednesday of each month in the parish house of the Episcopal Church of the Ascension, which was proffered by the Rev. Alfred Cheetham, rector. A public welfare committee was appointed as follows: T. W. Biel, chairman; Mrs. William Wight, David Harger, Mrs. Louis Yost, sr., Daniel Latham and E. A. Kline. The by-laws and constitution committee includes Ellis Snee, William Wight, and Charles R. Beaumont, while the membership committee includes the Rev. Alfred Cheetham, Louis Yost, sr., and E. Jones.

New Trade Brews, Involves Dodgers

Carey May Swap Pitcher to Gain Bottomley or Collins of Cards.

Bradenton, Fla., March 24 (U.P.).—The trade winds reportedly are blowing up another Brooklyn Dodgers deal, expected to be closed by Manager Max Carey before the training season ends.

With Del Bissonette out of commission with a foot injury for at least eight weeks, the Dodgers need a first baseman. Joe Stripp, recently obtained from the Reds, can cover that position, but Carey is using him at third, and it is reported reliably Max is seeking a first baseman from another big league club. Carey may try to get either Jim Bottomley or Rip Collins from the Cardinals, who could use at least one more experienced pitcher. Carey has several moundsmen who could be used in the deal. In fact, Carey might give up one of his best pitchers to get a good first sacker.

SCHOLASTIC TEAM WINS IN TOURNEY

absent, the Benning Junior Girls team fell prey to the high-geared attack of the Highlanders in the deciding game of their class. The final score was 38-12. It was the second appearance of the winners in the final round of the A. A. U. tournament. Last year they reached this stage of the proceedings playing under the banner of the Montrose A. C., but on that occasion they lost the all-important struggle to the Rockville sextet.

The Highlanders led at the end of the first quarter, 9-4, solely through the fine work of Virginia Jones. They increased this margin to 19-9 as the half ended. The Benning guards were helpless before the whirlwind attack of their opponents. Mary Upson, center, and Lucy Knox, side-center, obtained possession of the ball on nearly every tap-off. Then followed speedy passes to either of their forwards, who managed to work the ball in for easy shots.

Jones tallied 26 points as her share in the victory. So well did Katherine McCandles and Marie Jacob guard their territory it was well-night impossible for the Benning forwards to get in close enough for shots at the basket. Helen Whitney and Mildred Hook played well for the losers.

Capitol Towers Gains Title as Hale Leads

The inability of the Western Flashes to convert numerous foul shots awarded into points in the first half of their game with the Capitol Towers quintet cost them the lead in the earlier stages of the game, and subsequently the victory. The final score was 32 to 19.

The eventual winners used the tricks imparted to them by Cecil Hale, a member of the champion Eastern High School team, to good advantage throughout the contest. They handled the leather like veterans, passed with bullet-like accuracy and worked the ball in close to the basket for frequent snowbird shots. The score at the end of the first quarter was 8 to 3, and at the half, 14 to 9, in favor of Capitol Towers on each occasion.

The Flashes were obviously awed by the importance of the occasion, for they muffed shots which they would have made with ease at any other time. They engineered a rally in the fourth period that carried to within four points of their rivals. 21 to 17, but "Bodie" Morgal, Towers guard, called a halt on the proceedings by flinging in the only three goals he scored during the game in rapid succession. Corcoran and Blakely, and later Duvall, had a hand in the uprising.

The play of Milton Silverman, Levelle Dean and Harry Hofberg fitted in well with the smooth functioning of the winners. Lee Duvall was outstanding for the losers.

PETROLLE IS WINNER ON TECHNICAL K. O.

attendance, at a top price of $8, brought out 18,000, more patronage than the Garden had ever been asked to absorb since the day Tex Rickard threw open the doors. The public interest was so lively and expensive that the management moved up an extra row of chairs into the wide aisle just behind the press box to accommodatae the preferred, influential trade. Of course, this may have been merely a ruse on the part of the management which has been unusually shrewd and tricky of late.

Those patrons might have been accommodated elsewhere, but certainly when they were arrayed in the aisle space, alight with their jewels and their important names, the inmates of the press coop could not but notice their proximity and exclaim a restrained "Goodness me, how times are improving."

The receipts were announced as $65,000, gross, or $57,000 net, and while the fight was in progress, with Battalino lurching always forward, both arms winging, the boys in the foremost ringside seats were seen to hold up the canvas aprons of the ring to protect their neckwear and the clean, white vastnesses of the typewriter sheets from the casual spray of the gladiators. It was a fine blood-letting.

In the first five rounds of the fight it looked as though Battalino might somehow outnumber Petrolle to win. He was taking two punches to land one, but whereas Petrolle hitherto had knocked most of the good lightweights into loose attitudes with his left hook, here was the little grown-up featherweight champion taking them on the chin and shocking Petrolle with loose, erratic counters of both hands always to the head.

Few Body Blows Recorded.

There were not half a dozen body blows of any consequence in the entire fight. Both boys fought from a forward posture, Petrolle whipping up his blows to the face and Battalino firing his with a rather more side-arm motion to the ears and chin. Battalino was more substantial than he had been as a featherweight and it was amusing to speculate on the force of the punches which put him down on a recent occasion when he was fighting his friend, Freddy Miller, in Cincinnati, and was interrupted by the referee, who thought he went down without due cause. Petrolle is one of the great punchers of his weight and time, but he was never able to set him back, much less upset him.

Recalling the matter of the Battalino-Miller fight, the more cynical patrons naturally wondered what sort of meat Battalino had been feeding on that he could now fight Petrolle toe to toe, take two of Billy's famous clouts on the chin for the chance of landing one. It only contributed to the general confusion and, if one must say so, the suspicion regarding Battalino's sincerity.

For Petrolle the fight won priority in the competition for a bout with Tony Canzoneri for the lightweight championship, but there is no telling how many bets may have been decided by the referee's sudden compassion. Battalino was not knocked out. He was not knocked down and he could have gone on to finish the fight, losing only by a decision. Battalino weighed 135 pounds to Petrolle's 139.

Weissmuller in Film Here Beginning Today

Here a year ago to give a series of exhibitions in swimming, Johnny Weissmuller, whose amazing speed records established between 1924 and 1928 still hold good on the record books, comes to Loew's Columbia today in the feature role of "Tarzan, the Ape Man."

Investigation Five Wins Over Census

28-21 Victory Evens Play-Off for Government League Crown.

A decisive 28-21 victory by Bureau of Investigation over Census Enumerators last night at Eastern High School after a dingdong battle will force a third game for the championship of the Government Basketball League.

Playing before a crowd of approximately 300, mostly Investigation rooters, the Sleuths turned the tables on their former conquerors to knot matters in the title series, every man sinking plenty of tallies, with Willis Fisher slightly the best. Fisher had four goals.

Until the final period, however, matters were nip and tuck. The Sleuths held a slight advantage throughout, leading by 16-11 at half after a 4-4 first quarter, but in the third ten minutes Census threatened seriously with a strohg rally and brought the count to 18-17, Investigation's advantage. Then Fisher and his pals got busy to leave the tired contenders definitely in the mire.

Wednesday at 9 p. m., in the Eastern gym again, the two aggregations will tie up for the final and deciding battle, victory bringing the National Federation of Federal Employes' trophy as reward.

Federation Is Due To Elect Mrs. Ray

Her Name Only One Up for Head of County Women's Clubs.

Mrs. J. Enos Ray is slated to succeed Mrs. Rudolph S. Allen as president of the Prince Georges County Federation of Women's Clubs, hers being the only name advanced by the nominating committee of the federation, which met recently.

Others nominated were Mrs. Wilfred L. Preston for first vice president; Mrs. Frank Scrivener for second vice president; Mrs. Henry Naylor for recording secretary, Mrs. Guy S. Meloy for corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Clarence L. Fowler for treasurer. For each post the nominating commitee made but one selection. Mrs. Allen has been nominated as president of the State federation.

Mrs. Ray is the wife of J. Enos Ray, president of the Prince Georges Bank & Trust Co., and chairman of the Democratic State central committee. She was president of the county federation from 1926 to 1928 and is now director of the State federation.

MAN DIES IN CRASH IN PRINCE GEORGES

2 Others Injured in Accident; Another Dead as Result of Auto Hurts.

One man was killed yesterday and two others were injured in Prince Georges County auto accidents and a fourth man died in a Washington hospital of injuries received in another county crash last Sunday.

According to police, Richard Dean, of Washington, was killed early yesterday when he was thrown from a swerving car on the Southern Maryland pike near Silver Hill. Dean, they said, was leaning over the side of the machine, lighting a cigarette, when the car cut across the road and catapulted him out.

Almas Gordon, also of Washington, said to be the driver of the car, was arrested and charged with driving while drunk. Additional charges may be placed against him by a coroner's jury impaneled by Magistrate William Naecker. Dean was taken to Casualty Hospital, but died some time later.

A collision between two autos at College Park sent Lawrence Walsh and Alvin West to Washington hospitals. West, who lives in Washington, was treated at Sibley and allowed to go home, but Walsh, whose home is in Hyattsville, is at Emergency Hospital with possible internal injuries.

Students Asked to Set Out Memorial Trees

A campaign to have every school in Prince Georges County plant a George Washington memorial tree on Arbor Day, April 8, was initiated yesterday by Nicholas Orem, superintendent of schools, in a letter sent to all teachers.

TOWN WILL NOT ACT IN KLEMM CAMPAIGN

Mt. Rainier, However, Says It Would Be Best If He Does Not Run.

While the Town of Mount Rainier will take no action toward asking Dr. John William Klemm to withdraw from the Democratic primary in the interests of economy, it has decided that the saving in expense is desirable.

"It would be a great and patriotic duty if some friend of the party would induce him to refrain from entering (the primary), and thus save the expense to the county, which is estimated at $40,000," the town council declared. Dr. Klemm, who lives in Mount Rainier, is a candidate for the Democratic nomination from the Fifth Maryland Congressional District. This is the only nomination for which there is a fight, and the contest necessitates a primary at a cost of $50,000 to the district. Dr. Klemm has been defeated in several recent primaries.

The council also has decided to construct a sidewalk along Rhode Island avenue, to pave the alley between Thirty-third street and Eastern avenue, and to start a sidewalk along Bunker Hill road between Thirty-fifth and Thirty-sixth streets. Two new ordin

MEET THE RADIO BURGLARS!

THE latest type of thief is the air-snatcher. He breaks into radio stations and grabs the program. His first appearance is reported in Havana, where he crashed the Yo-Ho Harmony Hour, held the entertainment at bay with pistols, and addressed the great unseen audience on the beauties of anarchy and revolution.

* * * *

Burglars broke into the Amos 'n' Andy program shortly after 7 o'clock last evening and stole twelve minutes. Amos had just hung up the phone after calling Madame Queen, when the thieves rushed in and bound him to his chair. Andy and Brother Crawford, who came in a second later, were locked in a closet while the thieves helped themselves to the air in a leisurely fashion, denouncing President Hoover, attacking the vested interests and urging a general strike.

The radio audience thought it a new Amos 'n' Andy act until the period closed without the usual orchestral offering.

Police are working on the case, but their only clew is that one of the thieves had a slight lisp.

* * * *

Detectives are working today on a mysterious crime at a broadcasting station last night, when intruders swept into a cigar hour and stole Kate Smith. It is believed that it took at least 20 men to execute the job.

They carried her into two nearby rooms while their colleagues grabbed the air and cried, "Away with the capitalistic system! Workers of the world, arise! This appeal for a revolution is coming to you on the Baloney Cigar program, sponsored by the world's largest maker of good cigars. Selected leaf tobacco will make you a better revolutionist. See your local red leader twice a month."

* * * *

Police announced today that Lowell Thomas, the statistics from 32 Eastern cities, the complete tabulations from Idaho, fourteen news items and an explanation of the significance of next week's cover design were stolen last night from a broadcasting station by outlaws who substituted a fifteen-minute denunciation of the country's most sacred institutions. The police promise developments.

Caruso Widow Renamed As Guardian of Child

New York, March 24 (A.P.).—Enrico Caruso's widow, Mrs. Dorothy Caruso Ingram, was reinstated today as general guardian for their 12-year-old daughter, Gloria. Surrogate James Foley removed Mrs. Ingram as general guardian on petition of Warren C. Fielding, an attorney, who was appointed special guardian.

Fielding protested Mrs. Ingram had not filed an accounting of the properties left to the child by her father for the year 1930. In her answer the mother stated that she and Gloria were residents of Cannes, France, and that the children owned no property in the United States. After the liabilities and assets of the property had been accounted for, Fielding petitioned the court to vacate the old order, which was done.

Larger Yield Seen In Planting Report

(Associated Press.)

Farmers' intentions as to planting 1932 crops, based on returns as of March 1, were reported yesterday by the Department of Agriculture. They show an acreage of corn 2.2 per cent more than the 104,970,000 acres harvested last year; of durum wheat, 34.8 per cent more than the 2,889,000 acres last year, and of other spring wheat, 53.3 per cent more than the 11,071,000 acres last year.

Intentions as to other crops were:

Corn, 107,378,000 acres; durum wheat, 3,868,000; all other spring wheat, 16,967,000; oats, 43,062,000; barley, 13,918,000; rice, 861,000; flaxseed, 2,689,000; grain sorghums, 7,538,000; beans, 1,640,000; soy beans, 3,094,000; potatoes, 3,440,000; sweet potatoes, 897,000; peanuts, 1,859,000; tobacco, 1,562,300; tame hay, 54,195,000.

The intended acreage of spring wheat is reported at 16,967,000 acres, an increase of 53.3 per cent over the small 1931 harvest which suffered heavy losses from drought in the Dakotas and Montana. The present intentions represent a 5 per cent increase over the area seeded last year.

If it is carried out and there is no material abandonment the 1932 harvest will be about 3 per cent greater than 1929 and virtually the same as 1930. The 1931 acreage harvested was 11,071,000.

Durum wheat shows a 34.8 per cent increase over last year's harvest, but the indicated total of 3,868,000 is well below 1929 and 1930.

12 RAILROADS SHOW INCREASE IN INCOME

February Report Tops That of January, but Still Below Last Year.

New York, March 24 (A.P.).—The first twelve railroads to report net operating income for February show a moderate gain over the previous month, largely reflecting the 10 per cent wage reduction which became effective February 1.

The roads reported aggregate net operating income of $4,695,000, as against $3,216,000 in January. The total was substantially under February of last year, however, when these roads reported nets totaling $5,688,000.

The February reduction amounted to 17 2-5 per cent, which was considerably less severe than in January, when net was 58 3-10 per cent under the same period of a year previously.

Gross revenues of these roads in February of this year amounted to $39,944,000, against a February gross in 1931 of $49,396,000, a decline of 19 1-10 per cent. Gross earnings for last January totaled $41,190,000, compared with $54,735,000 in January, 1931.

Southern Pacific Report.

Southern Pacific, in its February statement, announced today, shows a net operating deficit of $402,557, as against net operating income of $411,823 in the same month last year.

Gross revenues for the month showed a decrease of $4,277,663.

While the statement was a trifle disappointing, after the improvement reported by such roads as Union Pacific and Chesapeake & Ohio, opinion prevailed in Wall street that recent railway revenues had been somewhat more satisfactory than expected at the start of the year.

Some roads are rumored to have dropped or altered plans for requeating aid from the Reconstruction Corporation, finding that their needs will be substantially less than anticipated.

Burlington Increases February Net Income

The improvement in earnings is the result of the wage reduction and general lowering of operating expenses, which offset the continued low level of traffic.

THE MARKETS AT A GLANCE

STOCKS drifted fractionally lower in a market dominated by preholiday apathy and bewilderment over the tax outlook in Congress. The turn-over was the smallest for the year.

BONDS also were under the tax cloud.

COTTON was firm on holiday covering, despite weak cables from Liverpool. The close was at 1 to 4 points advance.

OIL PRICES RECOVER; SHARES ARE BOUGHT

Leading Issues Mark Rises of 50c to $2; General Trading Is Heavy.

New York, March 24 (A.P.).—The first upturn in midcontinent crude oil prices since November brought a temporary flurry of buying into the oil shares in the New York Stock Exchange today.

Several leading issues pushed up about 50 cents to $2 a share, but the general market soon turned heavy and little was left of the advance by early afternoon. Standard of New Jersey moved up as much at $1.25 a share, and Standard of California got up $1.62 to $26.50 before the buying movement spent itself.

The Continental Oil Co. announced that on April 1 it would mark up its prices 15 cents a barrel. This will raise the price on 36-degree crude oil from its present 77-cent level to 92 cents a barrel.

Before the day was out, the increase was followed by Sinclair, Barnsdall and Magnolia, the latter the principal producing property of the Standard Oil Co., of New York. Officers of New Jersey Standard expressed the belief their companies undoubtedly would follow suit, and other leading oil companies are expected to announce similar action before April 1.

The Continental Oil announcement was immediately reflected in the stock market with enthusiasm. Orders for stocks of leading oil companies came into the market in blocks of 1,000 to 7,000 shares at a time. Prices quickly jumped from about 50 cents to $1.50 a share for stocks of the Standard Oil Companies of New Jersey and California, and for the independent producers like Texas Company, Sinclair, Continental and Royal Dutch.

Oil securities had recently been weighted down by adverse 1931 earning reports of leading producing companies, most of which have shown large losses.

Prices of basic gravity crude oil in the midcontinent field which stood at 95 cents a barrel on January 1, 1931, reacted to a low point of 33 cents a barrel on June 1, causing heavy operating losses. The price later rallied, reaching 77 cents a barrel on November 2, and now is being advanced to 92 cents.

The advance in crude, it was pointed out here, would probably be reflected in gasoline prices, which already have developed firmer tendencies. With the season of largest consumption fast approaching, it was suggested that higher crude prices might operate against gasoline price-cutting by smaller companies.

Phelps-Dodge Aids Copper Yield Curb

New York, March 24 (A.P.).—Further curtailment in copper mining operations, informally agreed upon at recent conferences of international producers in New York, was reflected today with the announcement of the Phelps-Dodge Corporation that it would soon suspend indefinitely all production except at its Bisbee, Ariz., properties.

At the same time Copper Exporters, Inc., cooperative sales agency of the producers, reduced the "official" price of the metal for foreign shipment ⅝ of a cent to 6¼ cents a pound. Some "outside" sales abroad were reported yesterday at 6¼ cents a pound, and the action of the export agency in cutting its rates was said to have been for the purpose of bringing "official" and actual quotations closer together.

The Phelps-Dodge Corporation, third largest American producer, stated that "on account of the large world stocks of copper and the continued low prices for the metal" it was closing down its operations in Arizona on April 24 and at other points on July 1.

STOCK PRICES YIELD SLIGHTLY AT CLOSE

By JOHN L. COOLEY.

New York, March 24 (A.P.).—A barely perceptible downward drift developed in today's session of the stock market, which was marked primarily by preholiday apathy. A few issues lost as much as a point, but most declines were fractional. The closing tone was easy. The turnover was 837,124 shares, among the year's smallest.

Oils bubbled upward for about an hour in the forenoon when an advance in Midcontinent crude prices was announced, but the rise attracted no outside following and speculative interest in the petroleums quickly subsided.

The usual preholiday apathy was intensified by imminence of the sales tax vote in the House of Representatives, the result of which did not become known until a few minutes after the close.

Industrials Join Loss.

American Telephone, Procter & Gamble and General Motors, together with National Buscuit and American Tobacco "B," gave up roughly a point net. General Motors' sag carried it just under 17 to a record low for the present shares.

U. S. Steel was steady. There were reports of an unusually large subscription for the recent offering to employes at 40 and gossip said an additional block might be provided to meet the demand. Inasmuch as Wall street has virtually given up hope for maintenance of the common dividend, these rumors were received with wide interest. Steel common closed unchanged at 41¾, but the preferred registered a new low by a narrow margin.

Reading, whose dividend was cut from 50 cents to 25 cents, did not trade.

Preference issues of Colorado & Southern, appearing for the first time this year, broke sharply, the first preferred making an extreme drop of 20¼ to 10¼, while the second preferred tumbled 17 points to 5. The road, controlled by Burlington, had net income of $1,323,828 in 1931, or virtually half the 1930 total.

Bonds Also Lower.

Preholiday indifference helped to slow the bond market and the various classes of securities slipped quietly to lower price levels. Even several United States Government issues, a number of which recently attained new heights for the year, relaxed moderately under some profit taking and general disinterestedness of dealers and investors.

Trading was dull throughout most of the session and gains and losses largely were without significance. Sales approximated but $7,733,000 par value.

Slackening of transactions was also attributed in some quarters to the uncertainty over tax legislation and the feeling that further commitments should be postponed until matters were settled one way or the other.

Curb Market Dull.

A slightly lower tendency was manifest in another sluggish and indecisive session of the curb market. Trading dwindled as traders prepared to leave town for the holiday tomorrow, many planning to stay away over the week-end, although trading will be resumed for the half-day session of Saturday. The day's turnover of roughly 150,000 shares was the smallest for a full session in a month.

Oils in this market were but momentarily influenced by the increase in midcontinent crude prices.

Scattered selling again appeared in the utilities.

Pennroad rose ¼ to 2⅝ coincident with publication of its 1931 earnings of 49 cents a share. In view of dividend omissions or deferments late last year and early this year on Pennroad's holdings, current earnings are estimated at considerably less than the 1931 showing.

Among the curb bonds the industrials showed the largest average decline of the day, due to the selling of a few special issues. American Ice 6s dropped 5 points, American Smelting & Refining 5s were off 1 and Childs Co. 5s lost 4.

Paramount-Famous-Lasky 6s shed 6 points and Paramount Publix 5½s were down 5½.

There was little change in the utilities.

The Argentines and German government obligations were the leaders of the foreign department. Substantial recoveries were registered by both.

EXPORT STABILIZING NEEDS $125,000,000

(Associated Press.)

An estimate that $125,000,000 would be sufficient to finance whatever export business might develop in stabilization of wheat and cotton was made yesterday by Chairman Stone, of the Farm Board.

He noted there were encouraging reports that European importing countries would soon increase their demands for wheat, and that some of this business is expected to come to North American growers.

While reiterating that the board's policy of nondumping would be strictly adhered to, the chairman said that "the board would be a fool not to take advantage if a government like Germany offered to buy 8,000,000 or 10,000,000 bushels on credit."

Administration leaders are seeking a $100,000,000 appropriation to finance wheat and cotton export credit. They have emphasized that noncompetitive markets such as the Orient would be sought. Stone said the board's policy of not depressing markets in its sales would guide all transactions.

The chairman made it clear the board was not asking Congress for money, but agreed that domestic prices would be benefited by export sales.

The board has not determined a sales policy of either wheat or cotton after its restricted sales agreements expire in July. Stone said a new cotton policy would depend upon the size of this year's crop.

Praising the benefits accruing to cooperative members, he added 20,000 farmers had joined cotton cooperative associations in the last two or three months. He also pointed out that their credit structure was sound, adding that while numerous industrial firms and banks had encountered difficulties, only 80 cooperatives out of 12,000 had failed. Only one of these had been receiving financial aid from the Farm Board.

U. S. Steel Corporation Considers New Issue

New York, March 24 (A.P.).—Reports were heard in Wall street today that the United States Steel Corporation is considering an additional offering of common stock to employes.

As the story ran, the corporation reached this decision because the 200,000 shares offered February 2 at $40 a share were oversubscribed.

Officials of the corporation had no comment to offer on the report.

COEDUCATION URGED BY A. U. CHANCELLOR AS AID TO MORALS

Dr. Lucius Clark Attacks Athletic Scholarships in Address Over Radio.

DISRESPECT FOR LAWS IS CALLED DEPLORABLE

Leaders' Efforts to Explain Present Conditions Are Labeled Humiliating.

Defending coeducation and attacking "athletic scholarships," Dr. Lucius C. Clark, chancellor of American University, in a radio address over Station WJSV last night declared that "coeducation may have its faults, but its cultivation of morals is not one of these."

"The constant companionship, the asking of no favors, and granting no special privileges are not detrimental to moral growth in young men and women," he said. Even sex intoxication, often noticeable in oversheltered young people, quickly fades out in the light of the new day of normal associations.

"The spiritual activities of students in colleges and universities give a basis for the best and finest development for a lifetime. They enable students to avoid the eccentric, and they do not become fanatics. As a basis of stable and religious life and activity, for future years, there has been no greater aid found for the churches of every name than that given by the colleges and universities."

Check on Overemphasis.

Condemning the "athletic scholarships" which recently have been frowned on by the Commission on Institutions of Higher Education of the Middle States Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, Dr. Clark said this was "one way to show disapproval and undertake to correct the overemphasis being given to athletic activities in our day.

"It is a question if it would not be more honorable to put a paid professional team in the field than to use many of the rather absurd methods and devices now used to maintain athletics. Professional teams, representing schools, would not disturb the scholastic program as the present method does. Either give us athletic competition for sports sake, or a general practice of supporting paid teams on a paid basis."

Declaring that "We have come to a sorry spectacle in this generation," Dr. Clark said that "some person or persons, or institution or institutions must teach us today a respect for law and a recognition of order that should prevail.

Respect of Children.

"Parents neither command nor, in a large measure, merit the respect from their children. The State can not support enough police, secure enough judges, or pass enough laws, to make our people law-abiding.

"The sheer nonsense of some of our distinguished citizens, in explanation of our present condition is most humiliating. As Mr. Hoover is made the scapegoat of all of our present ills, so prohibition, by some, is the cause of all lawbreaking and, by some, youth makes up the rank and file of the lawbreakers.

"Our schools and colleges have a great responsibility, but they are not now, nor can they ever be, a community conscience. There are no manmade methods of morals. There are no machine manners. Conscience, morals and manners are matters of the spirit—they flower in an institution of learning, as they find favor in the lives of the instructors and instructed in the institutions of learning."

THRONGED CAPITAL AT EASTER SEEN AS VANGUARD ARRIVES

FAIR WEATHER SUNDAY PRESENT EXPECTATION

School Holidays On; White House Egg Rolling Is Being Prepared.

No diminution of the usual Easter hegira to Washington is expected.

Although the Japanese cherry blossoms will not grace the city's vistas until early in April, indications point toward a thronged city throughout the Easter week.

Washington young folk, home from college and school, will augment school young people who will come to the city from neighboring and far-off States to view the Capital in its springtime glory.

Already groups of persons from away have been visiting the show places. They are crowding the art galleries, museums and Potomac Park.

Fair Sunday Expected.

Although rain is expected tonight or tomorrow it is hoped that Sunday's weather will be that of real spring.

The cherry blossoms will not bloom for the occasion. The cold of the past weeks has retarded their development so that it will be virtually impossible that they burst open during Easter week.

While the children are anxiously waiting for the miracle which makes colored Easter eggs, Mrs. Hoover is directing plans for the day, when she will be their host, Easter Monday.

Egg Rolling Plans Made.

Workmen are busily engaged at the White House preparing the grounds for the egg-rolling festivities.

Several drinking fountains are being installed. For two days a lawnmower has been trimming the grass to the smoothness of a bowling green for the frolic.

An emergency medical tent has been erected on the south lawn, and emergency fences have been built around some of the smaller trees and shrubbery to prevent indulgence in the climbing urge.

With present weather prevailing a record attendance is expected. Last year 30,847 children and adults entered the rear grounds.

Gates will be opened wide at 9 o'clock in the morning. Adults will not be admitted before 3 o'clock in the afternoon unless they are with a child. Then the general public will be allowed entrance.

At 3 o'clock the Marine Band will commence a concert lasting until 5 o'clock. In addition to the egg rolling there will be special games, pageantry and Maypole dancing.

Girls' Groups to Aid.

These features were introduced into the day's program the first year Mrs. Hoover was in the White House. They have been continued and increased each year since. Girl Scouts, Camp Fire Girls and other groups will assist the First Lady in staging the games and dancing.

Mrs. Hoover has invited a number of children of the city's officialdom to come into the Executive Mansion before the egg rolling festival.

After these children have been received by Mrs. Hoover they will be taken to the rear portico. There they will view the gayety below. Later some of them will join the festivities.

TUBERCULAR CLINIC CONDITIONS DECRIED BY HOUSE MEMBERS

Will Reopen Hearings Today in District Appropriations Subcommittee.

300 PATIENTS FOUND CROWDED IN ONE ROOM

Cannon and Holaday Declare Local Authorities Doing Best They Can.

The House District appropriations subcommittee this morning will reopen hearings on the District supply bill to consider alleged "appalling" conditions prevailing at the District tubercular and social disease clinic at 512 I street northwest.

Chairman Clarence Cannon (Democrat), Missouri, and Representative William P. Holaday, Illinois, Republican member of the subcommittee, yesterday visited the clinic following a tour of Washington streets.

Crowded in Room.

Mr. Holaday said they found 300 women lined up for treatment in a single room under conditions that would constitute "a public disgrace."

Both representatives said they did not hold Dr. William Fowler, public health officer, or other District officials responsible for the situation; that the local administration is doing the best it can with funds available.

Will Outline Remedies.

Dr. Fowler and Dr. Luther Reichelderfer, president of the Board of District Commissioners, at 10:30 this morning will go before the committee and outline how best they think conditions can be remedied by more adequate facilities and staff.

Chairman Cannon said he thought it was probable the committee would call on the Budget Bureau for supplemental estimates covering the necessary improvements following the hearings.

According to Mr. Holaday, the clinic treated 1,600 social disease cases in February with its limited facilities, 800 more than in February a year ago. He said he would recommend that the situation be taken care of through appropriations for new quarters.

12 INDICTED IN QUIZ ON TEA HOUSE CASE

The white-slave investigation initiated last fall by Federal authorities after the shooting at a Bladensburg, Md., teahouse bore its first fruit yesterday when twelve indictments for violation of the Mann act were returned by a Federal grand jury in Baltimore.

Those indicted included Cisberto Renzulli, arrested in Philadelphia the day after the shooting as a suspect in the holdup which resulted in the death of Grover Amick. Others named in the indictments were Charles (Doggy) Leavitt, alleged manager of the Bladensburg house; Sam Kushner, of Washington; his wife, Margie; Felix Bocchichio, alleged guard at the house; Ahnad Abraham, of Washington, and John Wallace, Tony Pinto, Charles Missler, Anna Lutz, Dorothy Jordan and Charles J. Banford.

The indictments allege that Josephine Shubert and Mamie de Moo were brought into Maryland from Pennsylvania for immoral purposes by those named, and that Eva McCoy and Verne Edwards were brought from Washington. Mrs. Edwards is the chief witness against Thomas Simone and Peter Abbott, both of Philadelphia, who will be charged with Amick's murder when the Prince Georges County grand jury meets on April 4.

The Colonial Tea House in Bladensburg is named in the indictments, as are the Belle Grove Inn and the Romona Gardens, near Baltimore. The probe is under the direction of Dwight Brantley, a special agent of the Department of Justice, while Neil Burkinshaw, Special Assistant Attorney General, is handling the prosecution.

Veteran Guardianship Hearings Open Today

Hearings on a bill to provide a uniform veterans guardianship act will be opened before the Senate District committee at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon, Chairman Arthur Capper (Republican), Kansas, announced last night.

The bill is sponsored by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws and the American Bar Association. Final action on the Capper bill for more stringent regulation of firearms sale and possession in the District may be taken at the meeting.

Crucifixion Held Like Issues Today

Rev. Mark Depp Declares Indifference Prevails Now as Then.

The Crucifixion and those who perpetrated it were compared to important issues of the present day by the Rev. Mark Depp, pastor of the Calvary M. E. Church, in an address yesterday to the Washington Kiwanis Club at the Raleigh Hotel.

"The crucifixion was committed by thoroughly decent people and not by criminals," Dr. Depp said. "The friends of Jesus frolicked in the city, taking the view that other friends of the Master would assist Him in His hour of need. So it is today. Great causes are defeated more by indolence and indifference of friends than by the attacks of the enemies."

Eugene R. Woodson, president of the club, presided and introduced a number of local and out-of-town visitors. Mrs. Ruby Potter, soloist of the Calvary M. E. Church, sang three Holy Week songs, accompanied by Louis A. Potter, Calvary Church organist.

Deadline Is Nearing On Real Estate Taxes

Only a week remains for payment of the last half of the 1931-32 real estate taxes to escape assessment of a 1 per cent penalty per month. Tax Collector Chatham M. Towers warned yesterday.

The deadline for the tax payment is midnight next Thursday. All payments made by mail must bear a postmark prior to that time if the property owner is to escape the penalty. Collections so far this year are behind those of last year.

Reds Plan Parade Before Embassy

To Be Protest of Japan's Policy in Manchuria; U. S. Also Hit.

Communistic sympathizers last night announced plans for a protest demonstration in front of the Japanese Embassy early tomorrow afternoon. The gathering has been arranged by friends of the Soviet Union and by the Unemployed Councils of the United States.

According to the announcement the demonstrators will carry banners and placards protesting the "murder" of thousands of peasants and workers in China and Manchuria and demanding the immediate cessation of alleged Japanese war provocations against the Soviet Union along the Manchurian border.

Banners, which will charge that the United States is supporting Japanese capitalists and is supporting warlike acts by Japan against the Soviet Union will also be displayed. It was said. The picketing workers will also bear demands for recognition of the Soviet Union, it was announced.

Kann Will Shows $2,000,000 Estate

Probate Petition Is Filed; Widow Named Principal Beneficiary.

An estate of $2,000,000 was left by Simon Kann, department store magnate, when he died February 21, it was shown yesterday when his widow, Sadie P. Kann, and two nephews, Sol Kann and B. Bernel Burgunder, petitioned the District Supreme Court for probate of the will.

Mr. Kann's will had previously been published. It showed that he had made large contributions to charitable and philanthropical institutions here and in Baltimore. Emergency Hospital here was given $50,000 and a total of $100,000 was thus bequeathed.

Mrs. Kann was named as the principal beneficiary. She will get a life interest in the estate.

Man Burned Cleaning Coffee Urn.

Fasting Sage Burns Shoes Awaiting Job

As he sat beside a roaring fire, replenished every few minutes from a huge basket of old shoes, in the dingy lobby of the Salvation Army Hotel, at 119 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, Dr. Frederic F. Wolter, concluding the twenty-fifth day of a self-imposed fast, last night told a Post reporter that if assured of at least $600 a year for the rest of his life, he would break his fast and return to normal habits.

So weak that he could hardly rise from his chair, Dr. Wolter again declared that until "acceptable" employment is offered, or someone interested in him guarantees his support, he will continue to refuse food. Since February 29 he has had nothing except one peanut and several glasses of water, Dr. Wolter said.

With only enough money left to pay one more week's rent, the 57-year-old German-born scholar is certain that someone will come to his aid so that he may continue to occupy his tiny third-floor bedroom at the hotel.

Hundreds of letters from all sections of the country have reached Dr. Wolter. A family in Texas asked that he come immediately to their home. "All we have is yours," the letter read. "We know you are an educated man and want you to share our home."

The doctor, however, prefers to be near Washington. He said if he could have a little house, a place to plant vegetables and be near a public library, he would be happy to continue his studies.

Dr. Wolter has discontinued his daily walks. His strength, he said, must be saved to keep him alive.

Woman, 60, Is Injured When Struck by Auto

A fractured left leg and right knee were suffered last night by Mrs. Mary Delaskaki, 60 years old, of 1437 Ridge place southeast, when she was knocked down by an automobile while crossing Eleventh street northwest between F and G streets.

The woman was taken to Emergency Hospital in a private car. Police said she was struck by an automobile operated by Avery D. Barner, 25 years old, of 2918 Twenty-ninth street northwest. Her condition is undetermined.

3 Suspects Fight Theft Extradition

Judge Hitt Continues Case Until April 6 in Farmer's Robbery.

Extradition of three Washingtonians, wanted in Maryland for alleged assault and robbery, was temporarily halted yesterday when the three, Jerry Offereda, 26 years old, William E Bridges, 22 years old, and Arundel R. Robinson, 21 years old, informed Judge Isaac R. Hitt that they would not go back without a formal demand from Maryland.

In order to give the Maryland authorities time in which to prepare the necessary papers, Judge Hitt continued the proceedings until April 6, the trio being held under bonds of $1,000 each.

Thomas Gray, a Charlies County, Md., farmer, who was allegedly beaten and robbed earlier in the week, is said to be the complainant against the three.

2 Capital Men Face Rum Count in Prince Georges

Two Washington men were arrested yesterday by Prince Georges County Policeman G. W. Gray, who conducted a one-man drive on liquor in the southern part of the county. One of the men, Ralph Botts, was driving a car with a false bottom which contained five cases of alleged whisky, police said.

The other man was Charles Powell, of 346 W street northwest, arrested on the Southern Maryland pike. He had three cases of reputed contraband, and also a charred, but empty keg, according to police. Both Powell and Potts, who was captured on the Livingston road, were held in bond of $1,000, on charges of transportation and possession.

Carmody Trial Set April 13.

The trial of R. L. J. Carmody on three charges of obtaining money under false pretenses yesterday was set for April 13, after Carmody had denied in Police Court that he had represented to Clara Thomas, colored, whom he represented in a Police Court case, that he was a lawyer.

POWER OF OUTLAWS ASSAILED IN SERMON

Very Rev. Ignatius Smith Says Pilferers Will Be Judged Above.

The present year can boast of little progress in the development of respect for justice and charity, the Very Rev. Ignatius Smith, professor of philosophy at Catholic University, declared last night at Sacred Heart Church in the last of a series of Lenten services.

Declaring that "the largest division in the parade of pilferers who will pass before the judgment seat of God includes the outlaws of today," Father Smith asserted that in the present year these robbers have secured control of the American Government "and even the officers of the law had to consult with them for the detection of criminals."

The preacher named as others "in the line of pilferers," heartless employers who refuse to pay their workmen living wages. Naming others as those who obtain money under false pretenses and money lenders who capitalize human distress, Father Smith observed that the law of the land may not catch up with them, but they will not be able to evade the judgment of God.

These persons are in revolt against one of the oldest and one of the most sacred institutions of the human race, the institution of private property or the right of private possession, Father Smith pointed out. Every phase of the life of the modern nation is built on the presumption that private property is a sacred possession, and the right of private property is the cornerstone of all successful government, he added. Father Smith took as his topic, "Robbers."

Dr. Christie Hits High Death Rate

Tells Cosmopolitan Club Living Methods Are Too Intense.

High blood pressure, caused by too intense methods of living and not enough relaxation, is killing off the man of 55 and over as fast as ever, Dr. A. C. Christie, president of the District of Columbia Medical Society, told members of the Cosmopolitan Club at their luncheon meeting yesterday at the Carlton Hotel.

Dr. Christie said that although the average span of life for the present generation has been increased by 12 years, that the death rate for the middle-aged is as high as ever for the reasons cited. Dr. Christie revealed that the medical profession treats about one-eighth of its patients free, contributing $365,000,000 worth of service to the country annually.

A large number of reservations for the ladies night party of the club, to be held April 16 at the Shoreham Hotel, was reported by Lewis A. Payne, chairman of the committee in charge. Fred Pelzman, chairman of the baseball ticket committee, said that the club appeared to be preparing to attend the opening game in a body.

REALTY MAN GIVEN 2-YEAR PROBATION

Jacob B. Shapiro Was Found Guilty of Using Mails to Defraud.

Justice Jesse C. Adkins, in the District Supreme Court, yesterday placed Jacob B. Shapiro, real estate operator, under a two-year period of probation following his conviction last June of charges of use of the mails to defraud.

No sentence was imposed. The formal wording of the decision was that "execution of sentence was suspended" and Shapiro was given two years of probation.

There were twelve counts in the indictment on which Shapiro was tried and he was voted guilty on each charge by the jury. Because of the fact that none of his clients lost any money through dealings with Mr. Shapiro a number of prominent Washingtonians spoke in his behalf and Justice Adkins decided that he would not impose a sentence.

Shapiro made a spectacular rise in the real estate boom of several years back. His testimony on the stand was that he had amassed a large fortune and had dropped most of it in a subsequent decline in the real estate market. Assistant United States Attorney John W. Pihelly prosecuted the case, which lasted two weeks. Alvin L. Newmyer represented Mr. Shapiro.

Three Boys Held In Robbery Cases

Police Say Lads Admit Breaking Locks on Stores.

Three young boys were being held on charges of unlawful entry at the Eleventh Precinct last night as the result of a series of burglaries on downtown stores during the past week. Police say they expect to arrest two more boys in connection with the same cases.

Those held are Robert Morrow, 12, of 2 Logan circle; Francis Bozzi, 12, of 651 I street southeast, and Wilmer E. Hartley, 15, of 701 Fourth street northwest.

The boys were arrested yesterday by Private C. P. Fox, of the Eleventh Precinct, when their actions aroused his suspicions. Questioning them, he obtained the admission that they had broken into the store of Guy Curran, 315 Ninth street northwest, where they stole a number of clocks. They also admitted breaking a lock at the old Parker-Bridget Co., Ninth street and Pennsylvania avenue, as well as several other stores in the vicinity.

500 Tire Dealers To Convene Today

Goodrich Company Agents to Hold Conference at Willard.

More than 500 representatives of the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co. will gather here today for a conference at the Willard Hotel. Dealers in Goodrich tires within a radius of 200 miles of Washington will attend the meeting.

F. R. Campbell, manager of the local branch of the company, will preside, while addresses will be given by Philip J. Kelly, assistant general sales manager of the company's plant at Akron, Ohio; H. W. Dalzell, technical engineer, and Guy Gundaker, jr., sales promotion manager.

A three-act dramatized sales presentation, with a cast composed of Goodrich staff employes from Akron, will feature the afternoon session.

Death Takes Another Of Zoo's Anthropoids

Never a robust fellow, Jo-Jo succumbed to an intestinal ailment, in the opinion of Dr. William M. Mann, director of the Zoo. He was a neighbor of N'gi, the gorilla who died recently. O'Kero, the 2-year-old gorilla, and Teddy, the 2-year-old chimpanzee, are recovering from bronchial pneumonia, Dr. Mann said.

LIQUOR PLOT TRIAL IS NEARING FINISH

The taking of testimony in the trial of thirteen alleged rum ring conspirators yesterday indicated that the end of the lengthy trial was in sight. Justice F. D. Letts, before whom the case is being tried, adjourned court until Tuesday morning, at which time it was indicated both the defense attorneys and the Government prosecutors will be expected to argue their case to the jury.

The thirteen, two of whom are women, were among those indicted several months ago. Thirty-six were originally named, and of that number 22 have already entered pleas of guilty and have been sentenced.

There are 1,500 alleged overt acts in the so-called conspiracy as Capt. Harold W. Orcutt and James R. Kirkland, for the Government, have unfolded the case to the jury.

Even if the arguments to the jury are started Tuesday morning, there is small chance that the case will reach that body's hands until Wednesday. Defense attorneys have asked for five hours in which to present their arguments, and the Government has asked for three hours. After that, Judge Letts' charge will follow, and the average court day only takes in about five hours.

Policeman Casey Pleads Not Guilty

Trial on Drunk-Driving Charge Is Set for April 8.

A plea of not guilty was entered in Police Court yesterday by Private J. W. Casey, of the Fourth Precinct, when he was arraigned before Judge Isaac R. Hitt on charges of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. He was released under a $500 bond for trial by jury on April 8.

Private Casey was arrested Wednesday night when the machine he was driving collided with a car driven by Augustus Bodwell, of 2418 North Capitol street. The accident occurred at the First street gate of the United States Soldiers' Home. He was immediately suspended from the Police Department by his commanding officer, Lieut. John Flaherty.

As the accident occurred on Government property, the charges were filed by Assistant United States Attorney Frank Adams. Private Casey, who is 36 years old, appeared before the Police Trial Board last summer on charges of conduct unbecoming an officer and leaving the scene after colliding. He was fined $100.

Trade Vehicle Owners Will Meet Wednesday

The Commercial Motor Vehicle Owners Association of the District will meet Wednesday night at 8 o'clock at the United States Chamber of Commerce to discuss the weight motor vehicle taxation feature of the Mapes bill and items in the new Virginia motor vehicle code. The meeting was called yesterday by the board of directors.

Jerome Fanciulli, secretary of the association, will appear today before the Senate Interstate Commerce Commission in opposition to the Couzens truck-bus regulation bill, proposing to regulate these vehicles in interstate service through the commission.

Workman Is Injured In Blaze at Garage

A workman was painfully burned last night in a fire which broke out in the basement of a garage at Pennsylvania avenue and John Marshall place northwest. He was treated for second degree burns of the legs by an insurance clinic. Property damage was slight.

The fire started when Morrison Wiles, 28 years old, of 518 Ninth street northeast, was cleaning the accumulation of grease from the basement floor with a cleaning machine. A spark from the machine ignited the chemicals used in cleaning the floor and set Wiles' clothing afire. He was taken to the clinic by Carl Michael, of 805 East Capitol street, a fellow worker.

Obscene Pictures Found In Man's Room, Charge

Charges of possession of liquor and obscene pictures were placed against Clark H. Packard, said by police to be a former prohibition agent, after his arrest yesterday at 2164 Florida avenue northwest.

The man was arrested in a raid by Sergt. N. O. Holmes and Private C. R. Blick. They said they found the pictures and a small quantity of whisky in his apartment. Sergt. Holmes said the raid was made after the liquor squad had received several complaints.
